Three City Beaches Open for Summer

CHARLEVOIX -- Charlevoix's three bathing beaches officially opened for the summer June 20, according to Recreation Director Deano Davenport. Three lifeguards have been hired for the summer.

The Lake Michigan beach will be guarded by Christine Cross, a Michigan State student who has a water safety instructor's certificate.

She participated in the Tokyo Olympics and has appeared around the world in synchronized swimming programs. The Michigan beach hours are 10 a.m. until 6 p.m.

JUDY SUMMERVILLE, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Somerville, will be the Ferry Avenue beach from noon until 6 p.m. daily. Miss Somerville earned her senior life saving certificate through the city-sponsored swimming program. This is her first year as a guard.

A softball league for girls 10 to 13 years of age will play mornings during the summer. Davenport hopes to get four teams organized.

Those interested should report to the city softball field on Carpenter Street Friday, June 21, at 10 a.m. They also may sign up with Davenport at the field during the week.

Also being organized is a summer basketball league for high school and post high school boys. Several teams already have entered.

Games will be played Wednesday evenings at the high school gymnasium.

Book Carriers Are Needed to Help Move City Library

CHARLEVOIX -- The call is out for volunteers to help move the Charlevoix Library to its new home on Clinton Street. Mrs. Charles Duerr, who has been coordinating library activities for the past few months, says the move -- which involves hauling the books from the old library to the new -- will begin at 1 p.m. and continue until the job is completed.

Each volunteer will be given an armload of books with a serial number. The books are to be carried in the new library one-half block east.

"IF ENOUGH volunteers report for work on moving day, a continuous line will keep the books moving," Mrs. Duerr said.

"It is hoped the moving operation will attract considerable community interest, and also get the job done as quickly and efficiently as possible."

DURING the four weeks the library has been closed to prepare for the move, more than 100 hours of volunteer time have been donated to the work of inventorying and marking the books in the present location.

Most of the work has been done by High School library assistants, under the direction of Mrs. Eugene Bergmann, clerical assistant from the High School Library, and Mrs. Duerr. High school girls assisting were Dana Dwywied, Erin and Ellen Arvilla, Cheryl Kenney and Sue Eby.

CHARLEVOIX's new librarian, Mrs. Dorothy Olmstead, formerly of Flint, expects to be on hand to oversee the moving operation. Two staff members of the Grand Traverse Area Library Federation also will be present to give advice and assistance.

Mrs. Duerr said she hopes the new library will be open to the public about July 5.

THE BRIDGE, which formerly was under the jurisdiction of the Army Corps of Engineers, now is governed by the Transportation Department, through the Coast Guard.

Tenders have instructions to report the names and boat numbers to the Highway Department, which will forward them to the Coast Guard command for action. The bridge, of course, will open for craft with fixed antennas.

Battalion of Boys Invades Camp Charlevoix

Camp Charlevoix

Corral Chatter

"Once Again We Come To..."

The camp is filled with great boys and a staff of sixty who also come from twenty-six different colleges and universities. It was a time for boys to renew friendships started last summer, and for boys to see their favorite counselors again.

As is tradition in Camp Charlevoix, the season is started off with the annual pillow fight held in the club house. Boys sit on a huge log that is suspended from the ceiling with strong ropes, and the object is to knock your opponent off the log. You can imagine the yelling and screaming as boys struggle to win.

Among the winners on Saturday night were Kim Miller, Grand Rapids, best George Lampe, Fort Wayne, Chuck Gardella, Grosse Pointe, and David Murray, Birmingham, won over his friend, Fritz Carlson.

IN ADDITION, Steve Healy, Bloomfield Hills, best David Kerr, Grosse Pointe; Phil Ballentine, Birmingham, best Tom Cullison, Auried, best Jerry Mahford, Kingston, Jamaica, won over Jim Chalberg, Rock Island, Ill.; George Doomer, Grosse Pointe, won over Mark Bromley, Grosse Pointe, Tom Camp, Grand Rapids.

At the dinner table Sunday, "Happy Birthday" was sung to Russell Barbons and to Rusty Smith, both having had birthdays on opening day.

BEFORE we go any further into the season, let it be known that Camp Charlevoix is going back on Eastern Standard Time, (slow time) one hour back from the regular Michigan time so that the water front for swimming, fishing, and other sports, will be back one hour from town time. Please make note of this.

AT SUNDAY morning Chapel, which was held in the Bigwamp, due to an all-night rain, the speaker was Ken Smith who spoke on "Building a Reputation". He gave the boys much to think about.

Sometimes I wish I was rich and famous (Most of the time as a matter of fact) Because then I'd be able to go where I want And act how I'd like to act.

But just when I'm feeling all depressed Because I'm just an underling, Along come someone like Laci Johnson Nugent Who proves you can't get away with anything.

Inspire (or maybe because of) her money and family name. Nothing she utters or does goes unrecorded; her doggie's name, her dress size, her hangnails— Everything is reported.

I thought with the Washington wedding All the nonsense would end. Dine up in champagne and technorama. Supported by a cast of three thousand.

But the wedding only proved to be No more than a minor episode. For next we were taken on their honeymoon And on to their Austin, Texas, alone.

Next came the big question And everyone joined the game. "Is she or isn't she?" everyone asked. Finally she admitted, "I am."

The nation then nervously awaited The birth of her first son. And now that the ordeal is over, We hear she wants another one and one and one and one.

So I guess I don't want to be rich and famous. If it means becoming something of a star, flut in this share and share alike society, I wish Patrick Nugent would get with it and at least send me a cigar.

Years of Hard Work Pay Off Book Recalls Ellsworth's Past

Twenty six years of shipping and shipping finally paid off for Mrs. Fie Timmer of Ellsworth.

Working on her collection of news articles, history books and interviews with various Ellsworth "old timers", Mrs. Timmer just published her "Gleanings from Ellsworth's Yesteryears".

The 85-page book covers the village's history from 1866 to 1966.

HER LATE husband, John, began saving news clippings about Ellsworth in 1921 when he worked for the Grand Rapids Press as a correspondent.

In 1954, Mrs. Timmer decided to compile the information in book form.

Bringing out huge scrapbooks of the articles she said, "I worked on it as a hobby in the winters."

"When I work I need lots of room to scatter everything and I need it quiet to think. In the summer people are always coming and going and it's impossible to get anything done."

MUCH of the information was gathered through informal get-togethers with elderly residents.

She said, "My husband would drive out and pick up the people. Then we'd sit around in the room talking for hours of dinner and I'd just let them talk about the old times."

"I just listen and listen. The oldest part about these gatherings were that when the people left they said they hadn't had a better time in years," she added.

MRS. TIMMER also wrote to former residents as far as California to gather information about Ellsworth's early days.

One of the book's highlights includes the naming of Ellsworth. She said Lewis De Line, the village's first postmaster, chose the name when a dispute rose over what the village should be called.

Some thought it should be called Odow or Neolmore, the towns existing there at the time, or named after a prominent resident.

De Line worked the argument by naming it after Colonel Elmer Ellsworth, the first officer killed in the Civil War. De Line had served under Ellsworth and the officer was a close friend of President Lincoln.

MRS. TIMMER also includes a history of Ellsworth's railroads, churches, schools, government, post office, homes and businesses, government, post office, homes and businesses, government, post office, homes and businesses.

Mrs. Timmer takes a philosophical viewpoint about the book, "Some people like his boys and some people don't. It's fun to watch their reaction to the book."

"I don't expect everyone to like this sort of thing, but I think history is important and interesting."

BESIDES working on the book and collecting historical data which includes over 1,000 photos and many articles of Ellsworth residents, she spends her "spare" time collecting antiques, stones and driftwood.

"I keep busy," she said.

Dr. Libke Directs Health Unit

GAYLORD -- Robert S. Libke, M.D., has resigned as clinical director at the Gaylord State Home to accept the directorship of District Health Department No. 3 which includes Charlevoix County. The appointment is effective Aug. 1.

He succeeds the late Dr. Albert F. Litzenger of Boyne City who died last March.

DR. LIBKE was born in Gaylord and was graduated from Gaylord High School in 1929. He received his M.D. degree from Wayne State University in 1943, serving his internship and residency at Highland Park General Hospital.

After completing his Army duty in 1945 he entered private practice in Gaylord where he has lived ever since.

He was employed at the Gaylord State Home as clinical director in February, 1955.

Dr. Libke will continue to make his home in Gaylord.

To Plant Bows in Charlevoix

LANSING -- Rep. Robert Davis says he has been told by Wayne Todt, chief of the Conservation Department's Fish Division, that because of the success of rainbow trout in Lake Charlevoix, a number of yearling bows will be planted in the lake next spring.

Todt said the number planted will depend on how many are available.

MRS. BALCH said two men from the county will be inducted in August and 17 others will take their pre-induction physicals. No dates have been set.

Agencies Seek Chest Funds

CHARLEVOIX -- Representatives of many charitable and public service agencies supported by the Charlevoix Community Chest made presentations at the annual budget and admissions meeting of the C.C. board of directors June 20.

Among the organizations making presentations were Charlevoix Hospital, the Salvation Army, Mt. McMane Recreation Corp., Michigan United Fund, Scenic Trails Council (Boy Scouts), Crooked Tree Council (Girl Scouts), Michigan Children's Aid Society, the American Red Cross, Charlevoix Association for Retarded Children, District Health Dept. No. 3, the Charlevoix service Organization, and the City Recreation Department.

The Chest's budget committee has discussed the requests and will submit a proposed budget to the board July 5.

Sup. Hired by Ellsworth

ELLSWORTH -- John Jorgenson, 51, has accepted the job as superintendent of the Ellsworth Community School and will begin his duties July 3.

Jorgenson is assistant superintendent at Homer, a Class C school near Battle Creek.

He was accepted from 15 applicants for the job.

JORGENSEN and his wife have a child in the fourth grade and one in the 12th grade.

He will replace Nelson Spoelman who resigned earlier this year effective July 1.

Courier Gets CG Award

CHARLEVOIX -- The Charlevoix Courier has received a "Certificate of Appreciation" from Rear Adm. Charles Tighe, commander of the Ninth U.S. Coast Guard District in Cleveland.

The certificate was issued "in recognition of notable services which have assisted greatly in furthering the aims and functions of the Coast Guard."

The award was presented to the Courier by Lt. Dave Smith, commander of Coast Guard Group Charlevoix.

Contest Extended

Because it appears there has been a misunderstanding on the part of many contestants, the Courier is extending its offer of a dinner for two to the person coming up with the most complete list of improvements to Charlevoix business places since Labor Day.

Any business place in Charlevoix is fair game and only exterior improvements will be considered.

So you have a few more days to submit your list. Because of the Fourth of July weekend, deadline for entries is noon Saturday, July 1.

Old Couriers Now on Film

CHARLEVOIX -- The State Library in Lansing has recently microfilmed all back issues of the Courier from 1911 through December, 1966. Two earlier years -- 1885 and 1886 -- also are available.

The public is welcome to view any back issues of the Courier which may interest them through the film viewer at the Courier office. (See pictures on Pg. 15)

Ellsworth Teachers Get $6,000

ELLSWORTH -- Ellsworth Community School will be paying its teachers a record $6,000 to $7,500 next year.

The school board passed a motion to increase salaries for a bachelor's degree from $5,200 to $6,000 at the starting level. The top level is increased $1,200 from $6,200 to $7,400.

Teacher's holding master's degrees will earn $6,000 compared with $5,500 last year at the lowest level. A top of $7,500, $1,400 more than last year's $6,500 is scheduled for the top level.

4th Barbecue Is Cancelled

ELLSWORTH -- The annual fourth of July barbecue has been called off this year here.

According to past Chamber of Commerce President Long Way, there was not enough interest in the event this year to get things going.

This is the first time in four years the barbecue will not be held.

County Has Eight Pages in Magazine

CHARLEVOIX -- Eight pages in the 1967 edition of the magazine "Carefree Days," published by the West Michigan Tourist Association, are devoted to Charlevoix County.

The magazine, which promotes recreational activities and points of interest in 21 Western Michigan counties, contains many pictures of the area, as well as a long feature-length article on the county and another on Beaver Island.

Pictures include three aerial views of Charlevoix Harbor, the fronton ferry, the East Jordan harbor, Boyne City, Boyne Mountain, Venetian Festival fireworks and the Mormon printing shop at St. James.

Court

CHARLEVOIX -- The following cases were heard by Charlevoix Justice of the Peace John Connolly through noon June 23:

John Edward Connaghan, 49, of Beaver Island stood mute when arraigned on a charge of assault. Bond of $500 was furnished and the case was continued. He was arrested on a citizen's complaint.

Harvey P. David, 49, of Bay Shore was fined $50 and $5 costs and sentenced to 10 days in jail for driving while his operator's license was suspended. State Police stopped him.

Delbert W. Kelly, 18, of Charlevoix was fined $5 and $5 costs for violation of the basic speed law. City police wrote the ticket.

Charlevoix Wears New Look This Year

Paint and Elbow Grease Do Wonders Downtown

CHARLEVOIX -- No matter which way you turn, there are changes taking place in Charlevoix -- so many in fact that the Courier has offered a free dinner for two for the person who comes up with the most complete list of the improvements which have taken place in the downtown business district. (The winning list appears on pg. 1.)

Some of the alterations are big and obvious -- such as the complete remodeling of the former Carey summer shoe store by the Polly-Kay Shop, which has purchased the property.

NOT ONLY has the building been completely rebuilt on the Round Lake side, but the entire structure has been painted and rededicated.

IT'S SURPRISING what flowers can do. These flower boxes were installed this spring by the Charlevoix County State Bank. Many other Charlevoix business places have found a touch of color in front adds much to their appearance. Of course, the Garden Club's hanging flower baskets are much in evidence.

BILL PIOCH has moved this men's clothing store from the Oleson Shopping Center to a new location in the Henry Hogan properties on N. Bridge Street. His new sign and crest are in keeping with the old world decor of the block.

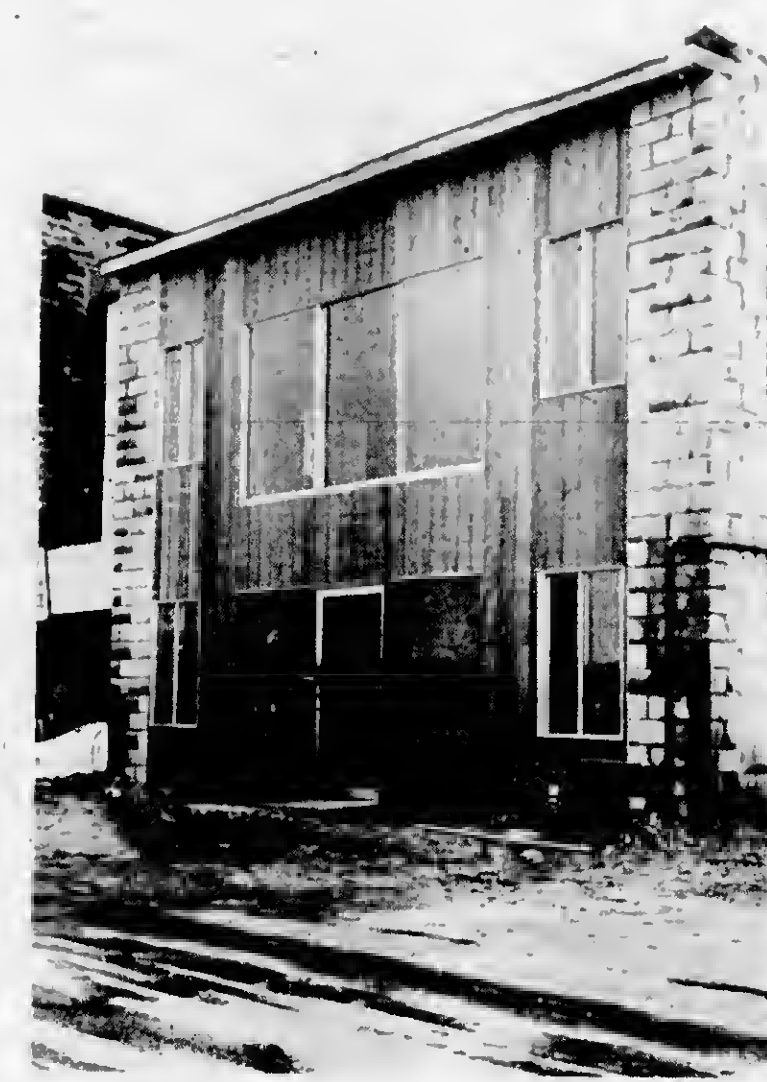

ALTHOUGH not in the business district, the Medusa Cement Co. Plant on South Point is clearly visible from the beach, the end of Dixon Avenue and Michigan Avenue. At night, the plant makes a brilliant pattern of lights against the sky.

GEORGE LA BLANCE's new insurance office, combined with the Secretary of State's office, make an attractive addition to the foot of Clinton Street. The building was remodeled and enlarged from the former Red Wing shoe store.

THE POLLY-KAY Shop is one of the first businesses on the north end of town to make use of the magnificent view afforded business places on the east side of Bridge Street. Inside, a rustic circular staircase takes shoppers from the children's shop on the ground level to the first floor.

PERHAPS the most spectacular change downtown is the painting of the former Timms Appliance Store blue. Yes, blue. The building will soon house "The Sweetest Place in Town" ice cream parlor, with a balcony overlooking Round Lake.

GERTRUDE STEIN WROTE

"A ROSE IS A ROSE, IS A ROSE"

At first glance we might take such a statement as the nonsensical chit-chat of a demented parrot, but upon sober consideration we are apt to realize that it is much more. It was in reality her unique way of saying that a rose is by all odds the most beautiful flower that grows. Whether she was thinking only of the beauty and fragrance of the flower is a matter of conjecture. Perhaps she was thinking of the entire Rose Family, which yields valuable fruits, such as the apple and plum and many other economic products, among them the almond, wild cherry and oil of Rose.

Why is it that the Rose Family should yield such a wide variety of flowers and fruits? Environment, Mendelism and cultivation the botanist and biologist will say. They mean that the condition of the soil and the prevailing climatic conditions determine the manner and rapidity of growth; that principles of heredity will produce changes in the plant's nature and of course cultivation will promote its growth and yield.

In this respect, then, man is like a plant. In a healthful climate; in a pleasant environment there is ample opportunity for moral and mental uplift. The Church should play an important part in everyone's life and wellbeing. Attend the church of your choice regularly. Set a good example for your family and they will eventually follow in your footsteps.

Fetes Duke at Party

PARIS -- Nathan Cummings, who maintains a summer home on Lake Charlevoix, was host at a moonlight party on the Seine River here marking the Duke of Windsor's 73rd birthday June 23.

Cummings, who owns Consolidated Food Co., staged the party for 250 guests aboard two sight-seeing boats. It included a champagne buffet and dancing.

THE GUEST list included counts, princes and personalities from the arts and society from both sides of the Atlantic.

They were piped aboard by trumpeters dressed in black caps and red riding coats. The Duke himself personally cancelled a proposed fireworks display planned as a highlight of the scenic cruise.

COAST GUARDSMEN Dale Uthman (left) and Rick Klonowski helped move library supplies by truck. Both men are assigned to the Charlevoix Coast Guard Station.

New Library Opens to Public Wednesday

CHARLEVOIX -- It took three hours and 41 book carriers to move the Charlevoix Library Friday afternoon to its new home on Clinton Street. The new library opens to the public today (Wednesday).

The book carriers started hauling armloads of books at 1 p.m., with the last volumes in place shortly after 4 p.m.

THE MOVE was coordinated by Mrs. Charles Duerr, interim librarian, and her assistant, Mrs. Eugene Bergmann, who tagged and handed out the books at the old library at Clinton and State streets.

New city librarian Miss Dorothy Olmstead, school librarian Mrs. Robert Martin and two representatives of the Grand Traverse Library Federation were on hand at the new library to make sure the books were shelved properly. The Federation volunteers were Patricia Anos and Barbara Liljestrand.

PARTIALLY financed by the federal government, the new library is complete except for landscaping and the installation of dividers in the Kiwanis-financed youth rooms in the basement.

Assisting with the move were John Miller and G.G. Andaleon, off the Coast Guard Cutter Sunday; Robert E. Seelund, Dale Uthman and Rick Klonowski, from the Charlevoix Coast Guard station; Hubert Padlock, Sally Gustafson, Cheryl Kony, Nikki Ballard, Peggy Foster, Roy Bennett, Fred Willis, Tom Bergmann, Raymond Carr, the Rev. Lawrence Tenhagen, Glenn Snider, Dana Dinswield, Narge Dinswield, Bob Clark, Bill Carey Jr., Dina Tagland, Martin England, Mrs. Beth Shepard (a summer visitor), Wendy Saltstall, Rex Milligan, Mrs. Bill Carey, Beth Carey, Richard Milligan, Jeanne Nield, Betty Bergmann, Beth Bergmann, Sara Smith, Phillip England, Walter Krouph, Peggy Carey, Ed Lieberman, Mrs. Santek, Kathy Milligan, Ed Shanahan and Bonnie Baker.

MISS OLMEAD began her library career as city librarian at Lincoln City, Neb. In the late 1930's and early 1940's she worked for the WPA as district supervisor of libraries for South-Central Nebraska, with headquarters at Grand Island. She later worked for the Falls City Public Library.

In 1942, she moved to Flint, Mich., as Genesee County librarian. When she arrived the county library system had 69,000 volumes. When she retired last Feb. 1 the system boasted 180,000 volumes in 14 branch libraries and two book-mobles.

MRS. OLMEAD, who has rented an apartment from Mrs. Dorothy Kohler at 203 E. Dixon, was on hand for the move to the new library June 30.

Library Hours
CHARLEVOIX -- The new city library will be open from 1 until 8 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays, from 1 until 5 Fridays and from 2 until noon Saturdays throughout the summer, according to City Librarian Miss Dorothy Olmstead.

Challenger Ties Up

MANITOWOC -- The cement carrier Medusa Challenger has tied up for two weeks here because it has no cement to transport. The crew has been laid off.

WORTH LOOMIS, Medusa vice president in Charlevoix, says one or two such layoffs are to be expected each season. "It's just not feasible to keep the ship manned and in operation when there is no cement to haul," he said.

SO FAR this year the Challenger has been transporting cement for the Penn-Dixie Cement Co. at Potosi, Mo. Loomis said he has the "highest expectations" that the Charlevoix Plant will be in operation by the end of July. He added that equipment tests are going well, but there has been a delay in hooking up the control room.

BOY DROWNS in Walloon
WALLOON LAKE -- A 17-year-old boy drowned in Walloon Lake Sunday night after becoming exhausted, according to Sgt. Vaughn Blake at the Potosi State Police Post.

The victim was Ronald Olson, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clio Olson of Route 3, Potosi.

The fatality was Charlevoix County's first drowning of the summer.

SGT. BLAKE said the youth had swum to a raft at the public bathing beach about 75 yards from shore and then continued 50 yards further to a string of buoys marking off the bathing area.

On his return, he became exhausted and two companions rushed to his aid but were unable to assist. The water is about 10 feet deep at the spot.

A cottager, Robert Bielak, heard the commotion and rushed to the site in a boat, retrieving the boy's body. A doctor was waiting on shore to administer artificial resuscitation, but his efforts were futile. The boy reportedly was a strong swimmer.

GUARD PLANS Kitchen Tour
CHARLEVOIX -- The Charlevoix Hospital Guild is sponsoring a kitchen tour through outstanding and unique kitchens in the area July 18 from 1 to 4 p.m.

The tour includes a visit to six unusual kitchens in the area, with a separate stop along the way for coffee and refreshments.

HOMEMADE bread, cookies, jams, candies and artificial and fresh flowers will be displayed and sold at the various homes chosen for the tour.

Cost of the tour is $3 and proceeds will be used to buy essential hospital equipment. Tickets are available from guild members, at the Polly Kay Shop, the Shops of the Guild, the Style Beauty Shop and many local motels.

KITCHENS to be visited are at the homes of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Gilbert, Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Dinswield, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Olsen, Mr. and Mrs. John Schroeder, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Schlemmer and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Soy, coffee and cake will be served at Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Freedman's home.

Radio Tower at South Point
CHARLEVOIX -- A 150-foot radio tower will be erected on Medusa Cement Co.'s South Point property as part of an army gravity survey of Lake Michigan.

Medusa Vice President Worth Loomis says his company has given permission to LORAC Service Corp. of Tulsa, Okla., to erect the tower.

Architect Cops Golf Crown

CHARLEVOIX -- Hundreds of Charlevoix turned out Sunday afternoon to see a confident Bill Newcomb polish off 19-year-old John Grace to win the 56th Michigan Amateur Golf Championship at the Belvedere Club.

Newcomb, 27, a golf course architect from Ann Arbor, won the final match with a 3 and 2 victory over Grace, a sophomore at Houston University.

A NATIVE of Loganport, Ind., Newcomb won the Indiana Open in 1962 and was runner-up in the Indiana Amateur in 1963.

Newcomb, who defeated Dick Roberts 3 and 2 in the morning round, was up on Grace all the way, building up a 5-up lead at one point.

ON THE 12th and 13th holes, Grace bruted, but Newcomb clinched the championship on the 16th.

Grace won his title in the finals Sunday morning, defeating first-time champion winner Buddy Stevens.

"It was lucky to go as far as I did," Grace commented when it was all over. He plans on entering other tournaments, including the National Amateur and the Western Amateur, later this summer.

NEWCOMB received his A.B. from the University of Michigan in 1964. He is a member of the Barton Hills Golf Club. He and his wife, Betty Jean, have one son, Billy, 14 months old.

Newcomb, who designs golf courses for a living, says he picked up at least one good idea from the Belvedere course--on the 7th hole where rolling terrain takes the place of a trap.

STORY HOUR
CHARLEVOIX -- A story hour for youngsters has been added to Charlevoix's summer recreation program.

The program begins this afternoon (Wednesday) at 1:30 p.m. Mothers may drop their youngsters off at the new city library and pick them up at 3 p.m.

Designed for youngsters from four through 10 years of age, the program will be conducted by Sherrill Porsild, who will be held every Wednesday afternoon.

Crowds Line Shore to View Boat Races
EAST JORDAN -- About 5,000 persons turned out Sunday afternoon to watch the First Annual Lake Charlevoix Outboard Marathon here.

The largest class of boats (DU) left the city dock at 3 p.m. in calm water and under sunny skies. They were followed at five minute intervals by four smaller classes.

RACERS reported the water became quite choppy on the north end of Lake Charlevoix between Ironton and Boyne City as some dark clouds formed and a few drops of rain fell.

Although no major mishaps were reported, some racers chose to dock in Boyne City rather than finish the other lap and a half on the 65 mile course.

THE FIRST boat finished the course at 4:38 p.m. The driver was William Walters of Plymouth, the national champion of the AU class. He was awarded a cash prize and first place trophy.

Other winners awarded cash prizes and trophies in the DU class were Fred Andreou, Port Huron, second place, and Chuck Frautz, Essexville, third place.

Winners in the CU class were Jim Perambers, Riverdale, first place; D. J. Zim, Man, Inkster, second place; Don Volson, Big Rapids, third place; and Robert Champagnon, Brockport, N.Y., fourth place.

BU WINNERS were Chris White, Columbus, Ga., first place,

Annual Alewife Dieoff Litters Beaches

Warm Water Is Held Responsible

CHARLEVOIX—Once again the Lake Michigan shore is littered with tons of dead alewives—their tiny little scales fish which has invaded the Great Lakes to such an extent that it now makes up 90 percent of the fish life in Lake Michigan.

City Superintendent James Taylor reports that two truckloads of the off-odorous little fish had to be removed from the Lake Michigan bathing beach here before the beach opened for the summer last week.

But more food and the fish are being washed ashore daily.

The change in temperature of the Great Lakes, as the spawning season progresses, the alewife becomes more fragile and is less able to tolerate the warm lake water.

JUST 15 years ago, the State Conservation Department revealed that the alewife "dieoff" became a problem in the Great Lakes, since the third dieoff had appeared in the nets of a Lake Michigan fisherman. Their rise since then has been nothing short of phenomenal.

According to a recent issue of "Lake-

Softball Gear Is Needed

CHARLEVOIX—Softball equipment is urgently needed by the Recreation Department.

Director Deano Davernett says gloves, shoes and bats are needed. Donations should be dropped off at the City Hall.

Michigan Boating News," the alewife (or the alewife phenomenon), if you prefer, is a Latin name eventually may amount to something more than a pest.

Commercial fishermen in some parts of the lake are now hauling them in by the ton for sale as animal food.

A process also has been developed for making a protein-rich fish meal out of the little nuisances. However, since the entire is used, sale of the product for human consumption has not been approved by the Federal Food and Drug Administration.

IN THE MEANTIME, biologists are hoping for a more natural means of reducing the alewife population. Coho salmon, which were introduced into Lake Michigan last year, reportedly find the alewife a tasty morsel. So do lake trout, which are making something of a comeback since conservationists have been winning the war on sea lampreys.

If the trout and salmon follow their natural instincts, the alewife may be less of a problem in the future.

DEAD ALEWIVES—like these are a common sight on most Lake Michigan beaches from Chicago to Nauburn during the last week of June and the first week of July during the annual dieoff.

Jordan Elects Chest Officers

EAST JORDAN—Election of officers for the Community Chest were held here Wednesday night.

Tom Breakey, past president, was asked to remain as president until a new one is elected.

Virginia Giacomelli will succeed Mrs. Hugh Gidley as secretary and Phyllis Malpass was re-elected treasurer.

Kloster and Sherri Westonbrook attended Camp Geneva near Holland for one week.

CHARLEVOIX Harbormaster Charles Coleman shows two average-sized alewives which were about to expire when he fished them out of the yacht basin on Round Lake.

HOPE FOR the eventual control of the alewife population lies with the coho salmon (above) and the lake trout, carnivores which feed on smaller fish.

Camp Charlevoix Corral Chatter

CAMP CHARLEVOIX --- The first week of this 42nd season started out on Monday with an orientation program in which each activity man outlined his activity, introduced himself, and gave the boys an insight into the "way" of his activity. They were all excited about meeting these new men and the new campers were really thrilled at seeing everything the camp has to offer. We have men from twenty-six different colleges or universities and with such a spread among our campers, we are truly a cosmopolitan group. At supper, each boy chose the two activities he wants to pursue this week.

ON TUESDAY, the regular activities started and some of the staff reported they had found several "hotties" in these activities. The swimming classes were off to a great start, and boys are excited to jump-up classifications very soon. The water is warm now, and boys are enjoying it. There were many discussions on Tuesday as to who was going to be "Green" and who was to be a "Grey". These are the two sides into which the camp is divided for all competition, and the campers have a tough time dividing their boys into the two colors.

Wednesday was dedicated to the overnight trip of the season. The boys, with their heads of camping, taking the boys down the Jordan River. The boys, with their heads of camping, taking the boys down the Jordan River. The boys, with their heads of camping, taking the boys down the Jordan River.

THE BUDDY system is used at the Camp Charlevoix bathing beach to keep track of swimmers. At a signal from the lifeguard, each boy must seek out his buddy and raise his hand.

GERTRUDE STEIN WROTE "A ROSE IS A ROSE, IS A ROSE"

At first glance we might take such a statement as the nonsensical chit-chat of a demented parrot, but upon sober consideration we are apt to realize that it is much more. It was in reality her unique way of saying that a rose is by all odds the most beautiful flower that grows. Whether she was thinking only of the beauty and fragrance of the flower is a matter of conjecture. Perhaps she was thinking of the entire Rose Family, which yields valuable fruits, such as the apple and plum and many other economic products, among them the almond, wild cherry and oil of Rose.

Why is it that the Rose Family should yield such a wide variety of flowers and fruits? Environment, Mendelism and cultivation the botanist and biologist will say. They mean that the condition of the soil and the prevailing climatic conditions determine the manner and rapidity of growth; that principles of heredity will produce changes in the plant's nature and of course cultivation will promote its growth and yield.

In this respect, then, man is like a plant. In a healthful climate; in a pleasant environment there is ample opportunity for moral and mental uplift. The Church should play an important part in everyone's life and wellbeing. Attend the church of your choice regularly. Set a good example for your family and they will eventually follow in your footsteps.

DOZENS of curious Charlevoixians turned out at the City Dock last Tuesday night to get a first-hand look at the University of Michigan research submarine, the Star II, aboard the Coast Guard Cutter Woodbine. That day, the sub had probed the deepest sounding in Lake Michigan for the first time.

Dives 924 Feet

Tiny U-M Sub Probes Depths of Lake Michigan

CHARLEVOIX—June 23 was an historic day for Lake Michigan and the communities which line her shores. That was the day researchers from the University of Michigan probed for the first time the deepest sounding in the lake, using a tiny advanced research submarine called the Star II. Never before had man visited the deepest hole in the lake bottom.

THE DEEPEST sounding Lake Michigan is 154 fathoms (924 feet) located about 25 miles northwest of Manistowic. Afterward the little sub was lifted aboard the Coast Guard Cutter Woodbine and brought into Charlevoix to spend the night.

During the last two weeks of June, some 17 dives were made by researchers from the University of Michigan's Great Lakes Research Division, cooperating with the U.S. Coast Guard and the Electric Boat Division of General Dynamics, the makers of Star II.

THE FIRST submersible to operate in Lake Michigan, the craft is capable of diving to 1,200 feet, 276 deeper than the Lake Michigan bottom. With the Woodbine acting as mother ship, the little sub is helping unfold the secrets of the lake, bringing back biologic and geologic data never before available. The Star II is equipped with an external mechanical claw, which is used to retrieve rock samples from lake bottom escarpments.

Other equipment includes a television-video tape recorder.

Inc. system, a still camera mounted outside the hull which carries sufficient film for nearly continuous operation, hand-held medium picture cameras and an audio-tape system for oral note-taking.

ON EACH DIVE, the Star II carries a crew of two — a U. of M. researcher and a pilot from the Electric Boat Division.

The little vessel is only slightly over 17 feet long, but weighs 4.7 tons. It carries a payload of 250 pounds of scientific equipment and can move about a 12-mile range at 4 knots per hour.

If the craft proves feasible, a long-range lake research program will be set up by the university using the sub.

THE RECENT dives in Lake Michigan attempted to study:

1—The kind of rock formations making up the lake basin.

2—Living and invertebrate patterns of fish and bottom-dwelling organisms on which fish feed.

3—Bottom plants living far below the range of previously used testing equipment.

"The use of a submersible is a logical extension of research techniques used on the Great Lakes," according to the University of Michigan.

"These begin with sampling from instruments lowered into the water, and continue with the use of underwater cameras, television and sub-diving equipment to a depth of about 200 feet. Deeper observations require the submersible."

GENERAL DYNAMICS has designed and built some 250 submarines, from the U.S. Navy's first, the Holland, to the nuclear-powered Nautilus and the latest ballistic missile and attack submarines.

The Star II can perform oceanographic measurements of water temperature, pressure, salinity, current patterns, gravitational forces, magnetic characteristics and radioactivity. It also can make biological observations of the depths of sea life, the feeding habits of fish, undersea noise and plant life.

IN ADDITION, it is equipped to study sea bottom features, take sediment samples, make seismic measurements and locate mineral deposits. It also may help perform such engineering tasks as surveying, dredging, mining and drilling operations and repairing and recovering scientific devices lost at sea.

The Star II has joined a fleet of three research vessels operated by the U. of M.'s Great Lakes Research Division. These are the 46-foot Highland Lassie II, the 50-foot Mysis and the 114-foot Inland Seas. All are docked at Grand Haven.

Others were: Alberta Scott, East Jordan; Marie Gey, East Jordan; Conrad Klooster, Ellsworth; Elizabeth Barrow, Ellsworth; Paul Doctor, Ellsworth; Marilyn Drenth, Ellsworth; Charles Barrow, Central Lake; Juliana Richards, Manistowic; Alva Campbell, Boyne City; Stanley Fleis, Boyne City.

Discharged were: CHARLEVOIX: Ruth Montgomery, Beale Coleman, Viola Austin, Martha Wessels, Arlene Veenstra, Robert Goss, Howard Goss.

Others were: John McManis, East Jordan; Stanley Sweet, East Jordan; Gerald Vincent, East Jordan; Marjorie Gee, East Jordan; Paul Doctor, Ellsworth; John Kuyper, Ellsworth; John Dolato, Delaire; Barbara Stanley, Central Lake; Gerald Bingham, Elmira; Stanley Fleis, Boyne City; Karen Ganczarski, Boyne City; June Stanley, Central Lake; Robert Christian, Ironton; Juliana Richards, Manistowic; Matthew Hamilton, Manistowic.

At Potluck Dinner 60 Senior Citizens Eye Shuffleboard

CHARLEVOIX--A scrumptious array of foods was the feature of the monthly potluck supper held Thursday evening at the high school cafeteria for the Charlevoix Senior Citizens.

More than 60 turned out for the event and the entertainment which followed. This was a return engagement for Mrs. Andrew Hoffman and her co-entertainers of Potlucks who presented a most entertaining variety program.

DEAN DAVENPORT, Recreation Director, attended the brief business meeting and made several suggestions for the group. This included a shuffleboard program, a weekly games meeting and a booth at the Vacation Festival.

Mr. Davenport will make a report through his column in the local newspaper regarding the shuffleboard program, a report on the other issues will be made at the next meeting on July 12.

'Operation Heave-Ho' a Success

If you didn't have aching arms, a sore back and weary feet last Friday night, the chances are you missed out on a memorable event in Charlevoix history—the moving of the city library to its new home on Clinton Street.

Interim Librarian Mrs. Charles Duorr called for volunteers to help carry books to the new location in order to accomplish the move with a minimum of confusion in the shortest possible time. The move took just three hours.

Some 44 volunteers showed up, representing most of the civic groups in town. One summer resorter, Mrs. Booth Shepard, heard about the project and thought it would be fun to lend a hand. It was.

THE PROJECT not only assured that the books arrived at the new library in their proper sequence, but it also managed to get many Charlevoixans "involved."

In their library—which we suspect was in the back of Mrs. Duorr's mind all along. If so, her scheme worked. Many of the youngsters who took part in "Operation Heave-Ho" will be able to tell their grandchildren how they helped "move the Charlevoix Library."

SPECIAL credit goes to the U.S. Coast Guard which offered the services of a truck to move bulky supplies and men from the station and the Cutter Sundew who joined the parade of book carriers.

The city and the school district also owe a vote of thanks to Patricia Amos and Barbara Liljestrand of the Grand Traverse Library Federation, who came up from Traverse City to make sure the books were properly shelved at the new library, and to Mrs. Duorr and Mrs. Eugene Bergmann and their assistants who spent endless hours arranging the books in preparation for the move.

WELCOME BACK in '68

At the close of their fifth consecutive year at the Belvedere Golf Course on Sunday, officials of the Michigan Amateur Golf Championship announced that they will return to Charlevoix for their 1968 tourney.

The decision is testament to the warm reception golfers find in Charlevoix as well as the excellence of the Belvedere Course.

FOR OUR MONEY, they're welcome to keep coming back year after year, as long as they like. Not only to the golfers and their families give a healthy boost to our early-season tourist industry, but by-and-large they're the kind of people we like to have visit our town.

Furthermore, they provided some top-notch sports entertainment for the galleries of Charlevoix golf enthusiasts who turned out each day of the championship tourney to watch the golfers in action.

Few of us in Charlevoix can expect to see "better golf"—or better sportsmanship—than was displayed Sunday in the final round between champion Bill Newcomb and spunky little John Grace. It was an afternoon well-spent for all concerned.

Chamber Boat Cruise Was Fun for Everyone

Although only 85 persons took part, the first Chamber of Commerce boat cruise aboard the Beaver Islander was a success, no matter how you look at it.

Opinion is fairly unanimous among those who enjoyed the cruise to Boyne City and back that the trip should become an annual C of C event.

The Beaver Island Boat Company graciously donated the Beaver Islander for the afternoon, with the ticket charge used to defray the cost of food and beverages.

The weatherman threw in a warm, sunny afternoon, while Les Payne and Wayne Belding provided music for singing and dancing.

If there was any criticism, it was that the trip seemed to end all too soon. Everyone who attended is certainly looking forward to next year's cruise.

Clockwise

Stein and The Baron

By Bob Clock

It is surprising how little material by and about Ernest Hemingway is available in the Charlevoix Library, considering his close connections with this area. I had a little more favorable balance, I would like to take it on as a personal project to help supply the missing links.

Of course, any such undertaking would necessarily be a long-range project, since Hemingway is one man of letters who is not going to be quickly forgotten. New books on him are published every year, and the demand shows no signs of diminishing.

Furthermore, Hemingway left stacks of manuscript which undoubtedly will be published as it is edited and organized. Fresh Hemingway material probably will be appearing in print for a good many years to come.

ALTHOUGH the bearded writer never actually lived in Charlevoix, he and his family had close Charlevoix connections for years. He was married for the first time at Horton Bay, and the family cottage at Walton Lake is still occupied by members of the Hemingway clan. Descendants of Uncle George Hemingway still spend their summers at Hemingway Point on Lake Charlevoix.

Furthermore, Hemingway himself certainly must have been a frequent visitor in Charlevoix during the years he visited and lived in these parts. Unless I'm mistaken, some of his writings make mention of the Chicago Club and the Belvedere Club.

SO THERE'S GOOD reason for Charlevoix to take considerable pride in the work of Ernest Hemingway. Yet it is surprising how little material about Hemingway is available in the Charlevoix Library.

The latest book I have read on Hemingway was written by his brother, Leicester, and is entitled, "My Brother, Ernest Hemingway." It appeared in hard cover in 1961 and as a pocketbook last May.

Although one would expect Leicester to present considerable fresh material on his brother, it doesn't. There was a 16-year age spread between the Hemingway boys, and Leicester looks at his brother with almost the same worshipful adulation of other recent biographers. He does not make use of Ernest's letters, since Ernest was a real planner who enjoyed the cruise to Boyne City and back that the trip should become an annual C of C event.

Ernest's book follows Ernest through World War I and World War II, and is a heavy in spite of wartime restrictions.

Boat Races Round Out Festival

Judging by the number of smiling faces Sunday afternoon at East Jordan, the First Annual Lake Charlevoix Outboard Marathon was a great success.

Racers were grinning over their prize money and trophies, business people were happy to see the new faces in town, and tourists and residents alike enjoyed watching the races.

Although a few wrinkles still need ironing out for the Second Annual Marathon, this year's races went smoothly and without any major incident.

HE SPENDS hours on the phone, writing letters and running around contacting people in his car smothered with Jordan Valley Festival stickers and pennants.

His blood pressure steadily rises as the festival approaches and he prays that it won't ruin that the queens floats won't run out of gas in the middle of the parade, and most of all, that everyone has a great time.

After the festival, he relaxes for a few weeks before dreaming up some new ideas for the following year.

THE MARATHON took weeks of planning and hard work by many people—too many people to mention. However, one person who deserves a special slap on the back is Joe "the organizer" Wilkins.

Joe's been in charge of East Jordan's Fourth of July festivities for years now and every year he makes it a bigger and better festival.

WELL, JOE did it again this year with his festival. He made it bigger than before by adding the marathon.

The events this year seem hard to top, but Joe will probably think up something new for 1968.

CHARLEVOIX Couriers of the past have been faithful to mark the anniversary of the Battle of Pine River, fought the evening of July 13, 1853. In the brief encounter at the mouth of Pine River Channel, Irish settlers turned back a boatload of Mormons from Beaver Island. This stone in the Lake Michigan park marks the site.

Beautiful Charlevoix County Has Something for Everyone

CHARLEVOIX -- There's something for everyone in Charlevoix County.

Located 270 miles northwest of Detroit, 350 miles northeast of Chicago, 54 miles southwest of Mackinaw City, 181 miles north of Grand Rapids, Charlevoix County lies on the east shore of Lake Michigan in the highlands of Michigan's lower peninsula.

It may be reached by U.S. highway 31, which runs through the heart of the city of Charlevoix, by U.S. highway 131, which cuts through the western part of the county, or by State routes 32 and 66 which enter the county from the southeast, merging in the city of East Jordan and continuing along the south shore of Lake Charlevoix into the county seat at Charlevoix.

Historically, Charlevoix County was organized in 1869. It was named for the Jesuit missionary Pierre de Charlevoix, one of the first French explorers to visit and write about northern Lake Michigan.

IN THE SCENERY department alone, Charlevoix County rates second to none in the state. The land rises rapidly from the Lake Michigan shore, with the second highest elevation in Michigan--Mt. Pisgah--lying just south of Thumb Lake in the western part of the county.

This is the rugged wilderness area where elk have been reintroduced to Michigan and are thriving.

THE EASTERN half of the county is dominated by Lake Charlevoix, a 13-mile long body of water with the city of Charlevoix at its eastern extremity and Boyne City at the western end. The city of East Jordan lies at the end of the lake's South Arm, a narrow, picturesque body of water with many beautiful summer homes along its shores.

Other Lake Charlevoix communities include Ironton, where auto ferry service is offered across the South Arm. Horton Bay, famed for its Ernest Hemingway lore, and Advance, home of Top O' Michigan Rural Electric plant.

SEPARATED from Lake Michigan by Round Lake (within the city of Charlevoix) and the upper and lower Pine River Channels, Lake Charlevoix is a mecca for boating enthusiasts. There is usually a fair breeze for sailing, without the high seas which sometimes make Lake Michigan precarious for small craft.

Fishermen also find Lake Charlevoix much to their liking. Scrappy rainbow trout are to be found in increasing numbers in her crystal waters, and excellent small mouth bass catches are reported regularly. (Two years ago, an eight-pounder was taken near the C&O railroad bridge just off Charlevoix.)

The village of Ironton is noted for its perch runs, and although the number of perch in the lake is down substantially from what it was a few years ago, there are still some good size yellow-bellies taken summer and winter near Ironton.

During July and August, swimming is perhaps the most popular outdoor sport in the county. Dozens of fine swimming areas are located throughout the county, with three supervised beaches in the city of Charlevoix alone. An increasing number of surfers have found that the wind-swept Lake Michigan shore is an excellent place to practice their sport.

In addition, there are many fine public and private camping areas in the county, including Young State Park on the Boyne City Road between Charlevoix and Boyne City, Whiting Park on the south shore of the lake and Bells Bay state campground on the Lake Michigan shore four miles south of Charlevoix.

The federal government recently has earmarked $100,000 for the development of 170 new campsites at Young State Park, the money to be matched by the state.

Young State Park offers modern sanitary and shower facilities, and electricity is available. Visitors to Whiting Park and Bells Bay "rough it."

THE CITY of Charlevoix has a year-round population of 2,751, but the figure swells (Continued on Pg. 3)

to several times that during the summer. Since before the turn of the century Charlevoix has been a mecca for vacationers from throughout the Midwest. Two private clubs--the Belvedere Club and the Chicago Club--are located on the shores of Round Lake and Lake Charlevoix within city limits. Each boasts dozens of elegant summer homes many of which have been in the same families for generations.

More recently, many excellent motels have erected in the city, offering excellent accommodations for the short-term vacationer and travelers. The city also has a number of fine restaurants which have become famous throughout the state.

CHARLEVOIX County also has become famous in recent years as center of Michigan's ski industry. Four superb ski areas are located in the central part of the county--Boyne Mountain, Thunder Mountain, Walloon Hills and Barn Mountain (formerly Avalanche), all of which afford excellent skiing usually from late November through March. Many skiers also make Charlevoix County their headquarters even when skiing at Boyne Highlands or Nubs Nob, just north of Petoskey.

Ski hills range from bunny slopes where the novice can try his wings to rugged grades which even the expert finds challenging.

IN THE 1960's, two major industrial developments have taken place in Charlevoix County. Consumers Power Co. has erected its first nuclear power plant at Big Rock Point on the Lake Michigan shore five miles northeast of Charlevoix. Medusa Portland Cement Co. of Cleveland expects to complete construction of its $25 million Charlevoix plant this summer. It is located on South Point, across the bay from the city of Charlevoix.

In addition, many light manufacturing industries have found it profitable to locate in Charlevoix County, providing year-round job opportunities for thousands of people.

So welcome to Charlevoix County. Whether you have come north for a day, a week, a summer or a lifetime, you'll find plenty to keep you busy.

Mormons Put Up 1st Cabins at Boyne

Boyne City's history goes back to 1856 when John Miller, his wife and two sons along with John Dixon sailed across Pine Lake (now Lake Charlevoix) from Charlevoix to settle at North Boyne.

Miller, originally from Ireland, found some vacant cabins formerly occupied by the Mormons who were forced to leave and moved in with his family and Dixon.

MILLER CALLED the area "River Boyne" after a river in Ireland where a decisive battle was fought.

Indian Past Lives Again at Greensky Hill Church

BUILT OF native cedar logs, the Greensky Hill Indian Methodist Church appears today much as it did in 1860 when it was completed.

JAY OLIVER, a member of Greensky Hill Church, stands near ancient twisted maple trees which once marked the site of Indian ceremonies.

CHARLEVOIX - Lovers of Indian lore will be fascinated by a visit to Greensky Hill Methodist Church, located high on a bluff near Susan Lake, northeast of Charlevoix on the old Petoskey Road.

Built of hand-hewn logs, the church was completed in 1860 on the site of an ancient tribal meeting ground.

Nearly stand nine gigantic maple trees in a circle. Their lower limbs were bent outward with thongs when they were saplings as a symbol of peace among Indian tribes in the area.

SERVICES are conducted each Sunday during the summer at 9:30 a.m. by the Rev. Leona Winegarden, pastor of the Charlevoix Methodist Church. The services are conducted in English, with several hymns sung in the Ottawa language.

The mission church was built by Peter Greensky, an Indian brave who received his Christian training at the Methodist settlement of Bay Mills in the Upper Peninsula. In 1838, Greensky moved to the Lower Peninsula to take part in a Protestant movement then underway in the Grand Traverse Bay area.

Later, Greensky became dissatisfied with the mission and decided to establish a church of his own where he and his followers could worship as they saw fit.

Twenty-seven families joined him on the trek north, through Lake Michigan, Pine River Channel and Round Lake into Pine Lake (now Lake Charlevoix). They came upon the Council Trees where their ancestors had once smoked the peace pipe and decided this would be the site of their church.

a rude shelter of boughs covered with cedar bark. In 1850, work began on the present church. Although the logs were cut from the surrounding woods, the windows and other hardware had to be transported from Traverse City in canoes, and then carried by hand two miles overland from the Lake Charlevoix shore to the hilltop where the church stands.

The building is 26 by 32 feet and has eight windows. The logs are all notched at the ends to make a snug fit and the crevices have been filled with wood and mud.

THE TINY church has had its ups and downs over the years. Sometime back, a parcel of land including the famed Council Trees was purchased by an adjoining farmer. However, the church recently has been able to purchase back some of the property it lost, inspite of a membership of less than 25.

Members also have built a meeting house on the grounds, where church socials and banquets are held. Last year, the old wood-burning stove in the church was replaced by an oil space heater.

Another recent project has been the planting of a new circle of Council Trees adjacent to the church.

Visitors to the area will find it interesting to visit the old Greensky Hill Indian cemetery overlooking Susan Lake, named for Peter Greensky's wife. The older graves, all facing East, are marked off with wooden fences and or rude wooden crosses.

Hunting For Petoskey Stones

CHARLEVOIX -- Charlevoix's Lake Michigan beaches are a prime hunting ground for the elusive Petoskey stone--the state stone of Michigan.

Formed millions of years ago, the stones actually are petrified "colony corals" which lived when northern Michigan was at the bottom of a tropical sea.

Although it is named for the city of Petoskey, the stones are plentiful--if you have a sharp eye--many places along the northern Lake Michigan shore. Some excellent stones have been found at Bells Bay, about five miles south of Charlevoix.

When polished, the stones make beautiful earrings, cufflinks and brooches. Larger stones may be used as paperweights or door stops.

PETOSKEY stones are easiest to spot when they are wet, since moisture brings out the hexagonal (six-sided) pattern of the original coral. An uncut Petoskey stone may sometimes appear as an ordinary rock covered with tiny bumps.

Other stones, particularly those at the water's edge, clearly show the hex lines which are the mark of a true Petoskey specimen.

PETOSKEY stones may look like this when you find them on the Lake Michigan shore.

POLISHED, the stones make attractive pieces for jewelry and other decorations. Kits are available to hand-polish the stones.

Two-Eleven Bridge Street
Charlevoix The Beautiful

VISITORS and natives alike are fascinated by the Pine River Channel bridge which raises several times a day to let ships pass in and out of Charlevoix Harbor. This view was taken west of the channel from the rear deck of the Beaver Islander.

Our Fascinating Bridge

CHARLEVOIX --- No visit to Charlevoix is complete without seeing the bascule bridge over Pine River Channel raise her steel and concrete arms to let a vessel pass in or out of Charlevoix Harbor.

Maintained by the State Highway Department, the bridge is manned 24 hours a day, 12 months a year by a team of three bridge tenders and a relief man.

When in place, the bridge carries U.S. 31 traffic north and south through the city of Charlevoix.

IT IS RAISED whenever a vessel to high for clearance must pass between Round Lake and Lake Michigan. Three blasts of a boat's whistle is the signal that a boat operator wants the bridge opened. The bridge tender responds in kind and sets in motion the gigantic mechanism which lifts the twin portals to let her pass.

THE FIRST STEP in the procedure is the turning on of warning lights and bells at the bridge approaches. Gates are dropped across the highway and the sidewalks and a road barrier raises as if by magic from the pavement.

When this is done, the tender manipulates levers which activate machinery under the street surface which move weights to raise the bridge.

On an average, it takes about three minutes to raise and lower the bridge to let a boat pass. However the time can vary, depending on the speed of the vessel or how many boats wish to pass through at one time. The bridge has been opened as long as 20 minutes to let a big lake freighter through.

TRAFFIC pileups sometimes occur on each side of the bridge, particularly during the busy summer season.

This is why the State Highway Department recently reiterated its instructions to the tender not to open the bridge if the only object on a boat too high for passage is a collapsible radio antenna.

Sometimes in the past, operators of "puddle jumpers" have whistled for the bridge to open, just to let their passengers see the bridge in motion. Fortunately for motorists, the Highway Department has turned thumbs down on such shenanigans.

In summer there is sufficient channel traffic to let everyone see the bridge in motion, even if he is in Charlevoix only for an hour or two.

Take a Trip to Yesteryear

CHARLEVOIX--A visit to Castle Van Haver is almost like stepping backward 1,300 years into the era of fabled King Arthur and his knights of the roundtable.

Located on a broad plain overlooking Lake Charlevoix, Castle Van Haver opened last summer and is one of Charlevoix's newest tourist attractions.

THE MAGNIFICENT stone building on the site were built in 1917 by the late Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Loeb and were used initially as the farm buildings on their sprawling dairy ranch.

After 40 years of disuse, the property was purchased by John Van Haver, a Muskegon foundryman with a dream of turning the ruins into an art foundry and craft center with a genuine European flavor.

THE GROUNDS and buildings were cleared of debris, brush, trees and abandoned equipment. Roofs, windows, doors and floors were repaired and electricity, plumbing and heating units were installed.

Lawns were sodded, sidewalks and driveways laid out, and studios, workshops and craft shops set up.

The restoration and the establishment of the art foundry has taken seven years.

COAST GUARD Cutter Sundew glides out Pine River Channel with buoys (on deck) to mark Lake Michigan shipping lanes. Most of the buoys are removed each fall to prevent ice damage.

Coast Guardsmen Call Charlevoix Home

CHARLEVOIX - Charlevoix is the home of three U.S. Coast Guard activities in northern Michigan.

The Coast Guard Cutter Sundew, which is responsible for placing and maintaining all the buoys in northern Lake Michigan and Lake Huron, ties up at the city dock in Charlevoix.

Charlevoix also is the home of the Coast Guard's group headquarters in northern Michigan and is the site of the Charlevoix Coast Guard Station.

THE 180-FOOT Sundew has a crew of 45 men and five officers. Skipper is Lt. Cmdr. Jon Utthol.

In addition to buoy duties, the Sundew also breaks ice, takes part in search and rescue operations and enforces federal regulations governing maritime activities.

Throughout the summer, the Sundew will hold openhouse each Saturday, Sunday and holiday from 1 until 4 p.m. and from 6 until 8 p.m.

A TOTAL of 81 men presently are assigned to Group Charlevoix, including the 15 men at the Charlevoix Coast Guard Station and five men at the Beaver Island station.

The Group embraces 14 CG stations, including 11 light-houses (seven isolated) and three shore stations in northern Michigan. Group Commander is Lt. Dave Smith.

The Charlevoix Coast Guard station operates two boats, a 44-foot motor lifeboat and a 30-foot utility boat. The men on Beaver Island have a 40-foot utility boat.

Men assigned to the station take part in search and rescue operations, inspect pleasure boats and perform law enforcement functions. Charlevoix has been a center for Coast Guard activities in northern Michigan since before the turn of the century.

Kit-chi-ossining

Every spring, after leaving their winter camps, the Indians rendezvoused at The Place of the Big Rock on Little Traverse Bay just north of Charlevoix. They called it—"kit-chi-ossining."

Now, scientists, physicists and government leaders from all over the world visit Big Rock—to see Consumers Power Company's Nuclear Power Plant. You too are welcome at Big Rock. A Public Information Center there has displays, exhibits, films and lecturers to tell you the exciting story of the atom at work—bringing electricity to Michigan's Lower Peninsula. The Center is open every day.

Beautiful Beaver Awaits You

Island Steeped in Love

ST. JAMES--If you're looking for something different in the way of a vacation recreat, why not try Beaver Island -- America's Emerald Isle?

Located northwest of Charlevoix in the middle of northern Lake Michigan, Beaver Island offers everything an island should--and then some.

PHYSICALLY, Beaver Island is as attractive a chunk of island real estate as you're likely to find in North America. Fourteen miles long and from three to six miles wide, the island is still heavily forested. Visitors are amazed at the growth of the giant hemlocks and birches which line the island's 75 miles of narrow, gravel roads.

The island may be reached either by water or air. The motorship Beaver Islander carries mail, freight, passengers and cars from Charlevoix to St. James, 32 miles distant, on a regular schedule from the middle of April until the end of December. Fifteen-minute air service is available either from the Charlevoix or Harbor Springs airports. The island airport has two runways, one of them 3,500 feet long.

OTHERS choose to visit the island in their private yachts, weather permitting. The island has ample dock facilities in a natural, sheltered harbor at St. James.

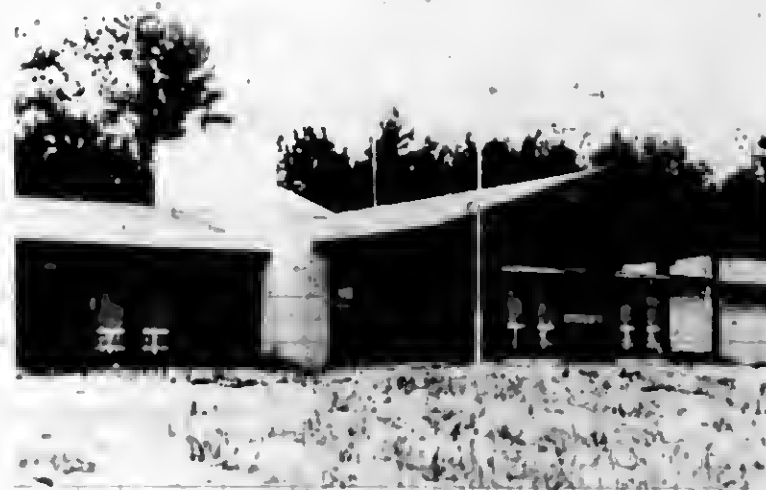

Transportation on the island is no problem if you bring your car. Otherwise, cars and motorcycles may be rented at St. James. Some vacationers prefer to enjoy the island scenery from a bicycle seat.

THE ONLY community of the island, St. James stretches along the shores of Paradise Bay for more than a mile. The village proper has two general stores, two bars, three restaurants and numerous motels, hotels, rental cottages, lodges and rooming houses. An excellent restaurant-bar is located one mile south of the village in what was formerly the Holy Cross parsonage.

LIKE MOST islands, Beaver Island has a mystery. Archeologists are still puzzled as to the origin and the fate of the first "mound builders" who made their home on Beaver Island. Their worship and burial mounds are still to be seen.

Later, the island was inhabited by Chippewa and Ottawa Indians, many of whom still make their home there.

band of Mormons led by James Jesse Strang moved to the island from Voree, Wisc., in order to practice their religion without interference. Strang, a rural New York lawyer, had himself crowned "King of the Earth", built a Mormon tabernacle and laid out the village of St. James, named after himself.

However King Strang proved to be a dictatorial ruler. He outlawed the use of tea, tobacco and liquor on the island, instructed the women to wear bloomers instead of long skirts and legalized polygamy.

The Irish mainlanders were ghast at his high-handed dictums and eventually Strang's own people turned against him. Following his assassination June 16, 1856, by one of his followers, the Irish moved in, bodily evicting some 2,000 of his followers.

Before long the island was populated entirely by Irish fishermen, whose descendants make up the bulk of the island population today. If you listen to a native Beaver Islander talk, you'll catch a trace of the brogue his ancestors brought over from the Auld Sod.

At one time, the wooded island was visited daily by Great Lakes steamers, since it was a convenient place to stop and pick up firewood for their boilers en route from Chicago to Detroit.

Although the fishing industry is not what it once was, at least one commercial fisherman still operates out of St. James bringing in excellent catches of whitefish.

HOWEVER, the main industry today is tourism. Americans by the thousands have found on Beaver Island the peace and solitude which have

Russian Nobleman Escaped to Beavers

ST. JAMES--Many Beaver Islanders have stories to tell about the late Dr. Feodore Protar, a Russian nobleman who found his Shangri-la on America's Emerald Isle.

The son of a wealthy family, Dr. Protar was sent to Siberia by the Czarist government for his liberal ideas. He managed to escape from Russia in the guise of a priest, making his way to Germany where he spent several years.

IN THE LATTER half of the last century he emigrated to the United States, where he published a German language newspaper in Illinois.

He had no formal medical training, but was fascinated by the healing arts and studied medicine on his own.

ONCE he took a trip aboard a Lake Michigan steamer which visited Beaver Island. It was love at first sight.

He later wrote to friends that the island was "the breeding place of, whitefish and Gallaghers."

Before long, Dr. Protar disposed of his newspaper interests, bought some farm equipment and moved to the island, never to leave again.

However he never farmed. Shortly after he arrived he found a farm family which could make better use of the equipment than he would and gave it to them. Instead, he became the island's only "doctor", treating his patients' aches and pains, stitching their wounds and setting all but vanished from other vacation retreats. Attractive summer cottages have sprung up along the Lake Michigan shore as well as on some of the islands seven inland lakes.

This summer, American Central Land Co. of Lansing has given the tourist industry a big push by subdividing several thousands of acres on the island for resort development.

THE 54-SQUARE mile island still teems with wildlife, including grouse, rabbits, squirrels, ducks, geese, deer, and wild turkeys and the hunting is superb.

Fishing in the Beavers is generally excellent. Three of the islands inland lakes yield game and panfish. The perch run in Paradise Bay each spring and fall is one of the finest on the Great Lakes.

Bass and pike fishing in the waters off nearby Garden Island attract many fishermen by motor launch from St. James. Lake Genesareth on Beaver Island has a public fishing site, with a boat launching ramp.

their broken bones. Although his pay was necessarily meager, Dr. Protar never seemed to want for money. Stories are still current on the island that he continued to receive an income from his family estate in Russia during his residency on Beaver Island.

DR. PROTAR's log home still stands, pretty much as it was at the time of his death in 1926. It is now owned by the Beaver Island Historical Society. Pat Bonner, a close friend of Protar's, lives across the road, and will open the door if anyone wants to look around inside.

Nearby is Dr. Protar's tomb, erected by the grateful inhabitants of the island. It consists of a fieldstone enclosure around his grave and a bronze plaque bearing his likeness.

Behind the tomb is a huge boulder upon which Dr. Protar used to sit in a chair and read. It was close to the tracks of a lumber railroad which once ran the length of the island.

Dr. Protar also had another favorite "study" on the island, a clearing in the woods at the foot of Bonner's Bluff, a steep escarpment which drops off to the western shore of the island. The clearing actually was a tiny island in the middle of a flowering spring, reached by rustic bridges.

After his death, a well-meaning islander fenced it off as a memorial to the doctor, but the fence kept out browsing deer as well as intruders.

For Thrills, Ride the Sand Dunes

ATWOOD -- Sand dune rides--long a popular form of recreation in western Michigan--are available at this Antrim County community 12 miles south of Charlevoix. Operated by Melvin Essenberg, "Spider Sand Dune Rides," offers a scenic thrill-tour of the Lake Michigan shore.

THE ROUTE takes passengers past an old Indian campground where pottery fragments have been found and near the site where a Great Lakes freighter sank during a storm.

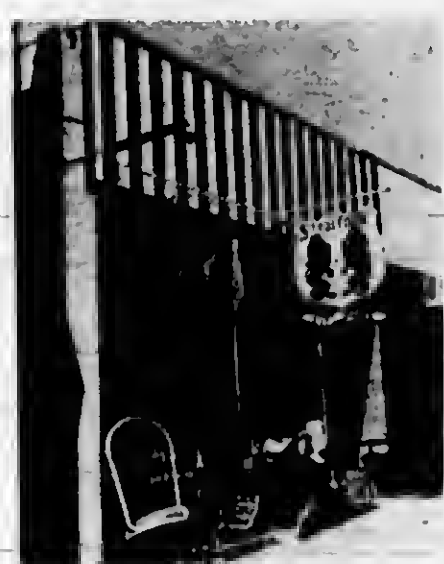

ESSENBERG says the greatest testimony to the popularity of the rides comes at the end of the tour.

Steelhead Trout Back, But Anglers Seek Bass

by Glen Sheppard

Though the return of steelhead trout to Lake Charlevoix and Little Traverse Bay is still the most exciting news on the sport fishing front, scrappy smallmouth bass remain the major target for most anglers.

This spring steelhead fishermen had fabulous luck on the Jordan, Boyne and Bear rivers, and in Lake Charlevoix and Little Traverse Bay. Documented catches of fish weighing up to 13 pounds were made.

SUMMERTIME fishing for the savage-fighting steelhead is always less than good, however. So in July and August about the only trout caught in the lakes are taken by bass fishermen who just happen to get lucky.

The Lake Charlevoix area is splattered with smallmouth hotspots. The most consistent producers are areas of the South Arm near Iron-ton.

UNDOUBTEDLY the most proven method for taking the plucky smallmouths and an occasional steelhead is to troll just off the shore. Troll slow with Mepps spinner, Jie A Do, Rapala, small flatfish or Dardavel.

Sometimes you'll snag a surly pike as you work your lure around woodpiles.

It's the kids' game to please, try dunking them off locks or near weirs in rock bass and perch. One of 'em is apt to nail a four-pound bass, though. So be prepared to blush.)

IF YOU hanker to try some of Walloon Lake's reknown angling you can rent a boat in the village, or launch your own at several public sites. Walloon continues to produce some of the biggest bass in northern Lower Michigan.

STREAM fishermen will find the trout fishing slow on the lower end of the Jordan river, guide Ted Kotowski reports. But, he says, some nice catches of brownies are coming from the headwaters.

The short section of the Boyne river that is still open to the public is also reported to be producing fine trout fishing.

IF YOUR fancy runs more to worm dunking, there are plenty of small creeks around the harbor trout. You can try Stoney, Deer, Monroe, the Bear out of Walloon Lake, and several that feed into the Jordan.

Worm dunkers also have a good time off the Pine River breakwaters and the railroad bridge, where they can sit and soak up the charm of the Charlevoix harbor and luxury yachts.

If you feel more confident fishing small lakes there's no shortage of them in the Charlevoix-Ellsworth area.

THERE IS still a handful of virtually unexploited small lakes known by only a few fishermen. Pike weighing in the 20 pound class and bass that top five pounds come from them.

But to reveal their whereabouts in print would be a violation of an angler's most sacred oath. So dig out a map or buy a native fisherman a drink and find them yourself.

Here's a list, though, of a few of the smaller lakes that are better known and guaranteed to have fish in them:

--Lake 26 (Lake Marlon), for pike, bass, panfish.
--Nowland Lake, for pike, bass, panfish.
--Six Mile Lake, for pike, bass and muskie.
--Ellsworth Lake, for pike, bass and panfish.
--Adams Lake for pike and panfish.
--Deer Lake for bass and pike.

IF YOU'RE looking for real fishing adventure journey to Beaver Island. Once in St. James you can rent a small boat to take you into the bays of Garden and Hog Islands.

These bays are among the nation's top-ranked smallmouth hotspots. However, there's no guarantee you'll find the bass in the shallows and hungry. When the fishing's good, it's fantastic. But when it's bad, it's as bad as anywhere else.

There is also reported to be some good fishing on some of the smaller inland lakes on Beaver Island. When you get to St. James ask around and see where they are hitting.

A-Plant Tours Popular

CHARLEVOIX--One of the prime tourist attractions in the Charlevoix area is Consumer's Power Co.'s Big Rock Point nuclear power plant. Situated five miles northeast of Charlevoix via U.S. 31 on the Lake Michigan, the plant is one of the first in the world to generate electricity by means of nuclear fission.

SINCE the information center at the plant opened in 1961, Consumers has played host to more than 442,000 persons, 62,900 of whom visited the site in 1966 alone.

Chuck England, director of the Information Center at the plant, says visitors are welcome from 8 a.m. through 5 p.m. seven days a week during the summer.

ALTHOUGH tours of the atomic reactor itself are not practicable, visitors are welcome to visit many cutaway displays of plant operations and sit in on a lecture-motion picture presentation of how the plant converts atomic energy into electricity for home and industrial use.

The plant uses heat from uranium fuel packs to make steam, which in turn operates a giant turbine to create electricity. The power generated is fed into Consumers network of power lines across Michigan, and is utilized far beyond the immediate Charlevoix area.

THE CITY of Charlevoix is unique, since it draws on power supplied not only by the ultra-modern Big Rock plant, but also from an old hydro-electric plant at Bel-laire.

England emphasizes that there is absolutely no difference in the electricity generated at the Big Rock Point plant and that of other generating facilities. The only difference is the source of heat.

In the past year, Consumers also has been making radioactive cobalt as a by-product. The cobalt is used in medical research and in the treatment of cancer.

Outside the Information Center is an observation platform where visitors can scan Lake Michigan and the entrance to Little Traverse Bay through high-powered telescopes.

Charlevoix young people acting as guides at the plant this year are Jim Stewart, Gerald Boss, Dennis Carr and Judy Cellner.

Land Co. Sells Lots

ST. JAMES -- Beaver Island is undergoing its most dramatic change since King Strang and his Mormons settled there in the 1840's.

The 54 - square mile island is the site of the largest land development project in the Midwest. Recreational Properties Inc., affiliated with American Central Land Co. of Lansing, is handling the 1,000-acre development called Port St. James along Font Lake and the northwest portion of the island along Donegal Bay.

Along with developing the land and building between 40 and 50 miles of roads to service the area, the corporation offers many extras to persons who buy lots. Among other things these persons find a swimming pool, a riding stable with eight horses and a golf course at their disposal.

Hundreds of persons, including many from Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin, have already bought lots within the development.

MUCH OF the attraction to buyers lies in the seclusion the island offers. As an escape from commercialism, the island affords a slow, peaceful way of life. Although the development is geared to this seclusion, both Donegal Bay and Font Lake are only minutes away from both the airport and St. James Harbor.

This seclusion is coupled with the excellent hunting and fishing areas to make the island a perfect vacation spot. Miles of untouched forests where deer, wild turkeys, grouse and rabbits are equaled only by the clear, blue fishing waters where smallmouth bass, bluegills, and pike are pulled up by the thousands every year. Add still another attraction -- the miles of natural sandy beaches.

- Become an Islander -

A Family Vacation Land

Once on Beaver Island, life can take a new meaning with relaxing, hunting, picnicking, swimming, fishing, or delving into the romance of the past. There is swimming, hiking, horseback riding, and an inexhaustible supply of subjects for the camera for such scenic spots, wild life, and the quaintness of "old Ireland" found in other places in America.

Fishing

Few areas have more to offer the angler who will be thrilled with the big Lake Michigan perch, bass, and trout in spring and fall and the small, no-motored, Island lakes are teeming with smallmouth bass, bluegills and rock bass. And when the catch is served, these fish from the crystal clear waters of Lake Michigan are a gourmet's delight.

Hunting

Beaver Island is a hunter's paradise with its 1,500 deer forest, pheasant, quail, and grouse, and the small, no-motored, Island lakes are teeming with smallmouth bass, bluegills and rock bass. And when the catch is served, these fish from the crystal clear waters of Lake Michigan are a gourmet's delight.

Brook Trout Golf - Mushrooms

Fox Lake, one of the most beautiful lakes on the island, provides good trout fishing and produces speckled beauties up to 14 inches in length.

For the golfer there's an intriguing nine-hole golf course that can be more challenging than it appears.

The island, too, is a newly discovered paradise for mushroom hunters. There are hundreds of acres of ideal mushroom country and gathering these delicacies is becoming increasingly popular with our guests on the island.

Glenn Kenney Elected School Board Chief

CHARLEVOIX -- Glenn Kenney was elected school board president at the Board of Education's meeting Monday night. He succeeds Darrell Dinwiddie, Vice president is Jack Rader, Frances Hooper was re-elected secretary and Dale Boss was re-elected treasurer.

The board approved an application for the lease/purchase of three portable classrooms for use this fall. The carpeted classrooms are 24 by 40 feet with redwood exteriors and cost $12,070 per unit.

ALTHOUGH the board presently has no operating millage to pay for the classrooms, Superintendent Rex Milligan suggested the school place an application for the rooms hoping the millage will be passed in the Aug. 7 election. If the millage doesn't pass, Milligan said the order would be cancelled.

IN OTHER action the board reviewed final construction and equipment costs of the new library. Total construction and

THE BOARD also: Approved the purchase of 120 lockers for the high school at $12.75 each.

Agreed to wait a few weeks to see what happens to the gym floor before taking any steps to fix it. Board members said humidity may be aggravating the situation and they would see if drier weather conditions would restore the floor to the former shape.

BRUCE MALPASS was chosen as vice president, a position held before by William Porter, and William Braasch was re-elected secretary.

Newcomer Robert Prebble was elected treasurer.

Court OK's Annexation of Ironton

CHARLEVOIX -- Annexation of the Ironton School District (Exline No. 4) to Charlevoix has been upheld by Charles Brown of the 13th Judicial Circuit.

Judge Brown's decision said, in effect, that since education is the responsibility of the state, the state has the power to rearrange school districts as it sees fit, with or without the consent of the people.

THE ANNEXATION was approved by voters last fall, but a judicial decision on the legality of the merger was asked by the Ironton School District, the Board of Education and Howell Parsell, Earl Kroll, Sam Alexander and William Cooper, all residents of the area to be annexed.

Contacted at his Ironton home, Cooper said the plaintiffs probably would await the outcome of a similar case pending in Kent County before deciding whether to appeal.

Only one school is affected by the annexation -- the Ironton Elementary School for grades 1 through 6 -- which became a part of the Charlevoix system July 1.

THE SUIT was brought against the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District, Superintendent Charles Robinson and Charlevoix Public Schools.

In reaching his decision, Judge Brown drew heavily on an earlier decision in a similar case in Cass County, written by Circuit Judge Chester J. Byrne.

The gist of Byrne's decision is that the citizens and board members who filed suit had no business doing so in the first place since "no person has a property interest in a public office, which office may be, and frequently is, terminated even during the term of an incumbent."

FURTHERMORE, Judge Byrne was quoted by Judge Brown as saying:

"There is no right in a citizen to be located in any certain school district, nor does a citizen have any property right in the territory, assets or boundaries of a school district."

"The power over school districts and public education is vested in the state, and the citizens are represented therein by their elected representatives in the State Legislature. The Legislature has the power to create and alter school districts and to divide and apportion the property thereof. The State can alter boundaries with or without the consent of the voters of the district and even if the citizens are not happy and protest."

"The citizen is always represented in the Legislature, and the acts of the Legislature within the Constitution and its powers are binding on all citizens."

Judge Brown's decision was co-signed by Edward H. Fenlon, Circuit Judge for the 33rd Judicial Circuit which includes Emmet County. Judge Fenlon was confronted with a similar situation in a lawsuit asking him to set aside an election annexing Resort Township to Petoskey. That suit was filed by the Resort Township School District.

Beaver Gets Fast Action From Ruppe

CHARLEVOIX -- If you want action, talk to your congressman -- personally.

This was a lesson brought home forcefully last Friday during Cong. Phil Ruppe's visit to Charlevoix.

FOR SOME months, the people of Beaver Island have been seeking permission to have an electronic "homing" device installed at their airport.

Permission was received from the State Department of Aeronautics, but for three months the request has languished in the offices of the Federal Communications Commission in Washington, D.C.

WHEN Jewell Gillespie of St. James heard Ruppe was to be in Charlevoix, he made a trip to the mainland to discuss the problem with him.

Ruppe listened, and then asked to use a telephone at the courthouse. Within minutes he had the F.C.C. on the phone, and had received assurance that the request would be approved -- pronto.

East Jordan Harvests Bumper Weed Crop

EAST JORDAN -- Council members held what Mayor Betty Robertson called "the shortest meeting in East Jordan's history" Tuesday evening.

Lasting only 25 minutes, the meeting began with Mayor Betty Robertson requesting that something be done about the growth of weeds on vacant lots and around vacant houses.

She asked Superintendent Russell Gee to either cut them down and charge the owners with the cost or to contact the owners asking them to remove the weeds.

HERE IS architect Jack Begrow's conception of what the former Turkey Wing restaurant on the channel will look like after remodeling. The building has been purchased by Begrow, attorney John Michael, Don Berlage and Charlevoix Properties for use as an office building. The group is seeking approval of the State Highway Department to build a boardwalk along the north side.

Shower Building Cost $12,000 Over Estimate

CHARLEVOIX -- Everything "costs more" than you expect nowadays.

The Charlevoix City Council opened bids for construction of a new shower-restroom building in East Park Monday night and found the lowest bid was $12,600 above anticipated costs.

THE COUNCIL also: Turned down a request by Walker Marina to have Lewis Gravelin appointed a city police officer at no cost to the city. Gravelin is a watchman at Walkers.

The Council didn't believe such action necessary.

APPROVED Mayor Foehlman's appointments of Alderman Nate Boss and Supervisor Lee Moerland to the Charlevoix Regional Planning Commission. Boss succeeds Jerry Whitley and Moerland succeeds Dan Gault.

TABLED a request by City Attorney John Michael, speaking on behalf of himself, Jack Begrow, Don Berlage and Charlevoix Properties to give the city's approval to a plan to construct a boardwalk over State Highway property adjacent to the former Turkey Wing restaurant.

THE three men and Charlevoix Properties, owned by Henry Hogan and Don Parsons, have purchased the building from Devitt Peters and plan to convert it into four office suites and one Bridge Street shop. The boardwalk will be necessary to provide access to the north side of the building. Michael said he was asking for council approval at the suggestion of the Highway Department.

$14,670 Is Chest Goal in 1967 Campaign

CHARLEVOIX -- The Board of Directors of the Charlevoix Community Chest has set the goal in this year's drive at $14,670, according to William Peck, president.

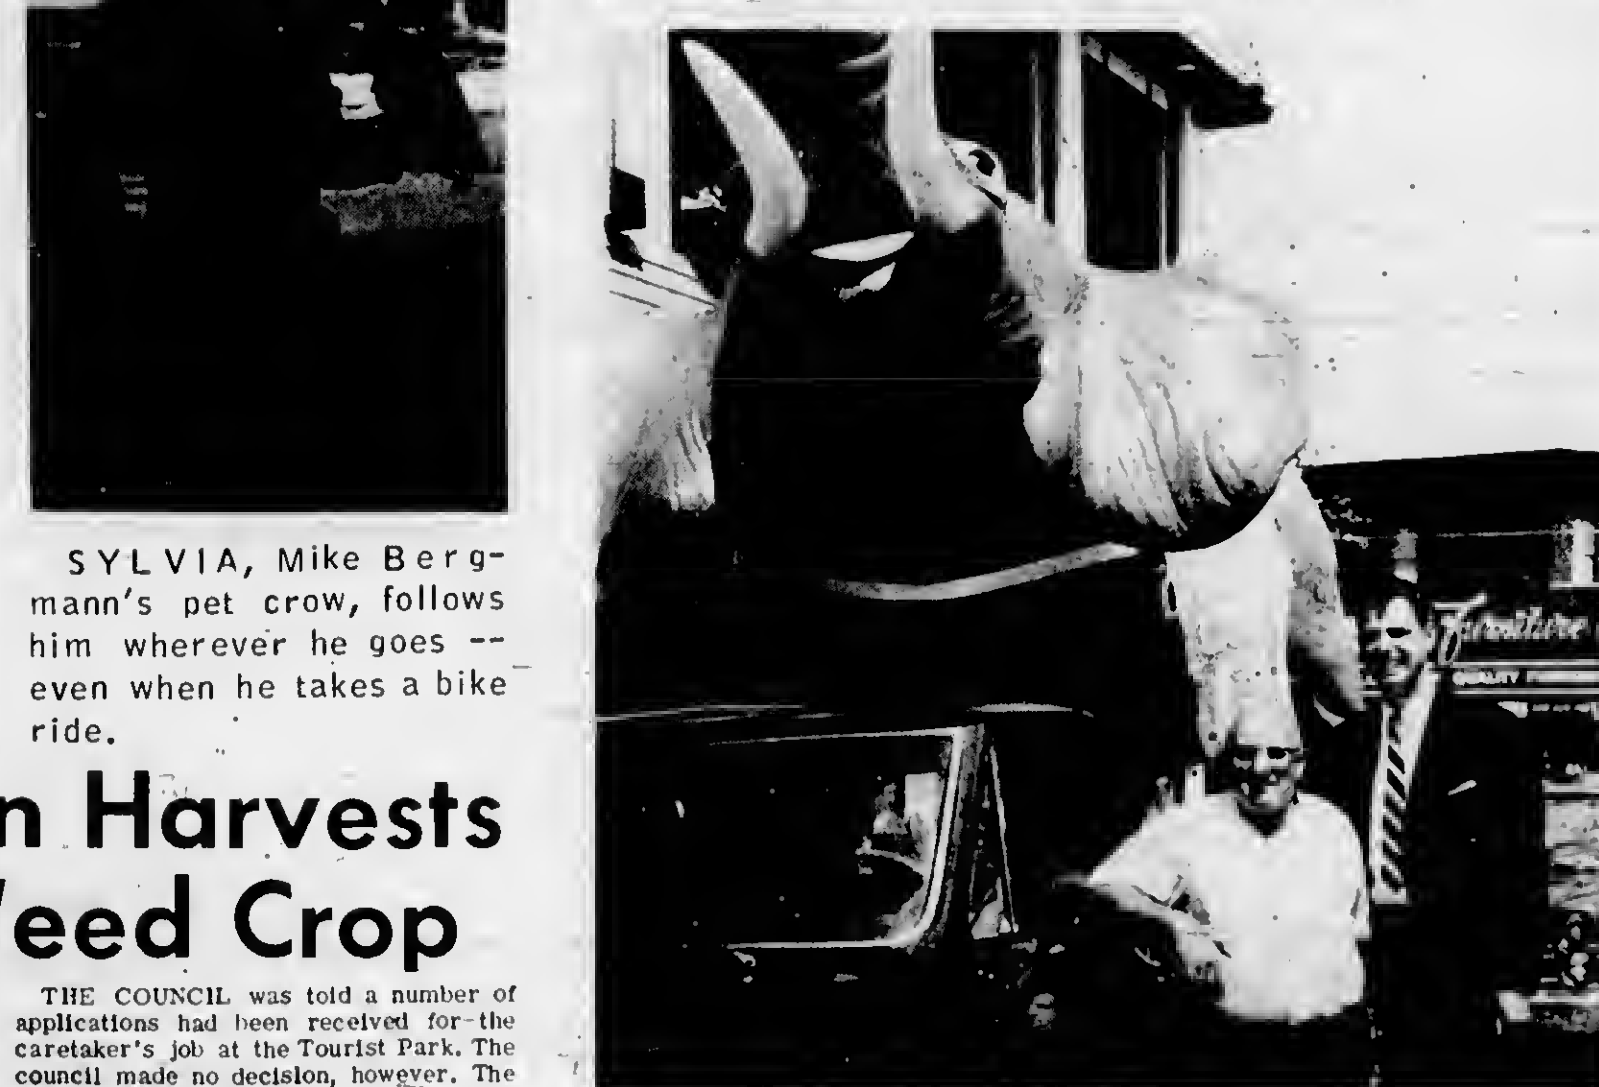

The money will be allocated among 12 service, civic and charitable organizations. They are Charlevoix Hospital, Retarded Children's Assn., Red Cross, Salvation Army, Michigan Children's Aid, Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, Community Nurse, Charlevoix Recreation Program, Michigan United Fund, Mt. Meadaba Recreation area and the Charlevoix Service Organization.

THE NEW GOAL is some $1,228 above last year's goal of $13,442. A total of $14,654.53 was donated in the 1966 drive, according to Mrs. Don Anders, executive secretary.

The drive will begin in August with solicitation of summer residents and summer shop keepers.

The city wide campaign is scheduled to get under way in mid-September.

Don Anders of Strout Healy is general chairman of this year's drive.

OSCAR STROUD's fibreglas GOP elephant was put to good use Friday to advertise the visit of Cong. Phil Ruppe to Charlevoix. Ruppe discussed government problems with residents at the courthouse Friday afternoon.

TETHERBALL is a favorite "between times" pastime for boys at Camp Charlevoix.

Today and we discovered that several mothers had not seen the name tapes, or had used iron-on name tapes or had used ink, and only the sewing on name tapes survived the washing. It was quite a mess with dozens of things coming back with no names on them.

THE GLORIOUS Fourth dawned dark and cloudy and cool with a misty rain. The morning found all the boys in the clubhouse playing a game. In the afternoon, the sun came out and it was warm and added much to the Annual Green-Grey track meet which was very exciting.

Inflation Has Its Uses

Inflation is a useful and necessary function. Its application is needed to bring out the beauty in certain classes of objects, the usefulness of many articles and appliances and the proper performance of others. A limited amount of inflation of certain persons' ego may work to their benefit. There is a point, however, where over-inflation is dangerous and often disastrous, whether it be a balloon, a tire, a self-inflating personal ego, or the gurgency of a nation. An over-inflated ego may lead to tyranny and oppression.

If we seek the counsel and guidance of the Church we are less likely to become obsessed with our own importance—become over-inflated. Truly great men were invariably humble men and much more often than not they depended upon the Church to supply them with a true sense of values.

Warns Merchants of 'Sucker List'

CHARLEVOIX -- Chamber of Commerce Secretary-Managers Archie Jagers warns Charlevoix merchants that they may be on the "sucker list" of a California publishing company.

Dayton says some merchants have received in the mail an invoice, billing them for advertising in the yellow pages of a classified directory.

"THE COMPANY, Classified Advertising, Publishers of Tarzana, Calif., mails out a proposal form. This is not a bill, invoice or proposal. It proposes that you send a stated amount of money (the Charlevoix C of C was "billed" $67) by a certain date in order to be listed in their California directory.

"The form has an illustration of an open book in yellow color which brings to mind the Michigan Bell Telephone Co.'s classified ads."

"MANY PEOPLE who advertise in the yellow pages of Michigan Bell believe this to be a statement from them. This is not so. This company has nothing to do with Michigan Bell," Dayton said.

He added that merchants would be wise to investigate before they invest.

State Claims Another Right

Circuit Judge Charles Brown's decision in the Ironton annexation case throws a new light on the relationship between the individual and the school district. Judge Brown held that the state is all-powerful when it comes to school re-districting and the only voice the individual has in such matters is through his elected representatives in Lansing.

If Judge Brown is correct in his assumption, then people in Charlevoix County and elsewhere in Michigan have wasted considerable time and effort in the past fighting for or against one proposed annexation scheme after another.

ACCORDING to Judge Brown: "The Legislature has the power to create and alter school districts and to divide and apportion the property thereof. The State can alter boundaries with or without the consent (or vote) of the citizens and even if the citizens are not happy or protest."

Judge Brown's decision came as the result of a suit filed last fall by the Ironton School District. Its Board of Education and several interested citizens asking that an election approving the annexation of the Ironton School District to Charlevoix be set aside on grounds that the election was unconstitutional.

THE PLAINTIFFS claimed that Ironton citizens were asked to vote outside of their own school district (the election was held in Charlevoix), that Michigan Act 289 under which the election was held is unconstitutional, that the election violated both the U.S. and State constitutions and that it constituted an unlawful expenditure of public money.

Judge Brown answered the allegations with four questions: --Did the plaintiffs have the right to file suit in the first place? --On what grounds is Act 289 unconstitutional? --Was the election conducted properly? --Was the election conducted in accordance with the Act?

THEN, AFTER ordering that Ironton's books be kept intact in case he is reversed by a higher court, Judge Brown pointed out that a citizen has no inherent right to be located in a certain school district, nor does he have a property right within a school district, and that the power over school districts and public education is vested in the state alone.

IT WOULD be too easy to condemn Judge Brown's decision as "creeping statism" or a "blow at grass-roots democracy." If he is right, and undoubtedly his decision will be tested in a higher court, then Charlevoixans have been badly mistaken as to their role in school reorganization decisions.

Quiet Dignity Be Hanged

By Bob Clock

IN ORDER to understand the following, you have to know something about me. I'm what you might be called an anomalous sort of guy. While I may raise a little hell at home from time to time, I go out in public, the image I hope to achieve is one of quiet dignity.

For example, when eating out I would no more think of creating a commotion by sending a slice of overdone beef or underdone pork back to the kitchen than I would by climbing the water tower or in my underwear, I eat whatever they give me--quietly--and if it's good I tell the waitress to thank the cook--quietly.

MAYBE I'm too much this way. Sometimes I wish I'd let me out in the kitchen if it would make things any easier for the management.

Compared to me, "Easy" Higgins--the quiet-dignity professor in "My Fair Lady"--is a loud-mouthed coxcomb. Do you have the picture? Quiet dignity is my motto, my standard, my aim, my goal and my hall mark.

But try as I might I have not been able to instill any sense of decorum whatsoever in my progeny, three-year-old Kathleen and eight-month-old Jennifer. When they join forces, they can turn a simple restaurant meal into a wild, screaming bacchanal that makes you want to crawl under the table.

TAKE LAST Friday night, for example. We hadn't eaten out in quite some time and it had been a long, hard day for both Judy and me.

"How about eating out?" I asked cheerfully when I came home from work.

Judy groaned.

"We don't have to make a big deal out of it," I explained. "Just give the kids their supper early and maybe they'll fall asleep and we can park the bus wherever we can catch them."

"We're not leaving them alone in the bus," Judy said staunchly. "You know what happened the last time."

I couldn't remember exactly what happened the last time, but it didn't sound like it did the last time.

Normally, of course, we get a baby sitter when we're going out, but since Chris Osterberg moved to Marquette, there are no sitters we can rely upon for last-minute assistance.

Where will we go? Judy asked, still reluctant. "We can't go around Charlevoix if we take the kids. Everybody knows us."

REMEMBER, I'm the guy who thrives on peace and quiet, and here all of a sudden we're up on the roof.

"You'd better take her outside until she sleeps down," Judy said finally. So outside we went to examine the scenery and take Katie's mind off her dreadful experience. When the stars appeared, she was in a good mood. When she saw the stars, she was in a good mood.

Now Judy's a very disturbing habit. When she's happy she turns on a loud, piercing squeal that sounds like a mouse caught in a garbage disposal. When she's unhappy, the squeal is just as loud, but longer. I don't know whether she was laughing or sad, she started squealing and again all eyes were on us. The kids at the next table were holding their hands over their ears.

"Be quiet, Judy," Judy commanded. "Give her your car keys."

Well, the keys helped some. She stopped dropping them on the floor 23 times in the next hour, letting out an ear-splitting scream every time she did so. "Perhaps the baby would like some...

Columnist Raps Medusa Plant

2400 Beechwood Drive Westlake, Ohio 44145 30 June 1967

Editor Charlevoix Courier Charlevoix, Michigan 49720

Dear Sir:

The enclosed article appeared in one of our Cleveland papers recently. Its content is certainly self-explanatory and without question expresses many of my views on the local cement plant. Having lived in Charlevoix for three short but very pleasant years, I can truly say that I, for one, was extremely sorry to see the Medusa plant near the Charlevoix shoreline. Now it appears that we not only have the destruction of our natural beauty but the problem of air pollution as well.

I feel that many of the citizens of Charlevoix will find the enclosed very interesting.

Sincerely,
Paul T. Anderson
LCDR, USCG

Following is the text of the column by Forrest Allen of the Cleveland Press, which Mr. Anderson thinks will be of interest to Charlevoix readers. The column appeared June 28, 1967.

AS ONE who cherishes the clear skies and waters of northern Michigan, I know Loomis as the administrative vice president of Medusa Portland Cement Co., the man who almost alone fought down the objections and persuaded Charlevoix local officials to make legal grants necessary to the plant's construction in Charlevoix.

Now it is built—the huge silos, the big stack, the long pier extending into the bay south of Charlevoix—the sum total forever tainting what was once a beautiful vista from the shore over Lake Michigan.

BUT it was more than the view that concerned the objectors. It was the 24-hour-a-day emissions of white dust that would be pouring out of that great stack. Now a friend sends a front page of the Charlevoix Courier of June 7.

In it is the sad story—and the story they want to plant there in the first place of the opposition of Loomis to Michigan's proposed air pollution code as it applies to the cement industry.

Loomis is quoted as saying the state health department, noting that Charlevoix is a "highly sensitive area," is suggesting limitations on dust almost twice as tough as the company had planned to use.

"The Charlevoix code would permit the plant to put out about five pounds of dust per square mile per month over a 30-mile radius from the stack," Loomis is quoted in the Courier. "The proposed state rule would reduce this amount to three pounds per month."

I AM especially interested in the Charlevoix cement plant for two reasons. First, I have been a frequent visitor to this area over a long period

THE NEW cement plant at Charlevoix is another one of those major defects for a public that tries to keep this land's natural beauties beautiful, that fights to keep the air and water of our recreational areas, at least, free from new and great pollution.

This plant is also another public defeat on the shores of Lake Michigan, following the despoliation of the Loomis Dunes by the great steel-makers.

I AM especially interested in the Charlevoix cement plant for two reasons. First, I have been a frequent visitor to this area over a long period

Residents of Aranmore Island Cling to Beaver Memories

CHARLEVOIX -- There's an island off the coast of Ireland where the old timers dream of returning some day to "the Beavers" and holding a few at the Shamrock and the Beacomber.

The island is called Aranmore, four miles seaward from Donegal, and is the home port for many old sea-faring men who used to visit northern Lake Michigan regularly on the early steamers.

MSGR. VICTOR Gallagher said he made a special point of visiting Aranmore during a three-week tour of Ireland in June. "I wasn't on the island two hours when old timers would come up to me on the street and ask, 'Sure, and are you the father from Beaver Island?'"

MSgr. Gallagher said he ran into many people familiar with Beaver Island, including a Mrs. Boyle whose brother, Mike McCally, is buried there. She herself once made a trip to the island to visit his grave.

A NATIVE Beaver Islander himself, MSgr. Gallagher said he spent many pleasant hours chatting with old sailors who remembered his grandfather.

"Sure, and wouldn't it be fun to be back on the Beavers tonight," they'd ask, their eyes twinkling.

MANY OF THEM couldn't believe that MSgr. Gallagher, who still has a trace of his Beaver Island accent, was an American.

"But you don't talk like one," one old woman protested. He said the residents of Aranmore are very like Beaver Islanders, not only in the way they talk but also in their outlook on life. "It's a friendly, relaxed easy-going place to visit," he said.

MSGR. GALLAGHER toured Ireland by auto and says three weeks isn't long enough to see it all. He plans to return next year.

Msgr. Victor Gallagher

He says the country is modernizing rapidly, with automobiles competing with horse and donkey-drawn vehicles for room on the narrow, hedge-lined roads. It is not unusual to see a modern home alongside a thatched-roof cottage.

IN THE MATTER of social legislation, MSgr. Gallagher says Ireland is far ahead of the United States.

"If you want to put in a bathroom, the government will pay two-thirds the cost," he said.

He said meals and lodging, particularly in rural Ireland, are extremely reasonable. "Bed and breakfast" on Aranmore, for example, costs something less than $2 a day. In the larger cities, like Dublin, it might cost $12 or $13 a day.

Getting to Ireland also is relatively inexpensive. MSgr. Gallagher said his round trip ticket from Chicago to Shannon Airport cost $270. The trip takes only six and one-half hours on Irish Airlines.

THE DAY before he left for Ireland, the former Beaver Islander was elevated to the rank of monsigneur by Pope Paul VI.

MSgr. Gallagher is in charge of the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine for Western Michigan, with headquarters in Die Rapids. His office trains lay workers in the field of religious education.

Beautiful Charlevoix County Has Something for Everyone

CHARLEVOIX -- There's something for everyone in Charlevoix County.

Located 270 miles northwest of Detroit, 350 miles northeast of Chicago, 54 miles southwest of Mackinaw City, 181 miles north of Grand Rapids, Charlevoix County lies on the east shore of Lake Michigan in the highlands of Michigan's lower peninsula. It may be reached by U.S. highway 31, which runs through the heart of the city of Charlevoix, by U.S. highway 131, which cuts through the western part of the county, or by State routes 32 and 66 which enter the county from the southeast, merging in the city of East Jordan and continuing along the south shore of Lake Charlevoix into the county seat at Charlevoix.

Historically, Charlevoix County was organized in 1869. It was named for the Jesuit missionary Pierre de Charlevoix, one of the first French explorers to visit and write about northern Lake Michigan.

IN THE SCENERY department alone, Charlevoix County rates second to none in the state. The land rises rapidly from the Lake Michigan shore, with the second highest elevation in Michigan--Mt. Pisgah--lying just south of Thumb Lake in the western part of the county.

This is the rugged wilderness area where elk have been reintroduced to Michigan and are thriving.

CHARLEVOIX'S beautiful yacht basin welcomes boaters from around the state. Water and electric power are included in the reasonable daily and weekly rates.

gan and are thriving.

THE EASTERN half of the county is dominated by Lake Charlevoix, a 13-mile long body of water with the city of Charlevoix at its eastern extremity and Boyne City at the western end. The city of East Jordan lies at the end of the lake's South Arm, a narrow, picturesque body of water with many beautiful summer homes along its shores.

Other Lake Charlevoix communities include Ironton, where auto ferry service is offered across the South Arm, Horton Bay, famed for its Ernest Hemingway lore, and Advance, home of Top O' Michigan Rural Electric plant.

SEPARATED from Lake Michigan by Round Lake (within the city of Charlevoix) and the upper and lower Pine River Channels, Lake Charlevoix is a mecca for boating enthusiasts. There is usually a fair breeze for sailing, without the high seas which sometimes make Lake Michigan precarious for small craft.

Fishermen also find Lake Charlevoix much to their liking. Scrappy rainbow trout are to be found in increasing numbers in her crystal waters, and excellent small mouth bass catches are reported regularly. (Two years ago, an eight-pounder was taken near the C&O railroad bridge just off Charlevoix.)

The village of Ironton is noted for its perch runs, and although the number of perch in the lake is down substantially from what it was a few years ago, there are still some good size yellow-bellies taken summer and winter near Ironton.

During July and August, swimming is perhaps the most popular outdoor sport in the county. Dozens of fine swimming areas are located throughout the county, with three supervised beaches in the city of Charlevoix alone. An increasing number of surfers have found that the windswept Lake Michigan shore is an excellent place to practice their sport.

In addition, there are many fine public and private camping areas in the county, including Young State Park on the Boyne City Road between Charlevoix and Boyne City, Whiting Park on the south shore of the lake and Bells Bay state campground on the Lake Michigan shore four miles south of Charlevoix.

The federal government recently has earmarked $109,850 for the development of 170 new campsites at Young State Park, the money to be matched by the state.

Young State Park offers modern sanitary and shower facilities, and electricity is available. Visitors to Whiting Park and Bells Bay "rough it."

THE CITY of Charlevoix has a year-round population of 2,751, but the figure swells (Continued on Pg. 3)

to several times that during the summer. Since before the turn of the century Charlevoix has been a mecca for vacationers from throughout the Midwest. Two private clubs--the Belvedere Club and the Chicago Club--are located on the shores of Round Lake and Lake Charlevoix within city limits. Each boasts dozens of elegant summer homes many of which have been in the same families for generations.

More recently, many excellent motels have erected in the city, offering excellent accommodations for the short-term vacationer and travelers. The city also has a number of fine restaurants which have become famous throughout the state.

CHARLEVOIX County also has become famous in recent years as center of Michigan's ski industry. Four superb ski areas are located in the central part of the county--Boyer Mountain, Thunder Mountain, Walloon Hills and Barn Mountain (formerly Avalanche), all of which afford excellent skiing usually from late November through March. Many skiers also make Charlevoix County their headquarters even when skiing at Boyne Highlands or Nubs Nob, just north of Petoskey.

Ski hills range from bunny slopes where the novice can try his wings to rugged grades which even the expert finds challenging.

IN THE 1960's, two major industrial developments have taken place in Charlevoix County. Consumers Power Co. has erected its first nuclear power plant at Big Rock Point on the Lake Michigan shore five miles northeast of Charlevoix. Medusa Portland Cement Co. of Cleveland expects to complete construction of its $25 million Charlevoix plant this summer. It is located on South Point, across the bay from the city of Charlevoix.

In addition, many light manufacturing industries have found it profitable to locate in Charlevoix County, providing year-round job opportunities for thousands of people.

So welcome to Charlevoix County. Whether you have come north for a day, a week, a summer or a lifetime, you'll find plenty to keep you busy.

Mormons Put Up 1st Cabins at Boyne

Boyne City's history goes back to 1856 when John Miller, his wife and two sons along with John Dixon sailed across Pine Lake (now Lake Charlevoix) from Charlevoix to settle at North Boyne.

Miller, originally from Ireland, found some vacant cabins formerly occupied by the Mormons who were forced to leave and moved in with his family and Dixon.

MILLER CALLED the area "River Boyne" after a river in Ireland where a decisive battle was fought.

After that it was called Boyne Village until 1904 when it became Boyne City.

BOYNE CITY now has a population of about 3,000 persons with a summer increase of about 2,000. The city's major industries include Boyne Products, Inc., Roble Industrial Courier Products, Howe's Leather Company and Mill's Cabin Mills.

In 1961 a new high school and elementary school was built and the city has 12 churches.

Boyne City has seven city parks including Whiting Park where children's swimming classes are held mornings and afternoons. Young State Park, two miles northwest of the city, features a bathing beach with a life guard on duty, picnic facilities, camp sites, and a park store on its 536 acres.

THE CITY also has four marinas, a new steel bulkhead dock with accommodations for crafts up to 60 feet long, tennis courts, shuffleboard and playground equipment, a nine hole golf course and riding stables.

Wednesday evenings at 8 p.m. band concerts are held at Memorial Park with a dance following the concerts.

Indian Past Lives Again at Greensky Hill Church

BUILT OF native cedar logs, the Greensky Hill Indian Methodist Church appears today much as it did in 1860 when it was completed.

JAY OLIVER, a member of Greensky Hill Church, stands near ancient twisted maple trees which once marked the site of Indian ceremonials.

CHARLEVOIX - Lovers of Indian lore will be fascinated by a visit to Greensky Hill Methodist Church, located high on a bluff near Susan Lake, northeast of Charlevoix on the old Petoskey Road.

Built of hand-hewn logs, the church was completed in 1860 on the site of an ancient tribal meeting ground.

Nearly stand nine gigantic maple trees in a circle. Their lower limbs were bent outward with thongs when they were saplings as a symbol of peace among Indian tribes in the area.

SERVICES are conducted each Sunday during the summer at 9:30 a.m. by the Rev. Leona Winegarde, pastor of the Charlevoix Methodist Church. The services are conducted in English, with several hymns sung in the Ottawa language.

The mission church was built by Peter Greensky, an Indian brave who received his Christian training at the Methodist settlement of Bay Mills in the Upper Peninsula. In 1838, Greensky moved to the Lower Peninsula to take part in a Protestant movement then underway in the Grand Traverse Bay area.

Later, Greensky became dissatisfied with the mission and decided to establish a church of his own where he and his followers could worship as they saw fit.

Twenty-seven families joined him on the trek north, through Lake Michigan, Pine River Channel and Round Lake into Pine Lake (now Lake Charlevoix). They came upon the Council Trees where their ancestors had once smoked the peace pipe and decided this would be the site of their church.

THE FIRST structure was a rude shelter of boughs covered with cedar bark. In 1850, work began on the present church. Although the logs were cut from the surrounding woods, the windows and other hardware had to be transported from Traverse City in canoes, and then carried by hand two miles overland from the Lake Charlevoix shore to the hilltop where the church stands.

The building is 26 by 32 feet and has eight windows. The logs are all notched at the ends to make a snug fit and the crevices have been filled with wood and mud.

Another recent project has been the planting of a new circle of Council Trees adjacent to the church.

Visitors to the area will find it interesting to visit the old Greensky Hill Indian cemetery overlooking Susan Lake, named for Peter Greensky's wife. The older graves, all facing East, are marked off with wooden fences and or rude wooden crosses.

ever, the church recently has been able to purchase back some of the property it lost, inspite of a membership of less than 25.

Members also have built a meeting house on the grounds, where church socials and banquets are held. Last year, the old wood-burning stove in the church was replaced by an oil space heater.

Hunting For Petoskey Stones

CHARLEVOIX -- Charlevoix's Lake Michigan beaches are a prime hunting ground for the elusive Petoskey stone--the state stone of Michigan. Formed millions of years ago, the stones actually are petrified "colony corals" which lived when northern Michigan was at the bottom of a tropical sea. Although it is named for the city of Petoskey, the stones are plentiful--if you have a sharp eye--many places along the northern Lake Michigan shore. Some excellent stones have been found at Bells Bay, about five miles south of Charlevoix.

PETOSKEY stones may look like this when you find them on the Lake Michigan shore.

POLISHED, the stones make attractive pieces for jewelry and other decorations. Kits are available to hand-polish the stones.

When polished, the stones make beautiful earrings, cufflinks and brooches. Larger stones may be used as paperweights or door stops.

PETOSKEY stones are easiest to spot when they are wet, since moisture brings out the hexagonal (six-sided) pattern of the original coral. An uncut Petoskey stone may sometimes appear as an ordinary rock covered with tiny bumps.

Other stones, particularly those at the water's edge, clearly show the hex lines which are the mark of a true Petoskey specimen.

Fishing and camera enthusiasts alike find Sportsman's Park a favorite haunt. Besides offering anglers a chance to catch perch, bass and trout while relaxing on the Sportsman's Bridge, camera bugs are free to "shoot" any of the wildlife at the park including swans, deer and birds. A picnic area is also available.

Two-Eleven Bridge Street
Charlevoix The Beautiful

VISITORS and natives alike are fascinated by the Pine River Channel bridge which raises several times a day to let ships pass in and out of Charlevoix Harbor. This view was taken west of the channel from the rear deck of the Beaver Islander.

Our Fascinating Bridge

CHARLEVOIX --- No visit to Charlevoix is complete without seeing the bascule bridge over Pine River Channel raise her steel and concrete arms to let a vessel pass in or out of Charlevoix Harbor.

Maintained by the State Highway Department, the bridge is manned 24 hours a day, 12 months a year by a team of three bridge tenders and a relief man.

When in place, the bridge carries U.S. 31 traffic north and south through the city of Charlevoix.

IT IS RAISED whenever a vessel to high for clearance must pass between Round Lake and Lake Michigan. Three blasts of a boat's whistle is the signal that a boat operator wants the bridge opened. The bridge tender responds in kind and sets in motion the gigantic mechanism which lifts the twin portals to let her pass.

THE FIRST STEP in the procedure is the turning on of warning lights and bells at the bridge approaches. Gates are dropped across the highway and the sidewalks and a road barrier raises as if by magic from the pavement.

When this is done, the tender manipulates levers which activate machinery under the street surface which move weights to raise the bridge.

On an average, it takes about three minutes to raise and lower the bridge to let a boat pass. However the time can vary, depending on the speed of the vessel or how many boats wish to pass through at one time. The bridge has been opened as long as 20 minutes to let a big lake freighter through.

TRAFFIC pileups sometimes occur on each side of the bridge, particularly during the busy summer season.

This is why the State Highway Department recently reiterated its instructions to the tender not to open the bridge if the only object on a boat too high for passage is a collapsible radio antenna.

Sometimes in the past, operators of "puddle jumpers" have whistled for the bridge to open, just to let their passengers see the bridge in motion. Fortunately for motorists, the Highway Department has turned thumbs down on such shenanigans.

In summer there is sufficient channel traffic to let everyone see the bridge in motion, even if he is in Charlevoix only for an hour or two.

COAST GUARD Cutter Sundew glides out Pine River Channel with buoys (on deck) to mark Lake Michigan shipping lanes. Most of the buoys are removed each fall to prevent ice damage.

Coast Guardsmen Call Charlevoix Home

CHARLEVOIX - Charlevoix is the home of three U.S. Coast Guard activities in northern Michigan.

The Coast Guard Cutter Sundew, which is responsible for placing and maintaining all the buoys in northern Lake Michigan and Lake Huron, ties up at the city dock in Charlevoix.

Charlevoix also is the home of the Coast Guard's group headquarters in northern Michigan and is the site of the Charlevoix Coast Guard Station.

THE 180-FOOT Sundew has a crew of 45 men and five officers. Skipper is Lt. Cmdr. Jon Uthol.

In addition to buoy duties, the Sundew also breaks ice, takes part in search and rescue operations and enforces federal regulations governing maritime activities.

Throughout the summer, the Sundew will hold openhouse each Saturday, Sunday and holiday from 1 until 4 p.m. and from 6 until 8 p.m.

A TOTAL of 81 men presently are assigned to Group Charlevoix, including the 15 men at the Charlevoix Coast Guard Station and five men at the Beaver Island station.

The Group embraces 14 CG stations, including 11 light-houses (seven isolated) and three shore stations in northern Michigan. Group Commander is Lt. Dave Smith. The Charlevoix Coast Guard station operates two boats, a 44-foot motor lifeboat and a 30-foot utility boat. The men on Beaver Island have a 40-foot utility boat.

Men assigned to the station take part in search and rescue operations, inspect pleasure boats and perform law enforcement functions. Charlevoix has been a center for Coast Guard activities in northern Michigan since before the turn of the century.

Beautiful Beaver Awaits You

Island Steeped in Lore

ST. JAMES--If you're looking for something different in the way of a vacation re-

creat, why not try Beaver Island -- America's Emerald Isle?

Located northwest of Charlevoix in the middle of northern Lake Michigan, Beaver Island offers everything an island should--and then some.

PHYSICALLY, Beaver Island is as attractive a chunk of island real estate as you're likely to find in North America. Fourteen miles long and from three to six miles wide, the island is still heavily forested. Visitors are amazed at the growth of the giant hemlocks and birches which line the island's 75 miles of narrow, gravel roads.

The island may be reached either by water or air. The motorship Beaver Island carries mail, freight, passengers and cars from Charlevoix to St. James, 32 miles distant, on a regular schedule from the middle of April until the end of December. Fifteen-minute air service is available either from the Charlevoix or Harbor Springs airports. The island airport has two runways, one of them 3,700 feet long.

OTHERS choose to visit the island in their private yachts, weather permitting. The island has ample dock facilities in a natural, sheltered harbor at St. James.

Transportation on the island is no problem. If you bring your car, otherwise, cars and motorcycles may be rented at St. James. Some vacationers prefer to enjoy the island scenery from a bicycle seat.

THE ONLY community of the island, St. James stretches along the shores of Paradise Bay for more than a mile. The village proper has two general stores, two bars, three restaurants and numerous motels, hotels, rental cottages, lodges and rooming houses. An excellent restaurant-bar is located one mile south of the village in what was formerly the Holy Cross parsonage.

LIKE MOST islands, Beaver Island has a history. Archeologists are still puzzled as to the origin and the fate of the first "mound builders" who made their home on Beaver Island. Their worship and burial mounds are still to be seen.

Later, the island was inhabited by Chippewa and Ottawa Indians, many of whom still make their home there.

A Family Vacation Land

Once on Beaver Island, life can have a new meaning with fishing, hunting, picnicking, exploring, shooting pictures or delving into the romance of the past. There is swimming, hiking, horseback riding, and an inexhaustible supply of subjects for the camera fan such as scenic spots, wild life, and the quaintness of "Old Ireland" found no other place in America.

Fishing

Few areas have more to offer the angler who will be thrilled with the big Lake Michigan perch and bass caught in spring and fall and through the ice in winter. Inland lakes are teeming with smallmouth bass, blue gills and pike. And when the catch is served, these fish from the crystal clear waters of Lake Michigan are a gourmet's delight.

Hunting

Beaver Island is a hunter's paradise with its 1,000 deer herd inviting archers and riflemen. Ruffed grouse and duck offer sport for the small game hunter. For those hardy individuals who like the chase, there is the excitement of fox, coyote, and rabbit hunting with dogs during the winter months.

Brook Trout - Golf - Mushrooms

Fox Lake; one of the most beautiful lakes on the island, provides good trout fishing and produces speckled beauties up to 14 inches in length.

For the golfer there's an intriguing nine-hole golf course that can be more challenging than it appears.

The island, too, is a newly discovered paradise for mushroom hunters. There are hundreds of acres of ideal mushroom country and gathering these delicacies is becoming increasingly popular with our guests on the island.

band of Mormons led by James Jesse Strang moved to the island from Voree, Wisc., in order to practice their religion without interference. Strang, a rural New York lawyer, had himself crowned "King of the Earth", built a Mormon tabernacle and laid out the village of St. James, named after himself. However King Strang proved to be a dictatorial ruler. He outlawed the use of tea, tobacco and liquor on the island, instructed the women to wear bloomers instead of long skirts and legalized polygamy. The Irish mainlanders were aghast at his high-handed dictums and eventually Strang's own people turned against him. Following his assassination June 16, 1856, by one of his followers, the Irish moved in, bodily evicting some 2,000 of his followers.

Before long the island was populated entirely by Irish fishermen, whose descendants make up the bulk of the island population today. If you listen to a native Beaver Islander talk, you'll catch a trace of the brogue his ancestors brought over from the Auld Sod.

At one time, the wooded island was visited daily by Great Lakes steamers, since it was a convenient place to stop and pick up firewood for their boilers en route from Chicago to Detroit.

Although the fishing industry is not what it once was, at least one commercial fisherman still operates out of St. James bringing in excellent catches of whitefish.

HOWEVER, the main industry today is tourism. Americans by the thousands have found on Beaver Island the peace and solitude which have

Russian Nobleman Escaped to Beavers

ST. JAMES--Many Beaver Islanders have stories to tell about the late Dr. Feodore Protar, a Russian nobleman who found his Shangri-la on America's Emerald Isle.

The scion of a wealthy family, Dr. Protar was sent to Siberia by the Czarist government for his liberal ideas. He managed to escape from Russia in the guise of a priest, making his way to Germany where he spent several years.

IN THE LATTER half of the last century he emigrated to the United States, where he published a German language newspaper in Illinois.

He had no formal medical training, but was fascinated by the healing arts and studied medicine on his own.

ONCE he took a trip aboard a Lake Michigan steamer which visited Beaver Island. It was love at first sight. He later wrote to friends that the island was "the breeding place of whitefish and Galaghers."

Before long, Dr. Protar disposed of his newspaper interests, bought some farm equipment and moved to the island, never to leave again.

However he never farmed. Shortly after he arrived he found a farm family which could make better use of the equipment than he would and gave it to them. Instead, he became the island's only "doctor", treating his patients' aches and pains, stitching their wounds and setting all but vanished from other vacation retreats. Attractive summer cottages have sprung up along the Lake Michigan shore as well as on some of the islands seven inland lakes.

This summer, American Central Land Co. of Lansing has given the tourist industry a big push by subdividing several thousands of acres on the island for resort development.

THE 54-SQUARE mile island still teems with wildlife, including grouse, rabbits, squirrels, ducks, geese, deer, and wild turkeys and the hunting is superb.

Fishing in the Beavers is generally excellent. Three of the islands inland lakes yield game and panfish. The perch run in Paradise Bay each spring and fall is one of the finest on the Great Lakes. Bass and pike fishing in the waters off nearby Garden Island attract many fishermen by motor launch from St. James. Lake Genesareth on Beaver Island has a public fishing site, with a boat launching ramp.

Some Tips on Beating the Heat

Is the heat wearing you down?

It's hot in most of the United States in mid-summer. In the desert and in the south, it's even hotter, but by August it's often hot even in the mountains.

Regardless of whether one blames the heat or the humidity, it's still hot.

THERE'S nothing you can do about the outside temperature. Unless you're fortunate enough to have an air conditioned office or shop, home and auto, there's nothing much you can do about it inside either.

But there are some things you can do to be more comfortable--things that can help you beat the heat.

STAY OUT of the sun as much as possible, especially during the middle of the day when the rays are hottest. Wear light, loose clothing, the less the better. The ladies have an edge over the men in this respect. Drink more liquids than usual, but take extra salt only on your physician's advice, particularly if you have liver or kidney trouble or a heart condition.

Take a shower or dip in the pool once or twice a day to cool off. Get plenty of rest and sleep. Eat your regular diet and don't go overboard on cold cuts and salads unless you like them anyway.

GET UP EARLY in the morning to do your heavy work on the lawn or garden. Or work at dusk in the evening, but try to avoid heavy exertion during the hottest hours of the day.

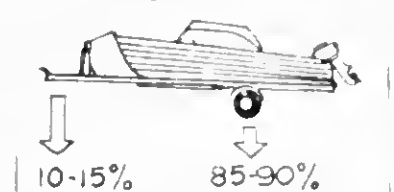

You need exercise in the summer as well as in the winter, but don't overdo it, especially on extra hot days. Don't overdo physical exertion, whether at work or play.

The more relaxed outdoor life of the summer months has many advantages to compensate for the heat. Stay relaxed and use common sense, and you can beat the heat--at least somewhat.

of recreation in western Michigan--are available at this Antrim County community 12 miles south of Charlevoix.

Operated by Melvin Essenberg, "Spider Sand Dune Rides," offers a scenic thrill-tour of the Lake Michigan shore.

THE ROUTE takes passengers past an old Indian campground where pottery fragments have been found and near the site where a Great Lakes freighter sank during a storm.

ESSENBERG says the greatest testimony to the popularity of the rides comes at the end of the tour.

"Kids simply refuse to get out, and teenagers start begging for money so they can ride again."

Rides are made in a Scout, a four-wheel drive vehicle made by International Harvester.

Boat Makes Two Trips Daily

CHARLEVOIX -- St. James on Beaver Island is a two-hour and 15-minute trip from the city dock in Charlevoix aboard the motorship Beaver Island.

WEEKDAYS and Saturdays, the boat leaves St. James at 7 a.m. and 2:45 p.m. Departure time from Charlevoix is 10 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. Sundays the boat leaves St.

James at 6 a.m., 11:30 a.m., and 5 p.m. Departure time from Charlevoix is 8:45 a.m., 2:15 p.m. and 7:45 p.m.

On the two-trip a day schedule, the Beaver Islander spends 45 minutes in port. With three trips a day, the ship ties up only 30 minutes.

Steelhead Trout Back, But Anglers Seek Bass

by Glen Sheppard

Though the return of steelhead trout to Lake Charlevoix and Little Traverse Bay is still the most exciting news on the sport fishing front, scrappy smallmouth bass remain the major target for most anglers.

This spring steelhead fishermen had fabulous luck on the Jordan, Boyne and Bear rivers and in Lake Charlevoix and Little Traverse Bay. Documented catches of fish weighing up to 13 pounds were made.

SUMMERTIME fishing for the savage-fighting steelhead is always less than good, however. So in July anglers just about the only trout caught in the lakes are taken by bass fishermen who just happen to get lucky.

The Lake Charlevoix shoreline is splattered with smallmouth hotspots. The most consistent producers are areas of the South Arm near Don-ton.

UNDOUBTEDLY the most proven method for taking the plucky smallmouths and in occasional steelhead is to troll just off the shore. Troll slow with Mepps spinner, Jie A Do, Rapala, small Flatfish or Daredevil.

Sometimes you'll snag a surly pike as you work your lure around weedbeds.

If it's the kids you want to please, try dunking worms off docks or near weeds for rock bass and perch. (One of '3m is apt to nail a four-pound bass, though. So be prepared to blush.)

IF YOU hanker to try some of Walloon Lake's renowned angling you can rent a boat in the village, or launch your own at several public sites.

Walloon continues to produce some of the biggest bass in northern Lower Michigan.

STREAM fishermen will find the trout fishing slow on the lower end of the Jordan river, guide Ted Kotovich reports. But, he says, some nice catches of browns are coming from the headwaters.

The short section of the Boyne river that is still open to the public is also reported to be producing fine trout fishing.

IF YOUR fancy runs more to worm dunking, there are plenty of small creeks around that harbor trout. You can try Stover, Deer, Monroe, the Bear out of Walloon Lake, and several that feed into the Jordan.

Worm dunkers also have a good time off the Pine River breakwaters and the railroad bridge, where they can sit and soak up the charm of the Charlevoix harbor and luxury yachts.

If you feel more confident fishing small lakes there's no shortage of them in the Charlevoix-Ellsworth area.

THERE is still a handful of virtually unexploited small lakes known by only a few fishermen. Pike weighing in the 20 pound class and bass that top five pounds come from them.

But to reveal their whereabouts in print would be a violation of an angler's most sacred oath. So dig out a map or buy a native fisherman a drink and find them yourself.

Here's a list, though, of a few of the smaller lakes that are better known and guaranteed to have fish in them:

--Lake 26 (Lake Marlon), for pike, bass, panfish.

--Nowland Lake, for pike,

bass, panfish.

--Six Mile Lake, for pike, bass and muskie.

--Ellsworth Lake, for pike, bass and panfish.

--Adams Lake for pike and panfish.

--Deer Lake for bass and pike.

IF YOU'RE looking for real fishing adventure journey to Beaver Island. Once in St. James you can rent a small boat to take you into the bays of Garden and Hog islands.

These bays are among the nation's top-ranked smallmouth hotspots. However, there's no guarantee you'll find the bass in the shallows and hungry. When the fishing's good, it's fantastic. But when it's bad, it's as bad as anywhere else.

There is also reported to be some good fishing on some of the smaller inland lakes on Beaver Island. When you get to St. James ask around and see where they are hitting.

Don't Tell Your Husband...

Robinson's have had four shipments arrive this week: Two from England, one by air and one by ship, one from France and one from Japan (our first from this enchanting land.)

There are boxes and vases (some for lamps), and chairs and tables and collectors pieces too. Netsuke and porcelain prints (birds and flowers) and paintings on silk and screens from the 18th century.

Buy Now-Tell Later!

We don't believe in subterfuge-only in surprise. When he sees what treasures you've found (and hears how little you paid) he'll forgive you and thank us.

A-Plant Tours Popular

CHARLEVOIX--One of the prime tourist attractions in the Charlevoix area is Consumer's Power Co.'s Big Rock Point nuclear power plant. Situated five miles northeast of Charlevoix via U.S. 31 on the Lake Michigan, the plant is one of the first in the world to generate electricity by means of nuclear fission.

SINCE the information center at the plant opened in 1961, Consumers has played host to more than 412,000 persons, 62,900 of whom visited the site in 1966 alone. Chuck England, director of the Information Center at the plant, says visitors are welcome from 8 a.m. through 5 p.m. seven days a week during the summer.

ALTHOUGH tours of the atomic reactor itself are not practicable, visitors are welcome to visit many outway displays of plant operations and sit in on a lecture-motion picture presentation of how the plant converts atomic energy into electricity for home and industrial use.

The plant uses heat from uranium fuel packs to make steam, which in turn operates a giant turbine to create electricity. The power generated is fed into Consumers network of power lines across Michigan, and is utilized far beyond the immediate Charlevoix area.

THE CITY of Charlevoix is unique, since it draws on power supplied not only by the ultra-modern Big Rock plant, but also from an old hydro-electric plant at Bellaire.

England emphasizes that there is absolutely no difference in the electricity generated at the Big Rock Point plant and that of other generating facilities. The only difference is the source of heat.

Camp, Picnic Grounds

Plenty of campgrounds are located in the Charlevoix area. The largest is Young's State Park located on Lake Charlevoix off the Boyne City Road. Across the lake is Whiting Park, located on the Ironston Ferry Road near Advance.

SOUTH of Charlevoix is Bell's Bay park where about 20 rustic campsites are located along the Lake Michigan shore. The campground offers "box toilets," but no electricity is available.

The East Jordan Harbor Trailer and Tourist Park is located on the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix at East Jordan.

Other private campgrounds also are open during the summer.

FOR PICNICING, there's Kennedy Park on U.S. 31 N. about five miles from Charlevoix on the Lake Michigan shore. Sportsman's Park on M-32 near the bridge in East Jordan, East Park, Ferry Avenue Beach, and the Michigan Avenue Beach in Depot Avenue Beach, Depot Beach and the Michigan Avenue Beach in Charlevoix, Norwood Township Park, Melrose Township Park on Walloon Lake, and Memorial Park in East Jordan.

EJ Industry

Among East Jordan's industry is Mt. Clemens Metal Products which manufactures metal stampings, Circuit Controls, which produces electric switches and wiring harnesses, East Jordan Iron Works, which makes castings, and heavy and light machine shop finish products, and East Jordan Cannog Company, which puts up vegetables and fruits.

Charlevoix has 25 miles of streets, 20 of which are paved.

LOCATED on the former Loeb estate two miles southeast of Charlevoix on M-66, Castle Van Haver's superb medieval architecture (left) takes the visitor on a fantastic journey into the past.

Ruins Beckon Visitors to Castle Van Haver

CHARLEVOIX -- A visit to Castle Van Haver is almost like stepping backward 1,300 years into the era of fabled King Arthur and his knights of the roundtable.

Located on a broad plain overlooking Lake Charlevoix, Castle Van Haver opened last summer and is one of Charlevoix's newest tourist attractions.

THE MAGNIFICENT stone building on the site were built in 1917 by the late Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Loeb and were used initially as the farm buildings on their sprawling dairy ranch.

After 40 years of disuse, the property was purchased by John Van Haver, a Muskegon foundryman with a dream of turning the ruins into an art foundry and craft center with a genuine European flavor.

THE GROUNDS and buildings were cleared of debris, brush, trees and abandoned equipment. Roofs, windows, doors and floors were repaired and electricity, plumbing and heating units were installed.

Lawns were sodded, sidewalks and driveways laid out, and studios, workshops and craft shops set up.

The restoration and the establishment of the art foundry has taken seven years.

THE $140,000 Charlevoix Library opened its doors to the public July 5. The library is open from 1 until 8 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays, from 1 until 5 p.m. Fridays, and from 9 a.m. until noon Saturdays. A story hour for children is held every Wednesday afternoon from 1:30 until 3 p.m.

Come to the Fair

CHARLEVOIX -- Artists from throughout Michigan and nearby states will converge on Charlevoix Aug. 12 for the 9th annual Waterfront Fair for Artists and Craftsman.

The fair is held in East Park, against a backdrop of Round Lake and the yacht basin.

In fact, many artists come to Charlevoix by boat to show their wares.

Exhibitors are allotted space throughout the park to display and sell their wares.

IN ADDITION to paintings of all kinds, wood carving, ceramics and sculpture are on the bill of fare.

On the park stage, Mr. and Mrs. Nate Cummings of Chicago usually show some of the paintings from their personal collection, which includes paintings by Picasso, Renoir and Degas, among others.

THE FAIR has become famous among Michigan painters, because many visitors have a penchant for buying. Last summer a sculpture student sold out his entire work. His profits allowed him to continue his studies at the University of Michigan.

The exhibit appeals to professionals too, with many well established artists numbered among the regular exhibitors.

THE FAIR also fills a genuine need in northern Michigan, where museums and art galleries are few and far between. Youngsters and adults are given an opportunity to see original works of art and to chat with their creators.

This year's fair is under the direction of Mrs. Kit Carson.

It's Venetian Festival Time

CHARLEVOIX -- The biggest summer extravaganza in Charlevoix is just around the corner--The Venetian Festival.

Set for the weekend of July 22-23, the Festival annually attracts thousands of visitors to northern Michigan.

As usual, the City of Charlevoix will be in a holiday mood from start to finish.

THE EAST side of Bridge Street from Clinton to Mason will be lined with booths sponsored by a dozen or more church groups, clubs and service organizations.

They offer everything from home-baked pie and soft drinks to games of chance.

Across Bridge Street in Erber's parking lot, the Charlevoix Lion's Club will hold its annual chicken barbecue Sunday, with club members manning the charcoal pits.

SATURDAY, a street parade will form at the intersection of Carpenter and State street at 1 p.m., with the parade beginning at 1:30. The parade may be seen the length of State Street, terminating at Park Avenue.

As in other years, the parade will include the high school marching band, under the direction of C.A. Odmak, the famous Fire House Five from Petoskey, Charlevoix's Venetian Queen Janet Pease and her court and many other marching groups and floats from Charlevoix and nearby communities.

THERE'S A HOLIDAY mood on Bridge Street when the Venetian Festival rolls around. This year's festival will be held July 22 and 23. Many Charlevoix organizations open up booths on Bridge Street to help keep visitors well-fed and amused. The festival attracts thousands of people annually to "Charlevoix the Beautiful."

AT 4 P.M., the Doll and Pet Parade--always a big attraction--will be held at the Band Stand in East Park. Costumed children and their favorite dolls and pets will march past reviewers, with prizes going to the most unusual entries.

Also in the afternoon, water ball fights will be held in East Park near the shuffleboard courts. At 7:30, Queen Janet will be crowned at the bandstand, followed by a street dance to the music of Ron Abfalter and "The Liberators from Elk Rapids."

Street booths will be open in the afternoon, with children's games scheduled in East Park. In the evening, Gary Stutzman and his "Steinsmen" of Charlevoix will present a concert in East Park from 7 to 8 p.m., followed at 8:30 by a concert by the city band.

AT 10 P.M. comes the highlight of the festival--the annual parade of lighted boats. The parade forms in Lake Charlevoix, moves through the Upper Channel and then separates into two columns as it moves along the shores of Round Lake.

All kinds of boats take part, from high masted sloops to small pleasure craft.

At the conclusion of the boat parade, fireworks will be shot off over Round Lake--ending the Venetian Festival for another year.

Beaver Island Land Boom On

ST. JAMES -- Beaver Island is undergoing its most dramatic change since King Strang and his Mormons settled there in the 1840's.

The 54-square mile island is the site of the largest land development project in the Midwest. Recreational Properties Inc., affiliated with American Central Land Co. of Lansing, is handling the 1,000-acre development called Port St. James along Font Lake and the northwest portion of the island along Donegal Bay.

Along with developing the land and building between 40 and 50 miles of roads to service the area, the corporation offers many extras to persons who buy lots. Among other things these persons find a swimming pool, a riding stable with eight horses and a golf course at their disposal.

Hundreds of persons, including many from Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin, have already bought lots within the development.

MUCH OF the attraction to buyers lies in the seclusion the island offers. As an escape from commercialism, the island affords a slow, peaceful way of life. Although the development is geared to this seclusion, both Donegal Bay and Font Lake are only minutes away from both the airport and St. James Harbor.

This seclusion is coupled with the excellent hunting and fishing areas to make the island a perfect vacation spot. Miles of untouched forests where deer, wild turkeys, grouse and rabbits abound are equaled only by the clear, blue fishing waters where smallmouth bass, bluegills, and pike are pulled up by the thousands every year.

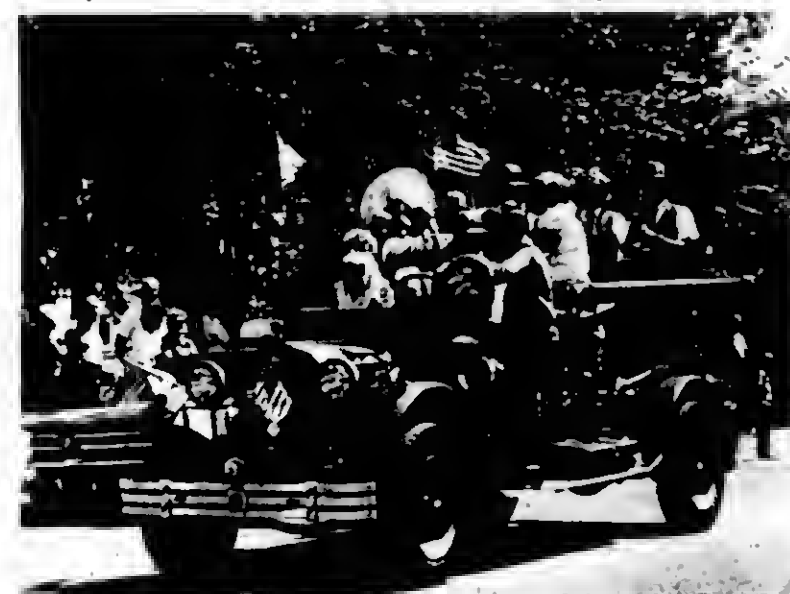

Add still another attraction -- the miles of natural sandy beaches.

PROSPECTIVE buyers and islanders alike enjoy the riding stables at Port St. James.

THE FIREHOUSE Five will be on hand again this year to entertain visitors to the Venetian Festival. The Dixieland combo comes from Petoskey.

WATERBALL fights will be held Saturday and Sunday in East Park. The Fire Department cooperates by hooking up fire hoses for the event.

CAROLYN BROCK, Mrs. Earl Denny and Sp. 4 Clayton Denny hold one of the two Michigan flags found after weeks of searching every nook and cranny in northwestern Michigan.

Courier Joins Search

State Flag Decorates Viet Battlewagon

Where does a person find a Michigan flag?

"Who knows?" was the not too enlightening answer four Ellsworth persons found while combing northwestern Michigan for the flag.

It all began six weeks ago when Carolyn Brock received a letter from her husband, Sp. 4 Larry Brock, in Qui Nohn, Vietnam.

"I was asking for a flag to put on his two and a half ton military truck. Brock drives the truck mounted with four 50 millimeter guns in artillery convoys throughout Vietnam.

Carolyn said, "He wanted to personalize his truck in some way, and since he wasn't allowed to name it, he asked for a Michigan flag."

SP. 4 Larry Brock, whose request sent his family on a six week search throughout northwestern Michigan, was home with his sister, Lt. Lynda (Brock) Way, in January before he was sent to Vietnam.

Lt. Way is a registered nurse stationed at the Wright Patterson Air Force Base Hospital in Dayton, Ohio.

"I was really quite discouraging. I think it's also too bad, I've never seen a Michigan flag and I suppose most people haven't either."

BUT LIKE every nice story, this one had a happy ending.

She said, "One day I was driving through Charlevoix when I spotted the Courier office and decided to stop in. I thought if they didn't help me, I would just give up the search."

MRS. DENNY explained her situation to the Courier and within minutes Tom McDaniels had Representative Robert Davis on the phone in Lansing.

"I'll send two flags right up," he said. And right up they came. They were at the Charlevoix post office at 9:30 the next morning.

So now there are four less pairs of aching feet in Ellsworth, by now Sp. 4 Brock has his flag mounted on his truck, and Sp. 4 Clayton Denny has his pocket away ready to go.

CG to Rescue in Emergency

CHARLEVOIX--Men from the Charlevoix Coast Guard Station were called upon Monday to bring one of the sailors in the Chicago-Mackinac race to Charlevoix so he could rush to the side of his ailing mother.

The Coast Guard's 30-footer was dispatched into Lake Michigan to pick up Peter A. Richardson of Indianapolis, Ind.,

SP. 4 Larry Brock wanted a reminder of his native Michigan for his military truck which he drives on artillery convoys.

MRS. LUCIEN Delaire (left) and Mrs. Bert Middler had a lot to talk about when they were reunited at Norwood last week.

Thousands Expected Venetian Weekend

CHARLEVOIX--Thousands of visitors are expected in town this weekend for the 1967 edition of the Venetian Festival, featuring street and boat parades, contests for kids, sidewalk booths and the crowning of a Venetian Queen.

Stalls in the yacht harbor were filled up early in the week by sailors who had come to Charlevoix for the annual event. Motel owners expect to be hanging out "no vacancy" signs shortly.

THE FESTIVAL will get off to an early start Saturday, with a pancake and sausage breakfast at the Church of God on Hurbut Street, from 6:30 until 10 a.m. Bridge Street booths offering food, drink and games of chance will open at 9 a.m. In the afternoon, the street parade will assemble at 1 o'clock at Carpenter and State Streets, starting north on State Street at 1:30. It will disband at Park and Grant. Veterans groups, the High School Band, the Coast Guard, the Firehouse Five, Venetian Queen Janet Pease and her court, old cars, horses, bikes, clowns and Smokey the Bear are expected to join the march.

AFTER THE PARADE there will be water ball fights and a greased pole climb in East Park, followed by the Doll and Pet Parade at the bandstand at 4 p.m.

At 7 p.m., Ernie Hillier will be honored as Charlevoix's "Citizen of the Year," followed by the crowning of Queen Janet.

Millage Meeting Tonight

CHARLEVOIX -- The second meeting of citizens interested in passage of the school district's 6.5 mill proposal will be held tonight.

The meeting will be held at the High School cafeteria at 8 p.m. in the High School cafeteria.

At the last meeting Aug. 12, the city was divided into eight neighborhoods, with a neighborhood captain chosen for each area represented.

The groups will be responsible for disseminating information about school needs in their areas.

SUPERINTENDENT of Schools Rex Milligan told the group that unless the millage passes, the district stands to lose $44,750 in state aid under a formula adopted last week by the Legislature.

He said school districts which do not vote at least 10 mills for operation will not receive their full share of financial assistance from the state.

IF THE MILLAGE request fails, the district will have only its county allocation of 8.4 mills to run Charlevoix schools for the 1967-68 school year.

Milligan said the school program would have to be cut drastically if he would not say which areas would suffer.

"That should be up to the people to decide," he said.

Voters turned down a request for 8.5 mills for operation in the June 12 election. Board members trimmed the budget two mills and called another election.

THE BAND Boosters will kick off their fund drive during the Venetian Festival from the escort cutter Arundel.

Earlier, Richardson had transferred from the sailboat La Souris to the Arundel when he received word that his mother was in critical condition.

After the pick-up about two miles off South Point, the Arundel continued to escort the sailboats to Mackinaw.

SISTERS Reunited After 46 Years

NORWOOD--Two sisters who haven't seen each other in 46 years have been doing a lot of catching up the past few days at the Bert Middler farm near here.

They are Mrs. Lucien Delaire of Epies, Belgium, and Mrs. Middler who haven't seen each other since Mrs. Delaire returned to her native country to live in 1921.

"I WOULDN'T have recognized her if we passed on the street," Mrs. Middler declared.

"And neither would I," chimed in Mrs. Delaire during their visit to the Courier office Monday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Delaire and the Middlers were on route to Mackinaw City, one of the sight-seeing trips they have planned before returning to southern Michigan and Ontario today (Wednesday) to visit other relatives and friends.

THE SISTERS were both born in Belgium and came to America with their parents before the first World War, living in Cloverdale, Ohio, and Tilbury, Ont. After the war, they returned to Belgium, but in 1921 found themselves back in Canada. After a few months, Mrs. Delaire

At 8 p.m., an all-star game will be held at the ballfield on Carpenter street. At the same time, the Liberators, and Elk Rapids rock 'n' roll group will present a concert in the park, followed by street dancing at State and Mason.

SUNDAY'S events will begin with the Michigan State Championship motorcycle races at the Winnick Farm on Burgess road north of the city, with more kids' events in East Park from 2 to 4 p.m.

From 7 to 8 p.m., The Stinsons, led by Gary Stutzman, will present a concert in the park, followed at 8:30 by a concert by the City Band.

Highlight of the festival -- a parade of lighted boats around Round Lake -- starts at 10 p.m., followed by fireworks over the lake.

WINNING the Albert Pick Holiday Weekend contest, this week was Mrs. Milford H. Saunders of Charlevoix who entered the contest at the Wal-Mar Coiffeur Shop. With her is Mrs. Marie Loder, shop owner.

Band Boosters Seek Funds for Uniforms

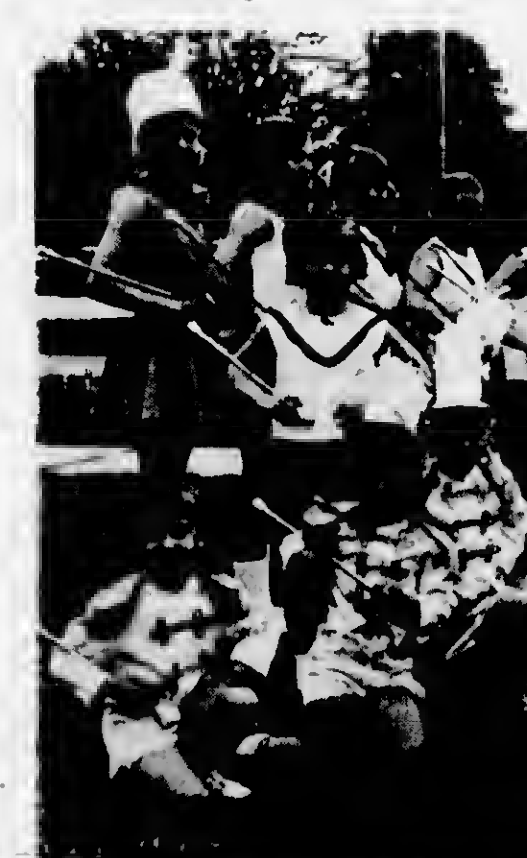

CHARLEVOIX -- The Band Boosters Club is launching an all-out drive to buy new uniforms for the High School band before next January. President Don Meggison announced following a meeting of the group at the High School Monday night.

The January deadline was set because the band has been asked to participate in the 1968 Midwestern Band Concert in Ann Arbor next Jan. 19, Meggison said, and the Boosters would like to have their band smartly dressed.

He added that the uniforms will cost from $85 to $100 each, meaning that from $8,500 to $10,000 will be needed to outfit Charlevoix's 100-man band. The group presently has about $1,500 in its uniform fund.

THE CLUB also will maintain a table for donations at city band concerts during the remainder of the summer. Pledges of a given amount each month also will be accepted, Meggison added.

C.A. Odmarr, band director, said he believes the Charlevoix Band is the first Class C school band in the state to be asked to take part in the Midwestern Concert.

THE CHARLEVETTES, directed by Mrs. Alex Moore, will take part in the Venetian Festival parade Saturday afternoon at 1:30. The costumed baton twirlers have been rehearsing for weeks for the big event.

VENETIAN Queen Janet Pease will be crowned in ceremonies at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in East Park.

To Spruce Up Beaver P.O.

ST. JAMES -- Postmaster and Mrs. Frank Mackerman have received a contract from the federal government to remodel and re-lease the post office here. Improvements will include installation of new fluorescent light fixtures, hot water baseboard heating, a new tile floor in the lobby, redecoration of the entire interior, and a new mail vestibule.

Awarding of the contract was announced by Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brien in Washington.

Mackerman will lease the building on St. James harbor to the Post Office Department for five years, with renewal options running through 10 years.

Sherry Fearsall is in charge Wednesdays and Angela Espich Thursdays.

Davenport said the two sessions are being started because of the large turnouts at the first two story - hours.

We Need More Sallys

Pretty Little Blue Eyed Sally. A bundle of energy and loveliness and in turn loved by everyone in the community. She is generous, courteous, compassionate, kind and considerate of everyone she meets. At play she gives it her all and enjoys every game to the fullest, never pointing, asking special favors or taking unfair advantage. No wonder the children all look to her for leadership, as do her teachers at school and in her church. It is from such children that magnificent leadership evolves. If children of latent ability are lacking in some of the qualities that would make "Sallys" of them they must be supplied by proper training and guidance or dangerous leadership could result. Your church can be and is a source of training for true leadership. Now, more than ever the World needs the finest and by taking an active and earnest part in your church's activities you can help develop many youths who have the capacity to become Sallys.

HERALD PEDERSON of Denmark examines map of his homeland with Dick Kenney, who stayed with him last year as an exchange student.

Says Taxes Kill Incentive

CHARLEVOIX -- High taxes under a socialist government are killing the profit incentive in Denmark, a Danish visitor told friends in Charlevoix last week.

Herald Pederson, who owns a lumber mill and contracting business at Ringkøbing, spent several days with the Denmark family while in the United States.

THROUGH interpreter Chris Musaeus (see story elsewhere on this page), Pederson said that his income last year amounted to about $12,000, but that he paid out $5,000 in taxes.

He said Denmark has a 10 per cent sales tax on most items, with a whopping 142 per cent tax on automobiles. "It doesn't make it worth your while to try to get ahead," Pederson said.

A MASTER plumber, carpenter and electrician, Pederson was in the United States to visit a son, Eric, who is an exchange student this year at Marquette, Iowa. Enroute home he stayed several days with the Kennys, whose son Dick, stayed with the Pedersons last year while he was an exchange student in Denmark. While in Charlevoix, Pederson visited Freedman Aircraft Engineering Co., Consumers Power, and the Mesqua Cement Plant. He also was given a tour of some of the new construction in Charlevoix by Bill Forbier.

HE SAID there is little subdivision development in Denmark as it is known in America, with most homes constructed by private contractors one at a time. What subdivisions there are, are government subsidized.

Pederson left Charlevoix Friday for Copenhagen, with plans to return to Denmark Monday.

"If I visit Expo, I can write part of the trip off as a business expense," he laughed.

CHARLEVOIX is almost like a second home in the United States for Chris Musaeus (standing right) a former Danish exchange student who is spending several weeks with the William Darnton family at Pine Point. With him are his brother, Mike, Mrs. Darnton and her daughter, Judy.

Exchange Student Returns

PINE POINT -- A former foreign exchange student from Denmark enjoyed living in the United States so much he came back to spend the summer with the William Darnton family here.

He even brought his kid brother along to have a look at the New World.

THE STUDENT, is Chris Musaeus, 21, of Copenhagen who lived with the Darntons at their home in Holly two years ago while attending Holly Senior High School.

During his stay in Michigan, the Darntons made many trips to their summer home at Pine Point and Chris soon grew as familiar with the Charlevoix area as he was with Holly.

ON HIS RETURN trip, Chris brought his 15-year-old brother, Mike, along for the ride.

Now Mike, who will enter the 10th grade when he returns to Denmark, would like to return to the United States the following year. He's only sorry exchange students can't pick their own locale because he too is developing a warm spot for Michigan and the Darnton family.

Locals

Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Richards and two sons of St. Louis, Mo. have returned home after spending a week with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Staley and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Wimmer and family of Manitowish, Wis., have moved to their home at 821 State St., Charlevoix.

Rev. and Mrs. Robert Fulton Pfeiffer from Evanston, Ill., are spending the summer at their summer cottage at Oyster Bay. Their son and family, Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Pfeiffer Jr. and now son, Robert F. III from Saratoga Springs, N.Y., are spending two weeks at the cottage. Their daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. George C. Vallentine and family, 1440, Susan and John from Birmingham, Mich., are at their new cottage at Bird and Estate.

THANKS to his year as a high school student in America, Chris speaks colloquial English without an accent. And Mike, who has studied English only in school, does almost as well.

Chris helped me with the slang after he came home," he explains.

He says he is sometimes embarrassed in school when his English teachers make obvious -- to him -- mispronunciations. He said he had one teacher who insisted "Arkansas" was pronounced "Ar-kansas" rather than "Arkansas." He finally found a newspaper filler explaining the difference and showed it to her.

CHRIS, who will start his second year of medical school at the University of Copenhagen in the fall, thinks he might like to return to the United States to live.

"There's so much more opportunity for a doctor to specialize over here," he explains.

The Musaeus boys are spending their time at Pine Point swimming, water skiing and attempting to play soccer -- their national sport -- with a non-regulation soccer ball.

"We'd like to buy a good one, but they're too expensive," Chris says.

Their host, Bill Darnton, works for General Motors in Flint and recently was elected president of the Holly Board of Education. He and his wife, Mildred, have three children: Tom is sailing instructor at the Charlevoix Club this summer; Dave is attending Culver Military Academy; and Judy is spending the summer at Holly and Pine Point.

Camp Charlevoix

Corrall Chatter

The third week of camp started off on Monday with five cabins ready to leave on overnight trips, but during the hour, just before they were to leave, the rains came, so all trips were postponed. The entire camp gathered instead in the big lawn for a movie.

We were honored also on Monday with a visit by Josephine Chrenko, School and Camp Department of Parents' Magazine. She visits us about every five years and it is always good to see her.

Immediately after the supper meal, the boys took off to find the "Mugwump". This is a piece of wood about 15 inches high, painted bright red, green, yellow, and this is hidden in the woods. The team finding it gets to hide it, but they have to run it through camp each day with getting it taken away from them, thereby getting a point for their team.

After a much scorching, Larry Boardman, 14, found it, gave it to Jim Chiald who ran into the woods and hid it.

On Tuesday morning right after swim time, the Greys tried to run the Sluggump but were stopped by the Greens. In the afternoon, Steve Warder took his cabin of boys to look for the "Mugwump" over to the Sluggump.

These boys were: Stuart, Harrier, Lee Jackson, David Samuels, Tim

Wachburn, Mark Oetting, Greg Orr, David Swain. Three of the Junior cabins took a hike over to Susan Lake for supper, sleeping overnight there on the shore. The cabins involved in this were Cabin 2 (Bob Fardoe), Barry Thorne (Cabin 3) and Doug Laing, (Cabin 4). This was a beautiful hot day.

Early Wednesday morning, the first Mackinac Island trip left camp. Bill Townsend, Director of Activities, and two staff men, Jay Knight and Dennis's Dunsicker, were in charge. Each year, the first 50 boys enrolled are taken to Mackinac Island for the day.

Visiting the Island were Larry Boardman, Curt Bledsoe, Chuck Osborn, Mike Kelly, Andy Case, Bill Carey, Chuck Gardella, John Cooper, Cappy Lesene, Tommy Hunter, Paul Duncor, Steve Storms, Richard Macdonald, Dennis Bledsoe, Bob Stockwell, Brad Nord, Rick Silver, Ricky Kalo, Bill Bielby, Terry Masl, Marty Tinkovich, Tod Soderstrom, Tom Smith, Jay Hunter, and David Lindner. In the evening, one of the big events of the season was held, "Capture the Counselor."

The contest ended in a draw. Thursday was wet and rainy day, with the morning being given over to quiz programs in each section, the Greens winning. In the afternoon, regular activities were held as weather permitted. After supper, the Greens tried to run the Sluggump but were wellwarded by the Greys.

On Friday morning, the cowboy look a day horse trip choosing riders from this week's classes. These lucky boys were: Jay Hunter, Kim Miller, Rick Williams, Scott Simmons, Dan Pitts, Bill Otto, Bill Bielby, David Lindner, Rick Kahn, Jim Callison, Steve Storms, Greg Rouse, Jeff Rouse, Dan Buckley, Steve Hixson, Chris Hansen, Dan Freeman, David Thorn, Curt Bledsoe, Cliff Eglon, Stan Kryner, and Bob Sipple.

Each year the boys elect a cabin representative to be on the camp council which decides to which charities are to benefit from chapel collections. The profit from the Carnival, and the profit from the refreshments at the Rodco, the profit from the Rodco, Phil Ballantyne, Sammy Sisk, David Kerr, Billy Slater, Mark Duncor, David Lindner, Greg Orr, Jim Harter, Terry Mast, Tommy Smith, Mark Herschke, Bob Phillips, Mac Heller, Mark Ruffin, Chuck Gardella, George Booner, Sherman Wassinger, Andy Case, Doug Olenfort, and Jim Chiald. In the evening, the la-termediate Greens won a "Cowboy-Indian" game.

Saturday was warm and the entire camp spent the morning in Carnival Preparation. Painters were on the front porch of the clubhouse painting signs. Ken's cabin was a leet-bive of a activity as Ruby, Ruth and Alice dated over rope payer, thumb racks, staple, infections and prizes. Ty noon, all the booths were up, each cabin having its own booth.

At dinner, Dick Daniels, head of Crafts, came into the dining room dressed as a clown, to the boys' delight.

At three o'clock, the 14th rang and the Annual Carnival was under way. Visiting parents parked their cars at the stables and were brought into camp on a wagon, drawn by our team "Liver and Onions." The booths were very clever, with Cabin 16, Jonathan Howard's boys, winning. They are Chuck Gardella, Bob Howell, Letch Merrill, Chris Bushnell, John Conner, Chris Dossin, George Lampe, and Kim Miller. The cabin that took in the greatest number of tickets was John Deane's including Steven the Greens and John Deane.

Sunday evening, the Junior Section had their Vesper Service in the Paul Bunyan King. The rest of the camp gathered down on the shore of the lake around a campfire for a Vesper Service. Lee Farnstrum was the speaker. We have twenty boys enrolled for next summer already, and we hope to have the first fifty for 1968 all enrolled by next week.

Charlevoix Courier, Wednesday, July 19, 1967 Page 13

The weather is great now, warm, sunny, and ideal for good camping. More next week...

Sawtelle Finds Schooner Dating to Early 1700's

CHARLEVOIX -- Jim Sawtelle of Shipwreck Unlimited has located the ruins of an ancient sailing vessel in the shoal waters in northern Lake Michigan which he believes dates back to the early 1700's, Sawtelle, the originator of "shipwreck" furniture, says the schooner must have sunk sometime before 1700 because of the wooden rudder, and the few metal fittings used.

HE RAISED the rudder, which was separated by half a mile from the rest of the wreck, and towed it into St. James harbor last week with his pension boat.

Phil Gregg's workboat, the Eager Beaver, brought it to Charlevoix Saturday where it was unloaded with the help of Don Meggison's tow truck and transported out to Sawtelle's home south of town to dry.

Eventually, the rudder probably will become a coffee table or a bar. The remainder of the assembly will find its way into other Sawtelle creations.

Sawtelle says he intends to remove the remainder of the wreck for use in his unusual furniture business. Time, water and minerals Ronald Murray, East Jordan, was fined $10 and $3.70 costs for improper starting. City Police wrote the ticket.

Gerald Hammond, East Jordan, was cited by city police for a stop sign violation and was fined $5 and $3.70 costs.

RUDDER FROM vessel believed to date back to early 1700's is unloaded from deck of Eager Beaver by Jim Sawtelle (in hold) and Charlevoix mechanic Don Meggison. It eventually will become a coffee table or a bar.

Teachers' Pay -- The Big Question

School Superintendent Rex Milligan and members of the Board of Education can't be blamed for looking back nostalgically at the "good old days" when teachers' contracts were signed and looked up in the school safe long before the teachers left on their Easter vacations. That was in the days before a teachers' right to bargain for higher wages was established.

In Charlevoix, salary negotiations between the local teachers' club and the board have been under way for some weeks now, with no end in sight.

In the meantime, the School Board and the voters are fast approaching a school millage election without any firm knowledge about the biggest item in the school budget -- teachers' salaries. The board is asking 6 1/2 mills for operation, after voters turned down a request for 8 1/2 mills June 12.

IF THE NEW teachers' salary schedule at Ellsworth is any indication of what is happening throughout Michigan, Charlevoixans had better be ready to cough up more money to pay their teachers in 1967-'68 than they did last year. Ellsworth has boosted the starting salary for teachers with B.A. degrees from $5,200 to $6,000 and the starting salary for M.A.'s from $5,500 to $6,500. The new top for a B.A. is $7,400 (compared to $6,200 last year) and the new top for an M.A. is $7,900 (compared to $6,500 last year).

ALTHOUGH the starting salaries are well above what Charlevoix offered last year ($5,300 for a B.A. and $5,600 for an M.A.), the maximums are still below Charlevoix's tops of $8,000 and $8,500. None-the-less, the increase was a bold move by the Ellsworth Board of Education, in light of the fact that three requests for operational millage (ranging from 17 to 20 mills) have been turned down by the voters this spring. Another election is in the works for later this summer, although the date has not been decided.

HOWEVER, when Ellsworth voters do go to the polls, they will know how their millage will be spent.

It would be helpful if Charlevoix teachers and the board reached a salary agreement before the Aug. 7 election so Charlevoixans would have the same advantage.

Readers Defend Medusa Plant

Editor, Charlevoix Courier
Bridge Street, Charlevoix, Michigan

Dear Sir:

Since we have read in your paper so little about the Medusa Portland Cement Company that appears to sound good, we would like to take time to answer the letter from Paul Anderson. The question of pollution of the lake is another matter.

We may not be as eloquent as Orlan Anderson, but we feel we have a better right to comment on the Medusa plant. After all, we intend to live in Charlevoix permanently, so we are not just surveying the scene and making critical comments from the "safe distance" of Westlake, Ohio.

WE MOVE to Charlevoix, expecting fully to like the community and its people. Fortunately, we have found most of the people we've met friendly and helpful. Unfortunately, we have heard all too many comments about "those Medusa people" with a decided tone of scorn, a curl of the lips and an expression that made one feel it left a bad taste in the mouth. At the risk of having a stroke, we have maintained our dignity and silence as well as we longer! We will now say what we've wanted to say. "Look, people, we are college-educated persons. We are a chemist and a high school teacher. We hope to join some clubs. We are not eyes in the back of our heads. We are grant workers here for a short time. We plan to stay and build a home here."

As for the city, we love it. We love it, really, as we recently, its relaxed atmosphere. Yes, we enjoy "its natural loveliness" -- its "clear skies and waters" to quote poet Allen. We cannot, however, see how the Medusa plant will change any of this. Can one plant, after all, blight all of Northern Michigan?

WE CANNOT, in fact, see where the Medusa plant can be anything but good for Charlevoix. We would like to know if the grocers, realtors, those who sell fuel oil, the service station owners, the real estate agents, the others in business here plan to turn up their noses at Medusa. And we love beauty and nature, too, but to be realistic, how many trees and how much water does one need -- and what portion of life can one afford to spend gazing at them? A vacation of two weeks perhaps? You can't eat beauty now, can you? We believe the people of Charlevoix should be very proud of this modern and beautiful plant which indeed graces the shoreline, and they should be gratified and pleased that all of us here will benefit from it. We understand Governor Romney is coming to the dedication -- as your six lines on the back page (entirely unnecessary) imply -- and we feel he will be happy to welcome a new industry to Michigan.

ONE FINAL note... we have been reading the Courier for about two months, but so far we have read nothing which indicates a welcome to Medusa employees or a pat on the back for the company itself. Surely, the editor of a paper should have some obligation to present the pros and cons of any issue to the public. We think all fairness to the town of Charlevoix, something should be said in our favor and for Medusa. And we love beauty and nature, too, but to be realistic, how many trees and how much water does one need -- and what portion of life can one afford to spend

Very truly yours,
Mr. and Mrs. Howard Horton

Clockwise 2 Years Before the Masthead

By Bob Clock

I guess we'll have steak for dinner tonight to celebrate our first two years in Charlevoix.

It was just two years ago today I moved into the editor's chair at the Courier, fresh from four years as a school teacher in Holly. In some respects it seems odd yesterday; in others it seems like ancient history.

For one thing, I have less hair now than I had then. They swept up most of it over in the School Board room at the High School. The rest of it I lost up at the Council chamber.

ACTUALLY, we made our first trip to Charlevoix in early July, 1965. Judy and I took Katie with the grandpa's car. We drove north to talk over the job with Tom McDaniels. It was a hot day and I wore a pair of walking shoes. When we reached Charlevoix, we drove down to the Lake Michigan beach where I ducked into the bushes to change into a pair of long pants before visiting the sedate old Courier office on Clinton Street.

It was a perfect day to see Charlevoix for the first time. The yacht harbor was crisscrossed with cabin cruisers, Round Lake was never more blue and Pine River Channel looking toward Lake Michigan was enchanting. It was a case of love at first sight.

AS SOON as Tom said the job was mine I did miss the life "down below" -- the sprawling shopping centers, the roaring expressways, Saturday night trips to downtown Detroit, the mad stage show. Most of all I missed the people -- millions of them -- whom you saw once and would never see again.

I'll never forget one cold Sunday night in January during our first winter in Charlevoix. It had been snowing and blowing all day and both Judy and I were rapidly developing a bad case of cabin fever.

"Let's take a ride," Judy suggested. "Where to?" I asked lazily. "Petoskey?"

"We've been there," Judy protested. "Well, there's Boyne City, East Jordan and Ellsworth," I said helpfully. "We've been there, too," Judy said. "How about Atwood?" I offered.

We hadn't been to Atwood in some time, so we bundled Katie up, piled in the car and headed for Atwood. Well, I guess I don't have to tell you that there's not much going on in Atwood late in a Sunday night in midwinter. Church was over and most of the good people had long since gone to bed. Night lights flickered dimly in one or two homes, offering no competition whatsoever to the street lights over the highway that marked the town.

Neither of us said a word as I turned the car around in a driveway and headed back for Charlevoix, considerably older and wiser than when we had left.

OF COURSE, we have been unable to accomplish half the things we intended to when we moved to Charlevoix. We skip up here, because skiing is so hard. We've gone fishing a few times, but we never seem to pick the right time or the right place. Our grandiose schemes for remodeling the house remain just that -- schemes. Oh, we've applied a little paint, but the picket fence around the yard and the new kitchen floor are still in the drawing board. There just aren't enough hours in the day -- or a year -- to do all we'd like to do.

And we still haven't bought a boat, although we still gawk like tourists at everything that floats up the channel, from flashy luxury liners to dead seaweeds.

Letters to the Editor
Takes Issue With Walker Over Sewage

Dear Editor:

Mr. D.D. Walker's letter in last week's Courier clearly demonstrates that he is fortunate that his knowledge about making money is greater than his knowledge about sewage treatment.

It is interesting that "there are many counties which completely ignore the discharge from toilets on boats is completely inaccurate. Obviously, certainly believe Mr. Walker did not know so when writing it."

THE FACT is the major pollutant of our waters cannot be removed by any process known to the Chief of our State Health Dept. and Water Resources Commission. They are facts and they know of no such system.

Unoubtedly Mr. Walker and other well-meaning yachtsmen have been easily taken in by product advertising claiming to save us from mounting sewage. After all, it is understandable that they would want to believe in such a device.

But there is no such thing. Nutrients simply are not extracted from sewage. And no matter how much Mr. Walker wants to believe they are, he would be well advised to check his facts before making such statements.

Mr. WALKER is right concerning the huge amount of sewage being empty if the city sewer system is responsible enough to save us from mounting sewage. It is also difficult to believe that they would want to believe in such a device.

prefer to destroy the water they enjoy so their grandchildren cannot.

However, Mr. Walker and city councilmen might ponder for a few seconds the fact that the hundreds of us who live here year-round -- and own only simple fishing boats -- spend a fortune of a lifetime money here than do most of the yachtsmen.

THE ELECTED members of the City Council, when Mr. Walker is attempting to threaten, surely realize they were elected to represent the majority of us -- who have a much bigger stake in clean water than do the short-term financial gain of a few men who prosper from the yachting trade.

EJ Board Schedules Extra Public Meetings

EAST JORDAN—School board members here agreed last Tuesday evening to hold an informational, public meeting every month in addition to their regular business meeting.

The new meetings are scheduled for the fourth Tuesday evening each month. Board members said the extra meeting would give them an opportunity to more thoroughly discuss school business.

SUPERINTENDENT Max Damoth was asked by the board to set a meeting date with Boyne City's board to discuss consolidation.

Board members said they wanted to lay down some concrete plans for the merger if both boards agreed to go ahead with it.

IN OTHER action, Damoth reported that he's waiting for an approval from the state fire marshal before beginning remodeling work on the Goodwill Center for classrooms.

He said the center will be used for three classrooms and the cost of the modification is less than the lease/purchase of temporary units.

Damoth reported that six elementary

Ellsworth Brd. Mulls Millage

ELLSWORTH—School board members here met with new Superintendent John Jurgensen Monday night to discuss millage proposals and to set a new millage date.

Jurgensen said the board decided to divide into committees such as finance, teaching positions are open due largely to a change in state certification qualifications which disqualified some teachers who were at the school last year. He said that four positions remain open at the high school level, but added he should have no trouble filling them.

BOARD MEMBERS also discussed having a student handbook published before school opens. They said members of the student council may be contacted to help write it and it would cover school policies on dress, hair and conduct, among other things.

personnel and buildings and grounds to come up with committee recommendations next Monday night. He said the committees will give new members a chance to become familiar with millage procedures and school needs, and at the same time, provide necessary information about school budget needs.

Earlier this year, Ellsworth voters turned down three millage proposals for 17, 20 and 17 mills.

IN OTHER ACTION, board members passed a proposal to hire a remedial reading teacher.

Earlier Monday Jurgensen said the school hired three new teachers for the fall. They are Mrs. Howard Horton of Charlevoix for English, Mrs. Fenzel of Harper Woods for fifth and sixth grades and Mr. Pachowski from Glen Lake for industrial arts, coaching and possibly some math.

She moved to Lincoln Park, Mich., married Bert Midler and eventually found herself a farm wife at Norwood.

MRS. DELAIRE still speaks excellent English thanks to her earlier sojourn in America.

"You'd be surprised how many people speak English in Belgium," she says, "what with all the students, servicemen and travelers." "It's practically our second language."

The Delaires arrived in Canada July 10 from Belgium and plan to return July 30, after spending some time at Turkey Point, Ont., with a niece.

Mrs. Delaire noticed many changes since her last visit to America, particularly in Detroit.

"I'm glad they finally got rid of those streetcars," she commented. "Why, I've never heard such noise!"

Adding these books with the 850 that were received just before the library moved, new books now total over 1,600. She added, "These books are bright and fresh, and most of them are new to this library."

Kids Love Charlevoix

YOUNGSTERS find plenty to do in Charlevoix County, no matter where you happen to stay. Playground equipment—including swings, slides, monkey bars and may - poles --- are found at Charlevoix's three public beaches.

Beautiful Charlevoix County Has Something for Everyone

CHARLEVOIX -- There's something for everyone in Charlevoix County.

Located 270 miles northwest of Detroit, 350 miles northeast of Chicago, 54 miles southwest of Mackinaw City, 181 miles north of Grand Rapids, Charlevoix County lies on the east shore of Lake Michigan in the highlands of Michigan's lower peninsula.

It may be reached by U.S. highway 31, which runs through the heart of the city of Charlevoix, by U.S. highway 131, which cuts through the western part of the county, or by State routes 32 and 66 which enter the county from the southeast, merging in the city of East Jordan and continuing along the south shore of Lake Charlevoix into the county seat at Charlevoix.

Historically, Charlevoix County was organized in 1869. It was named for the Jesuit missionary Pierre de Charlevoix, one of the first French explorers to visit and write about northern Lake Michigan.

IN THE SCENERY department alone, Charlevoix County rates second to none in the state. The land rises rapidly from the Lake Michigan shore, with the second highest elevation in Michigan--Mt. Pisgah--lying just south of Thumb Lake in the western part of the county. This is the rugged wilderness area where elk have been reintroduced to Michigan and are thriving.

CHARLEVOIX'S beautiful yacht basin welcomes boaters from around the state. Water and electric power are included in the reasonable daily and weekly rates.

THE EASTERN half of the county is dominated by Lake Charlevoix, a 13-mile long body of water with the city of Charlevoix at its eastern extremity and Boyne City at the western end. The city of East Jordan lies at the end of the lake's South Arm, a narrow, picturesque body of water with many beautiful summer homes along its shores.

Other Lake Charlevoix communities include Ironton, where auto ferry service is offered across the South Arm, Horton Bay, famed for its Ernest Hemingway lore, and Advance, home of Top O' Michigan Rural Electric plant.

SEPARATED from Lake Michigan by Round Lake (within the city of Charlevoix) and the upper and lower Pine River Channels, Lake Charlevoix is a mecca for boating enthusiasts. There is usually a fair breeze for sailing, without the high seas which sometimes make Lake Michigan precarious for small craft.

Fishermen also find Lake Charlevoix much to their liking. Scrappy rainbow trout are to be found in increasing numbers in her crystal waters, and excellent small mouth bass catches are reported regularly. (Two years ago, an eight-pounder was taken near the C&O railroad bridge just off Charlevoix.)

The village of Ironton is noted for its perch runs, and although the number of perch in the lake is down substantially from what it was a few years ago, there are still some good size yellow-bellies taken summer and winter near Ironton.

During July and August, swimming is perhaps the most popular outdoor sport in the county. Dozens of fine swimming areas are located throughout the county, with three supervised beaches in the city of Charlevoix alone. An increasing number of surf-fers have found that the windswept Lake Michigan shore is an excellent place to practice their sport.

In addition, there are many fine public and private camping areas in the county, including Young State Park on the Boyne City Road between Charlevoix and Boyne City, Whiting Park on the south shore of the lake and Bells Bay state campground on the Lake Michigan shore four miles south of Charlevoix.

The federal government recently has earmarked $109,850 for the development of 170 new campsites at Young State Park, the money to be matched by the state.

Young State Park offers modern sanitary and shower facilities, and electricity is available. Visitors to Whiting Park and Bells Bay "rough it."

THE CITY of Charlevoix has a year-round population of 2,751, but the figure swells (Continued on Pg. 3)

to several times that during the summer. Since before the turn of the century Charlevoix has been a mecca for vacationers from throughout the Midwest. Two private clubs--the Belvedere Club and the Chicago Club--are located on the shores of Round Lake and Lake Charlevoix within city limits. Each boasts dozens of elegant summer homes many of which have been in the same families for generations.

More recently, many excellent motels have erected in the city, offering excellent accommodations for the short-term vacationer and travelers. The city also has a number of fine restaurants which have become famous throughout the state.

CHARLEVOIX County also has become famous in recent years as center of Michigan's ski industry. Four superb ski areas are located in the central part of the county--Boyne Mountain, Thunder Mountain, Walloon Hills and Barn Mountain (formerly Avalanche), all of which afford excellent skiing usually from late November through March. Many skiers also make Charlevoix County their headquarters even when skiing at Boyne Highlands or Nubs Nob, just north of Petoskey.

Ski hills range from bunny slopes where the novice can try his wings to rugged grades which even the expert finds challenging.

IN THE 1960's, two major industrial developments have taken place in Charlevoix County. Consumers Power Co. has erected the first nuclear power plant at Big Rock Point on the Lake Michigan shore five miles northeast of Charlevoix. Medusa Portland Cement Co. of Cleveland expects to complete construction of its $25 million Charlevoix plant this summer. It is located on South Point, across the bay from the city of Charlevoix.

In addition, many light manufacturing industries have found it profitable to locate in Charlevoix County, providing year-round job opportunities for thousands of people.

So welcome to Charlevoix County. Whether you have come north for a day, a week, a summer or a lifetime, you'll find plenty to keep you busy.

Mormons Put Up 1st Cabins at Boyne

Boyne City's history goes back to 1856 when John Miller, his wife and two sons along with John Dixon sailed across Pine Lake (now Lake Charlevoix) from Charlevoix to settle at North Boyne.

Miller, originally from Ireland, found some vacant cabins formerly occupied by the Mormons who were forced to leave and moved in with his family and Dixon.

MILLER CALLED the area "River Boyne" after a river in Ireland where a decisive battle was fought.

After that it was called Boyne Village until 1904 when it became Boyne City.

BOYNE CITY now has a population of about 3,000 persons with a summer increase of about 2,000. The city's major industries include Boyne Products, Inc., Robie Industrial Courter Products, Howe's Leather Company and Mill's Cabin Mills.

In 1961 a new high school and elementary school was built and the city has 12 churches.

Boyne City has seven city parks including Whiting Park where children's swimming classes are held mornings and afternoons. Young State Park, two miles northwest of the city, features a bathing beach with a life guard on duty, picnic facilities, camp sites, and a park store on its 536 acres.

THE CITY also has four marinas, a new steel bulkhead dock with accommodations for crafts up to 60 feet long, tennis courts, shuffleboard and playground equipment, a nine hole golf course and riding stables.

Wednesday evenings at 8 p.m. band concerts are held at Memorial Park with a dance following the concerts.

Indian Past Lives Again at Greensky Hill Church

BUILT OF native cedar logs, the Greensky Hill Indian Methodist Church appears today much as it did in 1860 when it was completed.

JAY OLIVER, a member of Greensky Hill Church, stands near ancient twisted maple trees which once marked the site of Indian ceremonials.

CHARLEVOIX - Lovers of Indian lore will be fascinated by a visit to Greensky Hill Methodist Church, located high on a bluff near Susan Lake, northeast of Charlevoix on the old Petoskey Road.

Built of hand-hewn logs, the church was completed in 1860 on the site of an ancient tribal meeting ground.

Nearly stand nine gigantic maple trees in a circle. Their lower limbs were bent outward with thongs when they were saplings as a symbol of peace among Indian tribes in the area.

SERVICES are conducted each Sunday during the summer at 9:30 a.m. by the Rev. Leona Winegarden, pastor of the Charlevoix Methodist Church. The services are conducted in English, with several hymns sung in the Ottawa language.

The mission church was built by Peter Greensky, an Indian brave who received his Christian training at the Methodist settlement of Bay Mills in the Upper Peninsula.

In 1838, Greensky moved to the Lower Peninsula to take part in a Protestant movement then underway in the Grand Traverse Bay area. Later, Greensky became dissatisfied with the mission and decided to establish a church of his own where he and his followers could worship as they saw fit.

Twenty-seven families joined him on the trek north, through Lake Michigan, Pine River Channel and Round Lake into Pine Lake (now Lake Charlevoix). They came upon the Council Trees where their ancestors had once smoked the peace pipe and decided this would be the site of their church.

a rude shelter of boughs covered with cedar bark. In 1850, work began on the present church. Although the logs were cut from the surrounding woods, the windows and other hardware had to be transported from Traverse City in canoes, and then carried by hand two miles overland from the Lake Charlevoix shore to the hilltop where the church stands.

The building is 26 by 32 feet and has eight windows. The logs are all notched at the ends to make a snug fit and the crevices have been filled with wood and mud. THE TINY church has had its ups and downs over the years. Sometime back, a parcel of land including the famed Council trees was purchased by an adjoining farmer. However, the church recently has been able to purchase back some of the property it lost, in spite of a membership of less than 25.

Members also have built a meeting house on the grounds, where church socials and banquets are held. Last year, the old wood-burning stove in the church was replaced by an oil space heater.

Another recent project has been the planting of a new circle of Council Trees adjacent to the church.

Visitors to the area will find it interesting to visit the old Greensky Hill Indian cemetery overlooking Susan Lake, named for Peter Greensky's wife. The older graves, all facing East, are marked off with wooden fences and or rude wooden crosses.

Hunting For Petoskey Stones

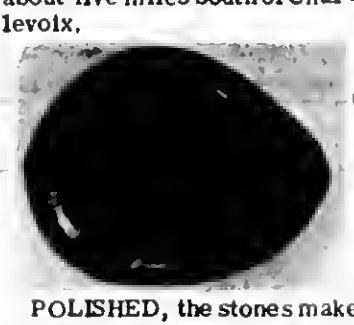

CHARLEVOIX -- Charlevoix's Lake Michigan beaches are a prime hunting ground for the elusive Petoskey stone--the state stone of Michigan. Formed millions of years ago, the stones actually are petrified "colony corals" which lived when northern Michigan was at the bottom of a tropical sea.

Although it is named for the city of Petoskey, the stones are plentiful--if you have a sharp eye--many places along the northern Lake Michigan shore. Some excellent stones have been found at Bells Bay, about five miles south of Charlevoix.

PETOSKEY stones may look like this when you find them on the Lake Michigan shore.

POLISHED, the stones make attractive pieces for jewelry and other decorations. Kits are available to hand-polish the stones.

St's Marine Service.
Village Resort.

When polished, the stones make beautiful earrings, cufflinks and brooches. Larger stones may be used as paperweights or door stops.

PETOSKEY stones are easiest to spot when they are wet, since moisture brings out the hexagonal (six-sided) pattern of the original coral. An uncut Petoskey stone may sometimes appear as an ordinary rock covered with tiny bumps.

Other stones, particularly those at the water's edge, clearly show the hex lines which are the mark of a true Petoskey specimen.

Charlevoix The Beautiful

VISITORS and natives alike are fascinated by the Pine River Channel bridge which raises several times a day to let ships pass in and out of Charlevoix Harbor. This view was taken west of the channel from the rear deck of the Beaver Islander.

Our Fascinating Bridge

CHARLEVOIX --- No visit to Charlevoix is complete without seeing the bascule bridge over Pine River Channel raise her steel and concrete arms to let a vessel pass in or out of Charlevoix Harbor.

Maintained by the State Highway Department, the bridge is manned 24 hours a day, 12 months a year by a team of three bridge tenders and a relief man.

When in place, the bridge carries U.S. 31 traffic north and south through the city of Charlevoix.

THE FIRST STEP in the procedure is the turning on of warning lights and bells at the bridge approaches. Gates are dropped across the highway and the sidewalks and a road barrier raises as if by magic from the pavement.

When this is done, the tender manipulates levers which activate machinery under the street surface which move weights to raise the bridge.

On an average, it takes about three minutes to raise and lower the bridge to let a boat pass. However the time can vary, depending on the speed of the vessel or how many boats wish to pass through at one time. The bridge has been opened as long as 20 minutes to let a big lake freighter through.

TRAFFIC pileups sometimes occur on each side of the bridge, particularly during the busy summer season.

Approximately 70,000 tons of coal is delivered by lake freighter each year to the Northern Michigan Electric Co-op at Boyne City.

Beautiful Beaver Awaits You

Island Steeped in Lore

ST. JAMES--If you're looking for something different in the way of a vacation refresh, why not try Beaver Island -- America's Emerald Isle?

Located northwest of Charlevoix in the middle of northern Lake Michigan, Beaver Island offers everything an island should--and then some.

PHYSICALLY, Beaver Island is as attractive a chunk of island real estate as you're likely to find in North America. Fourteen miles long and from three to six miles wide, the island is still heavily forested. Visitors are amazed at the growth of the giant hemlocks and birches which line the island's 75 miles of narrow, gravel roads.

The island may be reached either by water or air. The motorship Beaver Island carries mail, freight, passengers and cars from Charlevoix to St. James, 32 miles distant, on a regular schedule from the middle of April until the end of December. Fifteen-minute air service is available either from the Charlevoix or Harbor Springs airports. The island airport has two runways, one of them 3,500 feet long.

OTHERS choose to visit the island in their private yachts, weather permitting. The island has ample dock facilities in a natural, sheltered harbor at St. James.

Transportation on the island is no problem if you bring your car. Otherwise, cars and motorcycles may be rented at St. James. Some vacationers prefer to enjoy the island scenery from a bicycle seat.

THE ONLY community of the island, St. James stretches along the shores of Paradise Bay for more than a mile. The village proper has two general stores, two bars, three restaurants and numerous motels, hotels, rental cottages, lodges and rooming houses. An excellent restaurant-bar is located one mile south of the village in what was formerly the Holy Cross parsonage.

LIKE MOST islands, Beaver Island has a mystery. Archaeologists are still puzzled as to the origin and the fate of the first "mound builders" who made their home on Beaver Island. Their worship and burial mounds are still to be seen.

Later, the island was inhabited by Chippewa and Ottawa Indians, many of whom still make their home there.

band of Mormons led by James Jesse Strang moved to the island from Voree, Wisc., in order to practice their religion without interference. Strang, a rural New York lawyer, had himself crowned "King of the Earth", built a Mormon tabernacle and laid out the village of St. James, named after himself.

However King Strang proved to be a dictatorial ruler. He outlawed the use of tea, tobacco and liquor on the island, instructed the women to wear bloomers instead of long skirts and legalized polygamy.

The Irish mainlanders were aghast at his high-handed dictums and eventually Strang's own people turned against him. Following his assassination June 16, 1856, by one of his followers, the Irish moved in, boldly evicting some 2,000 of his followers.

Before long the island was populated entirely by Irish fishermen, whose descendants make up the bulk of the island population today. If you listen to a native Beaver Islander talk, you'll catch a trace of the brogue his ancestors brought over from the Auld Sod.

At one time, the wooded island was visited daily by Great Lakes steamers, since it was a convenient place to stop and pick up firewood for their boilers en route from Chicago to Detroit.

Although the fishing industry is not what it once was, at least one commercial fisherman still operates out of St. James bringing in excellent catches of whitefish.

HOWEVER, the main industry today is tourism. Americans by the thousands have found on Beaver Island the peace and solitude which have

Russian Nobleman Escaped to Beavers

ST. JAMES--Many Beaver Islanders have stories to tell about the late Dr. Fedore Protar, a Russian nobleman who found his Shangri-la on America's Emerald Isle.

The scion of a wealthy family, Dr. Protar was sent to Siberia by the Czarist government for his liberal ideas. He managed to escape from Russia in the guise of a priest, making his way to Germany where he spent several years.

IN THE LATTER half of the last century he emigrated to the United States, where he published a German language newspaper in Illinois.

He had no formal medical training, but was fascinated by the healing arts and studied medicine on his own.

ONCE he took a trip aboard a Lake Michigan steamer which visited Beaver Island. It was love at first sight. He later wrote to friends that the island was "the breeding place of whitefish and Calagahers."

Before long, Dr. Protar disposed of his newspaper interests, bought some farm equipment and moved to the island, never to leave again.

However he never farmed. Shortly after he arrived he found a farm family which could make better use of the equipment than he would and gave it to them. Instead, he became the island's only "doctor", treating his patients' aches and pains, stitching their wounds and setting all but vanished from other vacation retreats. Attractive summer cottages have sprung up along the Lake Michigan shore as well as on some of the islands seven inland lakes.

This summer, American Central Land Co. of Lansing has given the tourist industry a big push by subdividing several thousands of acres on the island for resort development.

THE 54-SQUARE-mile island still teems with wildlife, including grouse, rabbits, squirrels, ducks, geese, deer, and wild turkeys and the hunting is superb.

Fishing in the Beavers is generally excellent. Three of the islands inland lakes yield game and panfish. The perch run in Paradise Bay each spring and fall is one of the finest on the Great Lakes. Bass and pike fishing in the waters off nearby Garden Island attract many fishermen by motor launch from St. James. Lake Genesareth on Beaver Island has a public fishing site, with a boat launching ramp.

A-Plant Tours Popular

CHARLEVOIX--One of the prime tourist attractions in the Charlevoix area is Consumar's Power Co.'s Big Rock Point nuclear power plant. Situated five miles northeast of Charlevoix via U.S. 31 on the Lake Michigan, the plant is one of the first in the world to generate electricity by means of nuclear fission.

SINCE the information center at the plant opened in 1961, Consumers has played host to more than 442,000 persons, 62,900 of whom visited the site in 1966 alone. Chuck England, director of the Information Center at the plant, says visitors are welcome from 8 a.m. through 5 p.m. seven days a week during the summer.

ALTHOUGH tours of the atomic reactor itself are not practicable, visitors are welcome to visit many cutaway displays of plant operations and sit in on a lecture-movie picture presentation of how the plant converts atomic energy into electricity for home and industrial use.

The plant uses heat from uranium fuel 'picks to make steam, which in turn operates a giant turbine to create electricity. The power generated is fed into Consumers network of power lines across Michigan, and is utilized far beyond the immediate Charlevoix area.

THE CITY of Charlevoix is unique, since it draws on power supplied not only by the ultra-modern Big Rock plant, but also from an old hydro-electric plant at Bellaire.

England emphasizes that there is absolutely no difference in the electricity generated at the Big Rock Point plant and that of other generating facilities. The only difference is the source of heat.

Beaver Land Boom Brings New Activity to Scenic Isle

ST. JAMES -- Beaver Island is undergoing its most dramatic change since King Strang and his Mormons settled there in the 1840's.

The 54 - square mile island is the site of the largest land development project in the Midwest. Recreational Properties Inc., affiliated with American Central Land Co. of Lansing, is handling the 1,000-acre development called Port St. James along Font Lake and the northwest portion of the island along Donegal Bay.

Along with developing the land and building between 40 and 50 miles of roads to service the area, the corporation offers many extras to persons who buy lots. Among other things these persons find a swimming pool, riding stables with eight horses and a golf course at their disposal.

Hundreds of persons, including many from Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin, have already bought lots within the development.

MUCH OF the attraction to buyers lies in the seclusion the island offers. As an escape from commercialism, the island affords a slow, peaceful way of life. Although the development is geared to this seclusion, both Donegal Bay and Font Lake are only minutes away from both the airport and St. James Harbor. This seclusion is coupled with the excellent hunting and fishing areas to make the island a perfect vacation spot. Miles of untouched forests where deer, wild turkeys, grouse and rabbits abound are equaled only by the clear, blue fishing waters where smallmouth bass, bluegills, and pike are pulled up by the thousands every year. Add still another attraction -- the miles of natural sandy beaches

Camp, Picnic Grounds

Plenty of campgrounds are located in the Charlevoix area. The largest is Young's State Park located on Lake Charlevoix off the Boyne City Road. Across the lake is Whiting Park, located on the Ironton Ferry Road near Advance.

SOUTH of Charlevoix is Bell's Bay park where about 20 rustic campsites are located along the Lake Michigan shore. The campground offers "box toilets," but no electricity is available.

The East Jordan Harbor Trailer and Tourist Park is located on the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix at East Jordan.

Other private campgrounds also are open during the summer.

FOR PICNICING, there's Kennedy Park on U.S. 31 N. about five miles from Charlevoix on the Lake Michigan shore. Sportsman's Park on M-32 near the bridge in East Jordan, East Park, Ferry Avenue Beach, and the Michigan Avenue Beach in Depot Avenue Beach, Depot Beach and the Michigan Avenue Beach in Charlevoix, Norwood Township Park, Melrose Township Park on Walloon Lake, and Memorial Park in East Jordan.

EJ Industry

Among East Jordan's industry is Mr. Clemens Metal Products which manufactures metal stampings, Circuit Controls, which produces electric switches and wiring harnesses, East Jordan Iron Works, which makes castings, and heavy and light machine shop finish products, and East Jordan Canning Company, which puts up vegetables and fruits.

ATWOOD -- Sand dune rides--long a popular form of recreation in western Michigan--are available at this Antrim County community 12 miles south of Charlevoix.

Coast Guard on Job

CHARLEVOIX -- Charlevoix is the home of three U.S. Coast Guard activities in northern Michigan.

The Coast Guard Cutter Sundew, which is responsible for placing and maintaining all the buoys in northern Lake Michigan and Lake Huron, ties up at the city dock in Charlevoix.

Charlevoix also is the home of the Coast Guard's group headquarters in northern Michigan and is the site of the Charlevoix Coast Guard Station.

THE 180-FOOT Sundew has a crew of 45 men and five officers. Skipper is Lt. Cmdr. Jon Ulthol.

In addition to buoy duties, the Sundew also breaks ice, takes part in search and rescue operations and enforces federal regulations governing maritime activities.

Throughout the summer, the Sundew will hold openhouse each Saturday, Sunday and holiday from 1 until 4 p.m. and from 6 until 8 p.m.

A TOTAL of 81 men presently are assigned to Group Charlevoix, including the 15 men at the Charlevoix Coast Guard Station and five men at the Beaver Island station.

The Group embraces 14 CG stations, including 11 light-houses (seven isolated) and three shore stations in northern Michigan. Group Commander is Lt. Dave Smith. The Charlevoix Coast Guard station operates two boats, a 44-foot motor lifeboat and a 30-foot utility boat. The men on Beaver Island have a 40-foot utility boat.

Men assigned to the station take part in search and rescue operations, inspect pleasure boats and perform law enforcement functions.

THERE'S playground equipment for youngsters at Charlevoix's three public beaches. They are located on the Lake Michigan shore at the foot of Park Avenue, and on Lake Charlevoix at Ferry Avenue and near the C & O railroad station.

Operated by Melvin Essenberg, "Spider Sand Dune Rides," offers a scenic thrill-tour of the Lake Michigan shore.

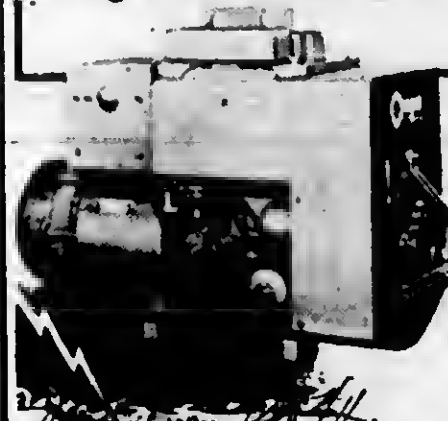

THE ROUTE takes passengers past an old Indian campground where pottery fragments have been found and near the site where a Great Lakes freighter sank during a storm.

ESSENBERG says the greatest testimony to the popularity of the rides comes at the end of the tour.

"Kids simply refuse to get out, and teenagers start begging for money so they can ride again."

Rides are made in a Scout, a four-wheel drive vehicle made by International Harvester.

Take Good Care of Boating Gear

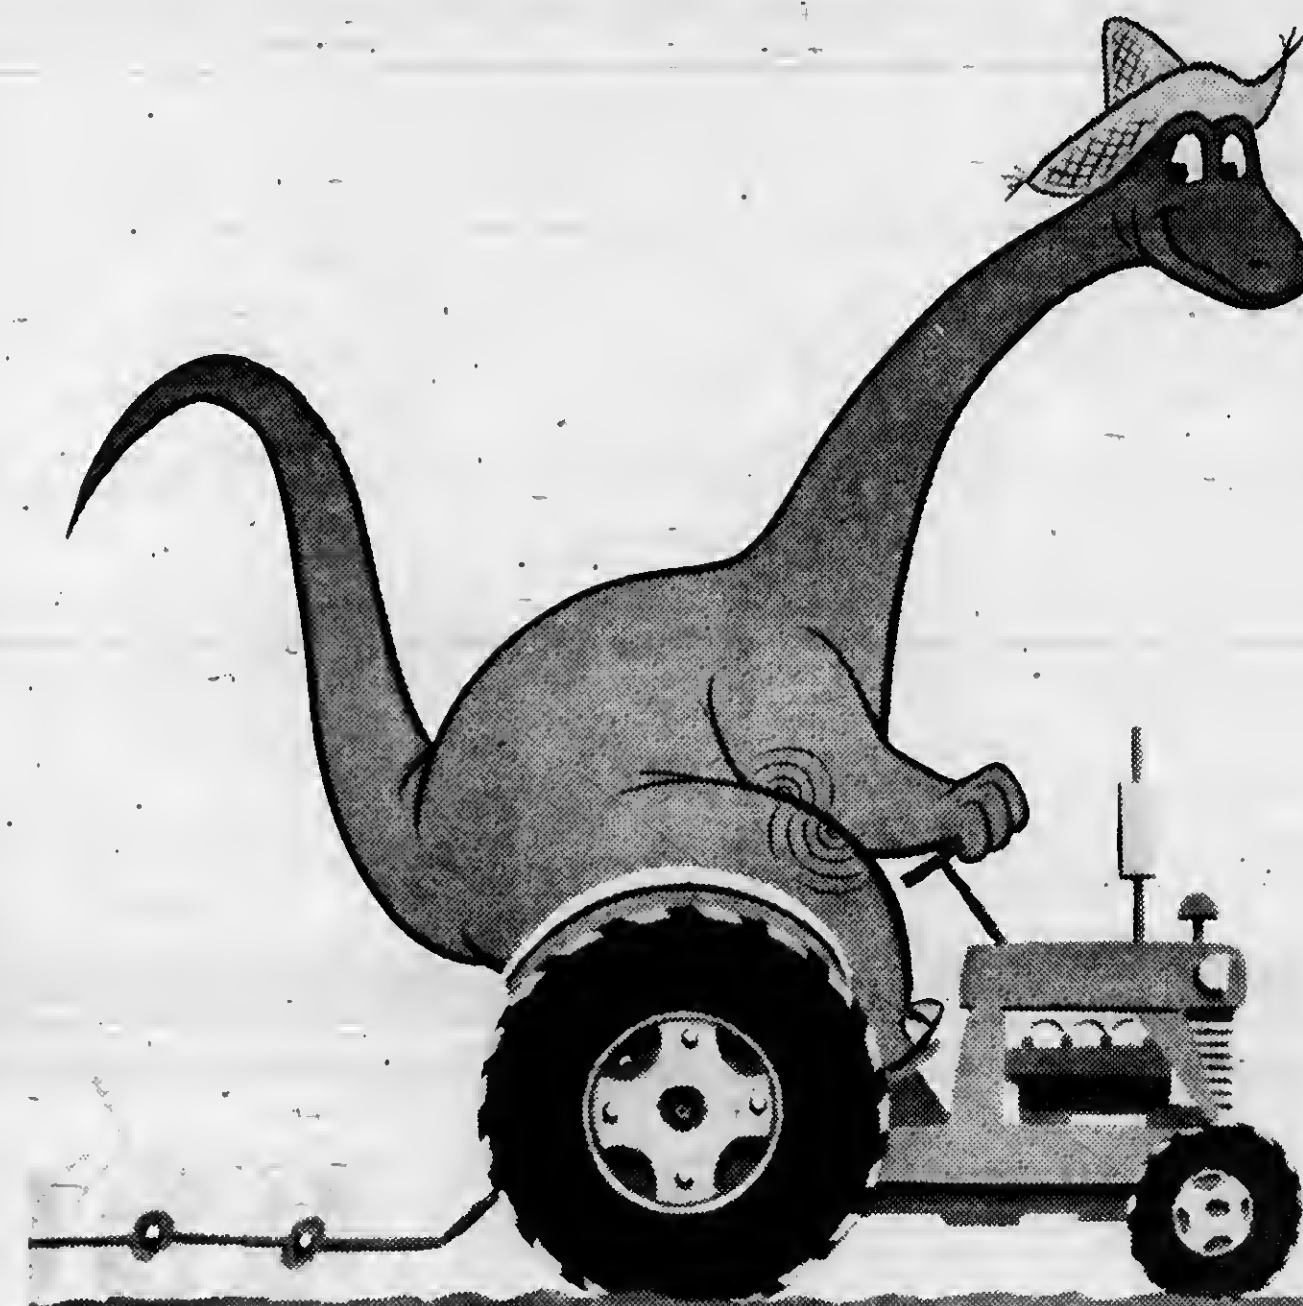

Boating accessories require only a minimum of care, but too often they don't even receive this. To add to the appearance of your rig and increase the life of accessories, the following steps.

Floor mats, seats and convertible tops should be washed periodically. This is true for both fresh and salt water craft. A mild soap solution-avoid harsh detergents-will remove dirt and smudge marks. This should be followed by a thorough rinsing with fresh water.

Three day camps for area youngsters are now in operation in Charlevoix County.

CHARLEVOIX'S annual Waterfront Fair for Artists and Craftsmen attracts thousands of people to northern Michigan each summer. This year's fair will be held Aug. 12.

Artists Sell Wares at Annual Fair

CHARLEVOIX -- Artists from throughout Michigan and nearby states will converge on Charlevoix Aug. 12 for the 9th annual Waterfront Fair for Artists and Craftsmen. The fair is held in East Park, against a backdrop of Round Lake and the yacht basin.

In fact, many artists come to Charlevoix by boat to show their wares.

Exhibitors are allotted space throughout the park to display and sell their wares.

IN ADDITION to paintings of all kinds, wood carving, ceramics and sculpture are on the bill of fare.

On the park stage, Mr. and Mrs. Nate Cummings of Chicago usually show some of the paintings from their personal collection, which includes paintings by Picasso, Renoir and Degas, among others.

THE FAIR has become famous among Michigan painters, because many visitors have a penchant for buying. Last summer a sculpture student sold out his entire work. His profits allowed him to continue his studies at the University of Michigan.

The exhibit appeals to professionals too, with many well established artists numbered among the regular exhibitors.

THE FAIR also fills a genuine need in northern Michigan, where museums and art galleries are few and far between. Youngsters and adults are given an opportunity to see original works of art and to chat with their creators.

This year's fair is under the direction of Mrs. Kit Carson.

Ruins Beckon Visitors to Castle Van Haver

CHARLEVOIX -- A visit to Castle Van Haver is almost like stepping backward 1,300 years into the era of fabled King Arthur and his knights of the roundtable.

Located on a broad plain overlooking Lake Charlevoix, Castle Van Haver opened last summer and is one of Charlevoix's newest tourist attractions.

THE MAGNIFICENT stone building on the site were built in 1917 by the late Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Loeb and were used initially as the farm buildings on their sprawling dairy ranch.

After 40 years of disuse, the property was purchased by John Van Haver, a Muskegon foundryman with a dream of turning the ruins into an art foundry and craft center with a genuine European flavor.

THE GROUNDS and buildings were cleared of debris, brush, trees and abandoned equipment. Roofs, windows, doors and floors were repaired and electricity, plumbing and heating units were installed.

Lawns were sodded, sidewalks and driveways laid out, and studios, workshops and craft shops set up.

The restoration and the establishment of the art foundry has taken seven years.

Dancers Welcome

Square dancing is a popular pastime in Charlevoix County for year 'round residents and visitors alike.

In Charlevoix, the Pairs and Squares have a dance the second and fourth Saturday of each month at St. Mary's School.

In Boyne City, square dances are held the second and fourth Wednesday at the American Legion Hall.

- Become an Islander -

Family Vacation Land

Once on Beaver Island, life can have a new meaning with fishing, hunting, picnicking, exploring, shooting pictures or delving into the romance of the past. There is swimming, hiking, horseback riding, and an inexhaustible supply of subjects for the camera fan such as scenic spots, wild life, and the quaintness of "Old Ireland" found no other place in America.

Fishing

Few areas have more to offer the angler who will be thrilled with the big Lake Michigan perch and bass caught in spring and fall and through the ice in winter. Inland lakes are teeming with smallmouth bass, blue gills and pike. And when the catch is served, these fish from the crystal clear waters of Lake Michigan are a gourmet's delight.

Hunting

Beaver Island is a hunter's paradise with its 1,000 deer herd inviting archers and riflemen. Ruffed grouse and duck offer sport for the small game hunter. For those hardy individuals who like the chase, there is the excitement of fox, coyote, and rabbit hunting with dogs during the winter months.

Brook Trout - Golf - Mushrooms

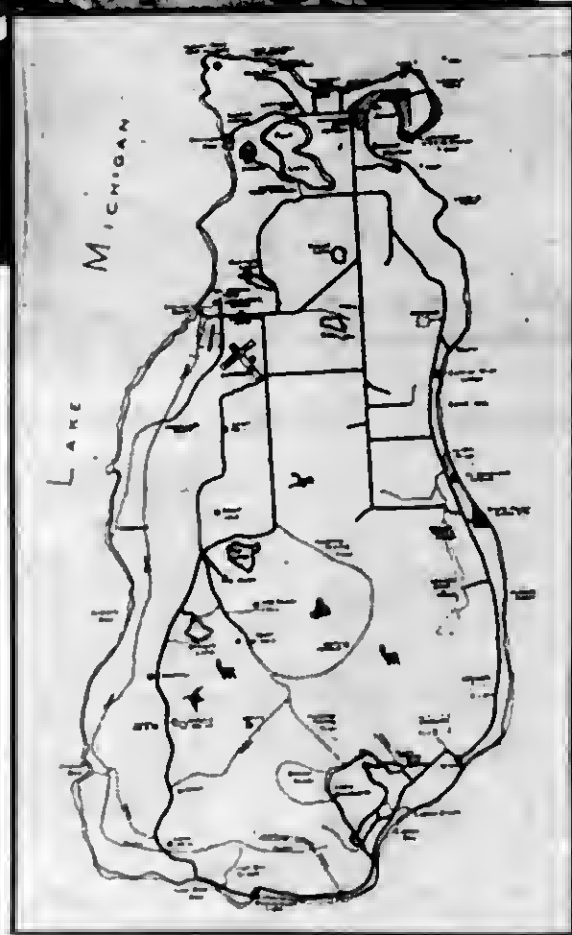

Fox Lake, one of the most beautiful lakes on the island, provides good trout fishing and produces speckled beauties up to 14 inches in length.

For the golfer there's an intriguing nine-hole golf course that can be more challenging than it appears.

The island, too, is a newly discovered paradise for mushroom hunters. There are hundreds of acres of ideal mushroom country and gathering these delicacies is becoming increasingly popular with our guests on the island.

East Jordan Passes Tough Building Code

EAST JORDAN -- Council members here approved a comprehensive building code Tuesday evening aimed at improving residential building and limiting the use of mobile homes.

East Jordan City Planning Chairman Robert Hills appeared at the meeting and reviewed the five-page document with the council. The code covers such specific building requirements as size of doors and windows, and type of insulation, wiring and heating.

CITY ATTORNEY Robert Klevorn will be contacted for his approval before the code is enacted.

Following final approval of the code, Hills urged the council to add two amendments to the city's zoning ordinance concerning placement of mobile homes. One amendment will close the R-4 area (residential) to mobile homes, and the other amendment will open A-1 (agricultural) areas to them.

Hills said the planning commission felt many of the existing mobile homes are an eye sore and detract, rather than add, to beauty of the area.

He added that if mobile homes meet the building code requirements, they will be allowed.

Wary Board Keeps Budget Under Wraps

ELLSWORTH -- School board members passed a budget Monday night here, but refused to reveal what the budget was.

In a brief seven minute public meeting, the board also asked for 12 mills for five years from voters, but again refused to give information on how they arrived at the 12 mill figure.

ONE RESIDENT, Robert Heeres, raised his hand after the motions were made. He asked, "What is your budget? What is the 12 mills based on?"

ALTHOUGH Heeres still had the floor and Mrs. Carol Heeres raised her hand to be recognized, board member Ray Wallick moved the meeting be adjourned.

Wallick was appointed to the board at the last meeting to fill a vacancy left by the resignation of Bill Armstrong.

Although Wallick finished behind Robert Heeres and Richard Kayner in the school board election in June, he was appointed by Taylor to fill the position.

Following the meeting, the board held an executive session in the superintendent's office.

Through the closed door, six visitors and the Courier reporter could hear the board discussing a date for the millage election, Aug. 7 was suggested, since that is the date of the next board meeting.

PRIOR to the public meeting, the board also held 97-minute executive session with the door open, General school operations were discussed.

At one point, Taylor suggested one way to hold down school expenses.

"This may be a small item," he said, "but it can save $12 to $15 a month. We can make all of our long distance phone calls collect."

Board members were heard to express confidence that the next millage vote will pass, but discussed plans for a second millage vote in the event it doesn't.

ART DRENTH said, "We didn't really know what we needed in the other millage votes. Now we have a better idea what's going on."

Wallick was heard to say, "These annexation people have screwed things up by stirring things up."

When board members were asked afterwards what was discussed, they either didn't reply or said "only budget matters."

CHARLEVOIX -- Gordon Freedman, owner of Freedman Artcraft Engineering Co., asked the city council Monday night what could be done to increase the water pressure in the sprinkling system at his plant.

He said insurance underwriters won't take his insurance unless he has a flow of 2,000 gallons per minute, with a pressure of 95 lbs. per square inch.

At present, the six-inch main serving Freedman supplies only 750 gallons a minute, with pressure correspondingly lower.

Freedman said it would cost him $60,000 to install a water system of his own and wondered if any relief could be offered by the city.

Councilmen said they would have City Superintendent Jim Taylor investigate the problem.

THE COUNCIL ALSO: --Reviewed an audit of city books by Darrell Dividie and found it satisfactory which showed a balance in the general fund at the end of the last fiscal year (Feb. 28) of $40,564.38, compared to $52,610.87 the previous year.

--Discussed the proposed shower building in East Park. With demolition of the present building, furniture, and landscaping, the building is expected to cost $65,150, or about $45 a square foot. A special meeting was called for next Monday night to decide whether to let a contract.

--Approved the appointments of Mary Feindt, Lucille Cunningham and Jim Hiller to a special assessment board to work on a plan for improvement for improvements to Hampton Village. The move was vigorously opposed by Mrs. Jean Vogler who said she believes Hiller has an interest in the property, putting his appointment in conflict with provisions of the Fourth Class Cities Manual on special assessments.

Players Due in EJ Sunday

EAST JORDAN -- Laymen here from various churches are sponsoring a drama performance by the Covenant Players Sunday at 7:30 p.m. in the East Jordan High School gym.

The Covenant Players is a drama group presenting Christian dynamics. Since their opening performance over three years ago, the group has given more than 5,000 performances in churches and to groups of all denominations.

NONE OF the players seek to identify with any particular theology, but rather to be a catalyst and generate all people into a more exciting, deep and purposeful acceptance of their Christian commitment.

The prime purpose of the drama group is to offer drama as a means of communication and to affect new insights to the meaning and demands of Christianity.

Everyone is invited to attend. A free will offering will be taken.

President Maurice Taylor replied, "The budget is too premature to discuss at this time."

Heeres then asked, "Isn't the millage too premature then? How do you know how much you need?"

Taylor said, "The millage is not premature at this time."

Through the closed door, six visitors and the Courier reporter could hear the board discussing a date for the millage election, Aug. 7 was suggested, since that is the date of the next board meeting.

EJ Art Fair

EAST JORDAN--Artists from around the state will show their work this Saturday and Sunday at the Portside Art Fair at Memorial Park here.

Members of the Detroit Society of Arts and Crafts teaching staff will send exhibits to the fair, as will local artists and summer residents.

The fair will be open from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday and from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday.

CHARLEVOIX--A basic difference of opinion with the administration on the operation of special education programs apparently lies beneath the resignation of two members of the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District this summer.

In June, child diagnostician Don Fuller presented a letter of resignation to the Intermediate Board. His future plans are uncertain.

Last week, Lee Jansson, a teacher consultant, announced he will leave Aug. 7 to take a job as director of special education in Livingston County.

CRITICISM has been leveled at Intermediate School District Superintendent Charles A. Robinson that he is allowing his key men to leave the district.

Robinson, however, is frankly critical of the quantity-not the quality--of the work Fuller has been doing the past year.

Although the Intermediate Board agreed last fall to give Fuller two days a week to work on his doctor's degree, Robinson believes that all too few children throughout the district have been tested by Fuller and his staff for possible inclusion in special education programs. He says some referrals by classroom teachers have been off file for more than a year.

FULLER ADMITS to the backlog of referrals, but says he made it clear when he hired on two years ago that he wasn't interested in merely giving IQ tests and approving or disapproving children for special education.

Robinson has been working with youngsters with a number of problems--brain dysfunction, perceptual distortion and emotional kinks, he feels in these areas he has made substantial progress, working with pediatricians and people from the Child Guidance Clinic in Petoskey, in addition to his testing duties.

Furthermore, he says he cannot see the value of evaluating great numbers of GROUND-BREAKING services for an addition to the Assembly of God Church on Upright Street will be held this Sunday in connection with the 11 o'clock service.

Assembly of God Plans Big Addition

CHARLEVOIX--Ground-breaking for a 42 by 44 foot addition to the Assembly of God Church will be held Sunday at 11 a.m., according to pastor Don Schorsch.

The Rev. Paul Lee, assistant district superintendent of the Michigan District, Assemblies of God, will be guest speaker.

CONSTRUCTION of the addition is expected to begin in about a month. Dick Way is general contractor.

The addition will contain a foyer, nursery facilities, Sunday School rooms, a fellowship hall and kitchen.

The present sanctuary will be remodeled to provide more seating space.

CHARLEVOIX--Recreation Director Deano Davenport doesn't want another week like the one just passed --at least right away. During the week he:

--Was hit by pitched ball, nearly dislocating his right shoulder.

--Was spiked on the thigh by an other player during a baseball game.

--Suffered a badly cut foot at the bathing beach when he stepped on a rusty tin can.

--Lost the use of his left arm for a couple of days as the result of a tetanus shot.

--Broke his little finger in a basketball game.

Furthermore, he says he cannot see the value of evaluating great numbers of children for special education classes, when neither the classroom space nor the teachers are available.

ROBINSON admits that this is, and has been, a problem ever since the program started.

He said classroom space must be approved by the state, and that the supply of teachers qualified to teach in special education programs is limited.

At present, the district has seven special education classrooms--three in Petoskey and two each in Charlevoix and Boyne City. Two special education rooms at Central Lake had to be dropped this year when the state refused to approve the classrooms.

Robinson figures that the Intermediate District needs a minimum of 12 special education rooms, compared to the seven now in use. Fuller heartily agrees, he says at present, 107 youngsters are enrolled in special education classes, with another 96 approved and on waiting lists.

Until the additional classrooms and teachers are found, these youngsters will continue to be enrolled in regular classroom programs, creating untold problems both for themselves and their teachers.

FULLER admits that finding qualified teachers is a problem, but he believes Robinson should have been waging a more aggressive recruitment program during the past two years.

Robinson says recruitment has been a problem, but the picture is rapidly brightening.

This year, he says, the district will have five fulltime speech correctionists, compared to three last year, in addition he will have two social workers instead of one, and possibly someone to help with the hard-of-hearing.

In addition, he presently is negotiating with a teacher--consultant with experience in dealing with the emotionally disturbed.

A year ago, the church remodeled the front of the sanctuary, installing new pews and altar furniture and carpeting the entire auditorium.

The public is invited to attend the ground-breaking ceremony, Rev. Schorsch says.

A POSSIBLE LEADER

A little child shall lead them
Is what the prophet foretold.
When war will be studied no longer
And the lion brings no harm to the fold.
When swords shall be beat into plowshares
The pruning hook made from the spear,
Atom power used for the good of all
And not be something to fear.
So heed what you do and say
To each child — and never cease,
To guard against harming a leader
Who could bring everlasting peace.

EAST JORDAN Band Director Ray Uhlinger meets with Margaret Watson, Donna Skrocki, Ginny Pray and Rick Lang Thursday mornings at 8 o'clock for their weekly lesson. About 70 students are enrolled in the program.

Daniel Simonsen in Boot Training

GREAT LAKES, Ill. — Seaman Recruit Daniel G. Simonsen, 19, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald G. Simonsen of Route 3, Charlevoix, Mich., has been graduated from nine weeks of Navy basic training at the Naval Training Center here. ... In the first weeks of his naval service he studied military subjects and lived and worked under conditions similar to those he will encounter on his first ship or at his first shore station. In making the transition from civilian life to Naval service, he received instruction under veteran Navy petty officers. He studied seamanship, as well as survival techniques, military drill and other subjects. The Simonsens moved to Charlevoix from Novi recently after purchasing the Charlevoix Motel.

Summer Is Busy for EJ Musicians

EAST JORDAN — Future Al Jirts and Benny Goodman find summer an ideal time to get ahead with their instruments at East Jordan High School. About 70 grade school children are receiving instruction in groups of two to six from band director Ray Uhlinger. The musicians meet for seven weeks for one hour periods, once a week.

Uhlinger said, "The children are grouped together according to ability and we have all levels from beginners to advanced. The more advanced students are practicing to get into the concert bands in the fall."

He added the program has two unique features. "The program is almost totally supported by the students. They pay a fee which covers much of the expense of the program."

"Another interesting sidelight is the fact the program has been going on for years. No one knows for sure just when the program began, but it was in operation when Superintendent Danovich came here," he said.

Uhlinger augmented the program this year to include weekly concerts by the concert band Wednesday evenings. "Actually, the band members voted to hold the concerts and they've been very successful so far. We meet for an hour prior to the concert to go over the music. Since people like light music and old favorites for these concerts, we're able to give a good concert with a minimum

DO-IT-YOURSELFER Sam Carlisle puts the last bolt on his sailboat. Sam and his wife, Doris never doubted the job would be finished, but they said it looked a little bleak for awhile.

Ugly Duckling Turns into Swan

One and a half gallons of paint remover and 130 hours of work transformed an ugly duckling into a beautiful "Cygnus" for Sam and Doris Carlisle of East Jordan.

The ugly duckling, a 17 foot sail boat, left much to be desired when Sam brought it home one day.

"It was like a homely girl," he said, "You just knew there had to be something inside."

After extensive scraping and tearing apart, the Carlisles did find something inside—a solid, carefully built boat.

The Grand Prize Loser

Charles Elzinga, a 17 foot sail boat, left much to be desired when Sam brought it home one day.

"It was like a homely girl," he said, "You just knew there had to be something inside."

After extensive scraping and tearing apart, the Carlisles did find something inside—a solid, carefully built boat.

Cool off your Budget

When a photograph is not needed of the winner, the greater Manhattan phone directory suffices neatly for the names. Who's ever going to check it? Billy Jones of New York, N.Y. really won a three year's supply of Cream of Wheat or not?

OH WELL, I don't really care if I win $500,000 or not. Who wants to pay all that income tax anyway?

My cat really is a cat, but you have to look at it just right. If you don't look carefully, you could mistake it for an atomic, semi-mountain lion with gait.

IS ALL MY years of entering contests, I've never won a thing. I don't really know why I keep it up—must be a manifestation of deep seated masochistic tendencies.

I entered a contest once which no one could lose. While I never expected to win the first prize trip to Hawaii and $10,000—I didn't—I at least thought I'd get one of the 10,000 green plastic airplanes they gave out as booty prizes—I didn't.

However, I got over not winning a green plastic airplane in time. I don't let little things like never winning anything in 3,000 contests upset me.

ACTUALLY I found these sorts of my losing streak. It's all very simple—nobody wins these things.

Winners do not exist. There are no such things. They are all figments of the imagination.

The people that are photographed as winners are actually plastic dummies prepared solely for the purpose of winning contests. They are plastic dummies given names from the greater Manhattan phone directory.

I suspect all the contest people get together and say about 10 plastic dummies between them to shuffle names around as winners from contest to contest.

Over 250 Women Attend Kitchen Tour

Charlevoix Hospital Guild's kitchen tour Tuesday grossed over $1,100 for a new operating light at the hospital.

More than 250 tickets were sold along with many home-made items including bread, cookies, aprons, salad dressings, and artificial flowers.

Along with the hostesses, donors and all workers, the Guild expressed gratitude to Wayne Belding who contributed his time for art work and making posters, and to Harbor Hardware which gave away a measuring spoon as a door prize.

HOSTESSES at the Glend-die home included Cele Dean, Marge Dinwiddie, Lola Webb and Mary Gelken. Mrs. Evelyn Sager, Colleen Wright, Carolyn DeMoor, Arla Staublin and Darb Berlage were hostesses at the Gilbert home.

Greeting visitors at the Olsen home were Barb Brown, Virginia Olsen, Lucy Martin, Frances Miller, Margaret Currier and Ann Rufford.

Mrs. Lottie Milner, Mary Bruce, Dorothy Hickey, Mary Noon, Angie Sundquist and Dina England were hostesses at the Scheele home. Those working at the Schroeder home included Ruth Sheets, Pearl Row, Margaret Schroeder, Swinging Bridge--A Charlevoix Landmark

THE SWINGING Chesapeake and Ohio railway bridge over Upper Pine River Channel has been a landmark in Charlevoix for generations. Because of the decline in rail traffic, the bridge closes only twice daily to let trains pass. In the meantime it remains open to allow yachts and sailboats to enter and leave Round Lake. Across channel is headquarters for the U.S. Coast Guard's Group Charlevoix and the Charlevoix Coast Guard station.

Beautiful Charlevoix County Has Something for Everyone

CHARLEVOIX -- There's something for everyone in Charlevoix County.

Located 270 miles northwest of Detroit, 350 miles northeast of Chicago, 54 miles southwest of Mackinaw City, 181 miles north of Grand Rapids, Charlevoix County lies on the east shore of Lake Michigan in the highlands of Michigan's lower peninsula.

It may be reached by U.S. highway 31, which runs through the heart of the city of Charlevoix, by U.S. highway 131, which cuts through the western part of the county, or by State routes 32 and 66 which enter the county from the southeast, merging in the city of East Jordan and continuing along the south shore of Lake Charlevoix into the county seat at Charlevoix.

Historically, Charlevoix County was organized in 1869. It was named for the Jesuit missionary Pierre de Charlevoix, one of the first French explorers to visit and write about northern Lake Michigan.

IN THE SCENERY department alone, Charlevoix County rates second to none in the state. The land rises rapidly from the Lake Michigan shore, with the second highest elevation in Michigan--Mt. Pisgah--lying just south of Thumb Lake in the western part of the county.

This is the rugged wilderness area where elk have been reintroduced to Michigan and are thriving.

THE EASTERN half of the county is dominated by Lake Charlevoix, a 13-mile long body of water with the city of Charlevoix at its eastern extremity and Boyne City at the western end. The city of East Jordan lies at the end of the lake's South Arm, a narrow, picturesque body of water with many beautiful summer homes along its shores.

Other Lake Charlevoix communities include Ironton, where auto ferry service is offered across the South Arm, Horton Bay, famed for its Ernest Hemingway lore, and Advance, home of Top O' Michigan Rural Electric plant.

SEPARATED from Lake Michigan by Round Lake (within the city of Charlevoix) and the upper and lower Pine River Channels, Lake Charlevoix is a mecca for boating enthusiasts. There is usually a fair breeze for sailing, without the high seas which sometimes make Lake Michigan precarious for small craft.

Fishermen also find Lake Charlevoix much to their liking. Scrappy rainbow trout are to be found in increasing numbers in her crystal waters, and excellent small mouth bass catches are reported regularly. (Two years ago, an eight-pounder was taken near the C&O railroad bridge just off Charlevoix.)

The village of Ironton is noted for its perch runs, and although the number of perch in the lake is down substantially from what it was a few years ago, there are still some good size yellow-bellies taken summer and winter near Ironton.

During July and August, swimming is perhaps the most popular outdoor sport in the county. Dozens of fine swimming areas are located throughout the county, with three supervised beaches in the city of Charlevoix alone. An increasing number of surfers have found that the windswept Lake Michigan shore is an excellent place to practice their sport.

In addition, there are many fine public and private camping areas in the county, including Young State Park on the Boyne City Road between Charlevoix and Boyne City, Whiting Park on the south shore of the lake and Bells Bay state campground on the Lake Michigan shore four miles south of Charlevoix.

The federal government recently has earmarked $109,850 for the development of 170 new campsites at Young State Park, the money to be matched by the state.

Young State Park offers modern sanitary and shower facilities, and electricity is available. Visitors to Whiting Park and Bells Bay "rough it."

THE CITY of Charlevoix has a year-round population of 2,751, but the figure swells (Continued on Pg. 3)

to several times that during the summer. Since before the turn of the century Charlevoix has been a mecca for vacationers from throughout the Midwest. Two private clubs--the Belvedere Club and the Chicago Club--are located on the shores of Round Lake and Lake Charlevoix within city limits. Each boasts dozens of elegant summer homes--many of which have been in the same families for generations.

More recently, many excellent motels have erected in the city, offering excellent accommodations for the short-term vacationer and travelers. The city also has a number of fine restaurants which have become famous throughout the state.

CHARLEVOIX County also has become famous in recent years as center of Michigan's ski industry. Four superb ski areas are located in the central part of the county--Boyne Mountain, Thunders Mountain, Walloon Hills and Barn Mountain (formerly Avalanche), all of which afford excellent skiing usually from late November through March. Many skiers also make Charlevoix County their headquarters even when skiing at Boyne Highlands or Nubs Nob, just north of Petoskey.

Ski hills range from bunny slopes where the novice can try his wings to rugged grades which even the expert finds challenging.

IN THE 1980's, two major industrial developments have taken place in Charlevoix County. Consumers Power Co. has erected its first nuclear power plant at Big Rock Point on the Lake Michigan shore five miles northeast of Charlevoix. Medusa Portland Cement Co. of Cleveland expects to complete construction of its $25 million Charlevoix plant this summer. It is located on South Point, across the bay from the city of Charlevoix.

In addition, many light manufacturing industries have found it profitable to locate in Charlevoix County, providing year-round job opportunities for thousands of people.

So welcome to Charlevoix County. Whether you have come north for a day, a week, a summer or a lifetime, you'll find plenty to keep you busy.

VISITORS and natives alike are fascinated by the Pine River Channel bridge which raises several times a day to let ships pass in and out of Charlevoix Harbor. This view was taken west of the channel from the rear deck of the Beaver Islander.

Our Fascinating Bridge

CHARLEVOIX --- No visit to Charlevoix is complete without seeing the bascule bridge over Pine River Channel raise her steel and concrete arms to let a vessel pass in or out of Charlevoix Harbor.

Maintained by the State Highway Department, the bridge is manned 24 hours a day, 12 months a year by a team of three bridge tenders and a relief man.

When in place, the bridge carries U.S. 31 traffic north and south through the city of Charlevoix.

IT IS RAISED whenever a vessel to high for clearance must pass between Round Lake and Lake Michigan. Three blasts of a boat's whistle is the signal that a boat operator wants the bridge opened. The bridge tender responds in kind and sets in motion the gigantic mechanism which lifts the twin portals to let her pass.

THE FIRST STEP in the procedure is the turning on of warning lights and bells at the bridge approaches. Gates are dropped across the highway and the sidewalks and a road barrier raises as if by magic from the pavement.

When this is done, the tender manipulates levers which activate machinery under the street surface which move weights to raise the bridge.

On an average, it takes about three minutes to raise and lower the bridge to let a boat pass. However the time can vary, depending on the speed of the vessel or how many boats wish to pass through at one time. The bridge has been opened as long as 20 minutes to let a big lake freighter through.

TRAFFIC pileups sometimes occur on each side of the bridge, particularly during the busy summer season.

Approximately 70,000 tons of coal is delivered by lake freighter each year to the Northern Michigan Electric Co-op at Boyne City.

Indian Past Lives Again at Greensky Hill Church

BUILT OF native cedar logs, the Greensky Hill Indian Methodist Church appears today much as it did in 1860 when it was completed.

JAY OLIVER, a member of Greensky Hill Church, stands near ancient twisted maple trees which once marked the site of Indian ceremonies.

CHARLEVOIX - Lovers of Indian lore will be fascinated by a visit to Greensky Hill Methodist Church, located high on a bluff near Susan Lake, northeast of Charlevoix on the old Petoskey Road.

Built of hand-hewn logs, the church was completed in 1860 on the site of an ancient tribal meeting ground.

Nearby stand nine gigantic maple trees in a circle. Their lower limbs were bent outward with thongs when they were saplings as a symbol of peace among Indian tribes in the area.

SERVICES are conducted each Sunday during the summer at 9:30 a.m. by the Rev. Leona Winegarden, pastor of the Charlevoix Methodist Church. The services are conducted in English, with several hymns sung in the Ojibwa language.

The mission church was built by Peter Greensky, an Indian brave who received his Christian training at the Methodist settlement of Bay Mills in the Upper Peninsula. In 1838, Greensky moved to the Lower Peninsula to take part in a Protestant movement then underway in the Grand Traverse Bay area.

Later, Greensky became dissatisfied with the mission and decided to establish a church of his own where he and his followers could worship as they saw fit.

Twenty - seven families joined him on the trek north, through Lake Michigan, Pine River Channel and Round Lake to Pine Lake (now Lake Charlevoix). They came upon the Council Trees where their ancestors had once smoked the peace pipe and decided this would be the site of their church.

THE FIRST structure was a rude shelter of boughs covered with cedar bark. In 1850, work began on the present church. Although the logs were cut from the surrounding woods, the windows and other hardware had to be transported from Traverse City in canoes, and then carried by hand two miles overland from the Lake Charlevoix shore to the hilltop where the church stands.

The building is 26 by 32 feet and has eight windows. The logs are all notched at the ends to make a snug fit and the crevices have been filled with wood and mud.

THE TINY church has had its ups and downs over the years. Sometime back, a parcel of land including the famed Council Trees was purchased by an adjoining farmer. However, the church recently has been able to purchase back some of the property it lost, inspite of a membership of less than 25.

Members also have built a meeting house on the grounds, where church socials and banquets are held. Last year, the old wood-burning stove in the church was replaced by an oil space heater.

Another recent project has been the planting of a new circle of Council Trees adjacent to the church.

Visitors to the area will find it interesting to visit the old Greensky Hill Indian cemetery overlooking Susan Lake, named for Peter Greensky's wife. The older graves, all facing East, are marked off with wooden fences and or rude wooden crosses.

Steelhead Trout Back, But Anglers Seek Bass

by Glen Sheppard

Though the return of steelhead trout to Lake Charlevoix and Little Traverse Bay is still the most exciting news on the sport fishing front, scrappy smallmouth bass remain the major target for most anglers.

This spring steelhead fishermen had fabulous luck on the Jordan, Boyne and Bear rivers and in Lake Charlevoix and Little Traverse Bay. Documented catches of fish weighing up to 13 pounds were made.

SUMMERTIME fishing for the savage-fighting steelies is always less than good, however. So in July and August about the only trout caught in the lakes are taken by bass fishermen who just happen to get lucky.

The Lake Charlevoix shoreline is splattered with smallmouth hotspots. The most consistent producers are areas of the South Arm near Ironton. UNDOUBTEDLY the most proven method for taking the plucky smallmouths (and an occasional steelhead) is to troll just off the shore. Troll slow with Mepps spinner, Jig A Do, Rapala, small Flatfish or Daredevil.

Sometimes you'll snag a surly pike as you work your lure around weedbeds.

If it's the kids you want to please, try dunking worms off docks or near weeds for rock bass and perch. (One of '3m is apt to nail a four-pound bass, though. So be prepared to blush.)

IF YOU hanker to try some of Walloon Lake's reknown angling you can rent a boat in the village, or launch your own at several public sites.

Walloon continues to produce some of the biggest bass in northern Lower Michigan.

STREAM fishermen will find the trout fishing slow on the lower end of the Jordan river, guide Ted Kotowich reports. But, he says, some nice catches of browns are coming from the headwaters.

The short section of the Boyne river that is still open to the public is also reported to be producing fine trout fishing.

IF YOUR fancy runs more to worm dunking, there are plenty of small creeks around that harbor trout. You can try Stover, Deer, Monroe, the Bear out of Walloon Lake, and several that feed into the Jordan.

Worm dunkers also have a good time off the Pine River breakwaters and the railroad bridge, where they can sit and soak up the charm of the Charlevoix harbor and luxury yachts.

If you feel more confident fishing small lakes there's no shortage of them in the Charlevoix-Ellsworth area.

THERE is still a handful of virtually unexploited small lakes known by only a few fishermen. Pike weighing in the 20 pound class and bass that top five pounds come from them.

But to reveal their whereabouts in print would be a violation of an angler's most sacred oath. So dig out a map or buy a native fisherman a drink and find them yourself.

Here's a list, though, of a few of the smaller lakes that are better known and guaranteed to have fish in them:

--Lake 26 (Lake Marlon), for pike, bass, panfish.

--Nowland Lake, for pike,

IF YOU'RE looking for real fishing adventure journey to Beaver Island. Once in St. James you can rent a small boat to take you into the bays of Garden and Hog Islands. These bays are among the nation's top-ranked smallmouth hotspots.

East Jordan Has Lot to Offer

EAST JORDAN--Located at the tip of the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix, East Jordan offers tourists a multitude of recreational activities and personal services.

Fishing and camera enthusiasts alike find Sportsman's Park a favorite haunt. Besides offering anglers a chance to catch perch, bass and trout while relaxing on the Sportsman's Bridge, camera bugs are free to "shoot" any of the wildlife at the park including swans, deer and birds. A picnic area is also available.

ABOUT A MILE from the park on M-66 is the Tourist Park which offers a bathing beach, shuffleboard courts, a picnic area and facilities for nearly 100 campers and trailers. The city maintains an excellent dock for cruisers and small craft, and provides an airport two miles southeast of town.

Tennis courts are located at the school.

A canoe trip down the Jordan River through the scenic Jordan Valley offers both relaxation in beautiful surroundings and excellent fishing.

AT THE HEADWATERS of the Jordan River, a federal fish hatchery which is restocking the Great Lakes with lake trout is open to the public.

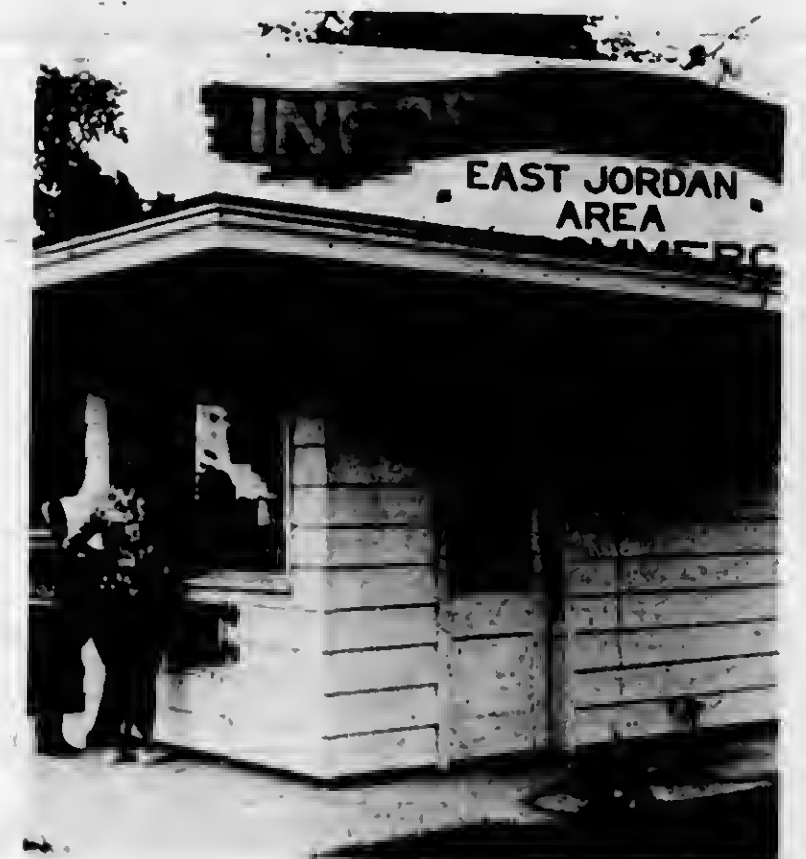

Ninety three per cent of the people in Charlevoix own their own homes.

Two banks serve Charlevoix, the Charlevoix County State Bank and the Charlevoix State Savings Bank.

Charlevoix has a school enrollment of about 1,300 students, with a faculty of 52. It's million-dollar Junior-Senior High School opened in 1961.

EAST JORDAN'S library at Main and Williams Streets holds a special story hour for children Thursday's from 10-11 a.m. Summer hours are from 1-5 p.m. and 7-8:30 p.m. Monday and Wednesday, 1-5 p.m. Tuesday and Friday, 9 a.m. to noon and 1-5 Thursday, and 9 a.m. to noon Saturday.

CHARLEVOIX'S annual Waterfront Fair for Artists and Craftsmen attracts thousands of people to northern Michigan each summer. This year's fair will be held Aug. 12.

Artists Sell Wares at Annual Fair

CHARLEVOIX -- Artists from throughout Michigan and nearby states will converge on Charlevoix Aug. 12 for the 9th annual Waterfront Fair for Artists and Craftsmen. The fair is held in East Park, against a backdrop of Round Lake and the yacht basin.

In fact, many artists come to Charlevoix by boat to show their wares.

Exhibitors are allotted space throughout the park to display and sell their wares.

IN ADDITION to paintings of all kinds, wood carving, ceramics and sculpture are on the bill of fare.

On the park stage, Mr. and

Mrs. Nate Cummings of Chicago usually show some of the paintings from their personal collection, which includes paintings by Picasso, Renoir and Degas. Among others.

THE FAIR has become famous among Michigan painters, because many visitors have a penchant for buying. Last summer a sculpture student sold out his entire work. His profits allowed him to continue his studies at the University of Michigan.

The exhibit appeals to professionals too, with many well established artists numbered among the regular exhibitors.

Dancers Welcome

Square dancing is a popular pastime in Charlevoix County for year 'round residents and visitors alike.

In Charlevoix, the Pairs and Squares have a dance the second and fourth Saturday of each month at St. Mary's School.

In Boyne City, square dances are held the second and fourth Wednesday at the American Legion Hall.

'Spider' Dune Rides Offer Thrills Aplenty

ATWOOD -- Sand dune rides--long a popular form of recreation in western Michigan--are available at this Antrim County community 12 miles south of Charlevoix.

Operated by Melvin Essenberg, "Spider Sand Dune Rides," offers a scenic thrill-tour of the Lake Michigan shore.

THE ROUTE takes passengers past an old Indian campground where pottery fragments have been found and near the site where a Great Lakes freighter sank during a storm.

ESSENBERG says the greatest testimony to the popularity of the rides comes at the end of the tour.

"Kids simply refuse to get out, and teenagers start begging for money so they can ride again."

Rides are made in a Scout, a four-wheel drive vehicle made by International Harvester.

Consumers Power Company's Big Rock Point Nuclear Plant silhouette frequently has reminded artists and photographers of the Trylon and Perisphere which identified the New York World's Fair of 1939...making that event's official symbol truly prophetic. For at Big Rock Point, nuclear energy--a fantastic dream in 1939--is working every day to bring electric power to Consumers Power Company's customers throughout Michigan's Lower Peninsula. More than 430,000 tourists and area residents have visited the plant's Public Information Center since it opened in 1962. Beaver Land Boom Brings New Activity to Scenic Isle

ST. JAMES -- Beaver Island is undergoing its most dramatic change since King Strang and his Mormons settled there in the 1840's.

The 54 - square mile island is the site of the largest land development project in the Midwest. Recreational Properties Inc., affiliated with American Central Land Co. of Lansing, is handling the 1,000-acre development called Port St. James along Font Lake and the northwest portion of the island along Donegal Bay.

Along with developing the land and building between 40 and 50 miles of roads to service the area, the corporation offers many extras to persons who buy lots. Among other things these persons find a swimming pool, riding stable with eight horses and a golf course at their disposal. Hundreds of persons, including many from Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin, have already bought lots within the development.

MUCH OF the attraction to buyers lies in the seclusion the island offers. As an escape from commercialism, the island affords a slow, peaceful way of life. Although the development is geared to this seclusion, both Donegal Bay and Font Lake are only minutes away from both the airport and St. James Harbor.

This seclusion is coupled with the excellent hunting and fishing areas to make the island a perfect vacation spot. Miles of untouched forests where deer, wild turkeys, grouse and rabbits abound are equaled only by the clear, blue fishing waters where smallmouth bass, bluegills, and pike are pulled up by the thousands every year.

Add still another attraction -- the miles of natural sandy beaches.

OTHER activities include horseback riding, miniature golf, hiking, tennis and shuffleboard.

Beaver Island has a modern medical center, directed by a resident doctor.

Coast Guard Activity Keeps City Humming

LIFEGUARD Judy Sommer stands guard at the Ferry Avenue Beach in Charlevoix.

CHARLEVOIX -- Charlevoix is the home of three U.S. Coast Guard activities in northern Michigan. The Coast Guard Cutter Sundew, which is responsible for placing and maintaining all the buoys in northern Lake Michigan and Lake Huron, ties up at the city dock in Charlevoix.

Charlevoix also is the home of the Coast Guard's group headquarters in northern Michigan and is the site of the Charlevoix Coast Guard Station.

THE 180-FOOT Sundew has a crew of 45 men and five officers. Skipper is Lt. Cmdr. Jon Ulthol.

In addition to buoy duties, the Sundew also breaks ice, takes part in search and rescue operations and enforces federal regulations governing maritime activities.

Throughout the summer, the Sundew will hold openhouse each Saturday, Sunday and holiday from 1 until 4 p.m. and from 6 until 8 p.m.

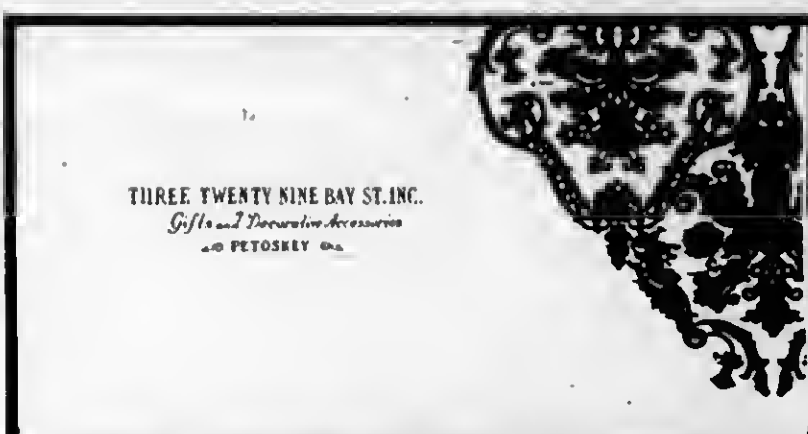

A TOTAL of 81 men presently are assigned to Group Charlevoix, including the 15 men at the Charlevoix Coast Guard Station and five men at the Beaver Island station.

The Group embraces 14 CG stations, including 11 light-houses (seven isolated) and three shore stations in northern Michigan. Group Commander is Lt. Dave Smith. The Charlevoix Coast Guard station operates two boats, a 44-foot motor lifeboat and a 30-foot utility boat. The men on Beaver Island have a 40-foot utility boat.

Men assigned to the station take part in search and rescue operations, inspect pleasure boats and perform law enforcement functions. Charlevoix has been a center for Coast Guard activities in northern Michigan since before the turn of the century.

Had Early Beginning The 101st engineer battalion and the 182nd infantry regiment of the Massachusetts national guard can trace their history back to 1636, when they were first formed into militia regiments.

Beautiful Beaver Awaits You Island Steeped in Lore

ST. JAMES--If you're looking for something different in the way of a vacation re-

creat, why not try Beaver Island -- America's Emerald Isle?

WILD JUNIPER lines the shore of Font Lake, one of Beaver Island's seven inland lakes.

Shuffleboard Courts Open

Shuffleboard fans will be able to practice their sport during their Charlevoix County vacation.

Courts are located in East Park and at the Lake Michigan Beach in Charlevoix, at East Jordan's Tourist Park and at Veteran's Memorial Park in Boyne City.

This summer, Charlevoix Senior Citizens are taking up the sport, with matches every Wednesday afternoon at East Park.

Located northwest of Charlevoix in the middle of northern Lake Michigan, Beaver Island offers everything an island should--and then some.

PHYSICALLY, Beaver Island is as attractive a chunk of island real estate as you're likely to find in North America. Fourteen miles long and from three to six miles wide, the island is still heavily forested. Visitors are amazed at the growth of the giant hemlocks and birches which line the island's 75 miles of narrow, gravel roads.

The island may be reached either by water or air. The motorship Beaver Islander carries mail, freight, passengers and cars from Charlevoix to St. James, 32 miles distant, on a regular schedule from the middle of April until the end of December. Fifteen-minute air service is available either from the Charlevoix or Harbor Springs airports. The island airport has two runways, one of them 3,500 feet long.

OTHERS choose to visit the island in their private yachts, weather permitting. The island has ample dock facilities in a natural, sheltered harbor at St. James.

Transportation on the island is no problem if you bring your car. Otherwise, cars and motorcycles may be rented at St. James. Some vacationers prefer to enjoy the island scenery from a bicycle seat.

THE ONLY community of the island, St. James stretches along the shores of Paradise Bay for more than a mile. The village proper has two general stores, two bars, three restaurants and numerous motels, hotels, rental cottages, lodges and rooming houses. An excellent restaurant-bar is located one mile south of the village in what was formerly the Holy Cross parsonage.

LIKE MOST islands, Beaver Island has a mystery. Archeologists are still puzzled as to the origin and the fate of the first "mound builders" who made their home on Beaver Island. Their worship and burial mounds are still to be seen.

Later, the island was inhabited by Chippewa and Ottawa Indians, many of whom still make their home there.

Beautiful Beaver

band of Mormons led by James Jesse Strang moved to the island from Voree, Wisc., in order to practice their religion without interference. Strang, a rural New York lawyer, had himself crowned "King of the Earth", built a Mormon tabernacle and laid out the village of St. James, named after himself.

However King Strang proved to be a dictatorial ruler. He outlawed the use of tea, tobacco and liquor on the island, instructed the women to wear bloomers instead of long skirts and legalized polygamy.

The Irish mainlanders were aghast at his high-handed dictums and eventually Strang's own people turned against him. Following his assassination June 16, 1856, by one of his followers, the Irish moved in, bodily evicting some 2,000 of his followers.

Before long the island was populated entirely by Irish fishermen, whose descendants make up the bulk of the island population today. If you listen to a native Beaver Islander talk, you'll catch a trace of the brogue his ancestors brought over from the Auld Sod.

At one time, the wooded island was visited daily by Great Lakes steamers, since it was a convenient place to stop and pick up firewood for their boilers en route from Chicago to Detroit.

Although the fishing industry is not what it once was, at least one commercial fisherman still operates out of St. James bringing in excellent catches of whitefish.

HOWEVER, the main industry today is tourism. Americans by the thousands have found on Beaver Island the peace and solitude which have

Russian Nobleman Escaped to Beavers

ST. JAMES--Many Beaver Islanders have stories to tell about the late Dr. Feodore Protar, a Russian nobleman who found his Shangri-la on America's Emerald Isle.

The scion of a wealthy family, Dr. Protar was sent to Siberia by the Czarist government for his liberal ideas. He managed to escape from Russia in the guise of a priest, making his way to Germany where he spent several years.

IN THE LATTER half of the last century he emigrated to the United States, where he published a German language newspaper in Illinois.

He had no formal medical training, but was fascinated by the healing arts and studied medicine on his own.

ONCE he took a trip aboard a Lake Michigan steamer which visited Beaver Island. It was love at first sight. He later wrote to friends that the island was "the breeding place of whitefish and Galaghers."

Before long, Dr. Protar disposed of his newspaper interests, bought some farm equipment and moved to the island, never to leave again.

However he never farmed. Shortly after he arrived he found a farm family which could make better use of the equipment than he would and gave it to them. Instead, he became the island's only "doctor", treating his patients' aches and pains, stitching their wounds and setting all but vanished from other vacation retreats. Attractive summer cottages have sprung up along the Lake Michigan shore as well as on some of the islands seven inland lakes.

This summer, American Central Land Co. of Lansing has given the tourist industry a big push by subdividing several thousands of acres on the island for resort development.

THE 54-SQUARE mile island still teems with wildlife, including grouse, rabbits, squirrels, ducks, geese, deer, and wild turkeys and the hunting is superb.

Fishing in the Beavers is generally excellent. Three of the islands inland lakes yield game and panfish. The perch run in Paradise Bay each spring and fall is one of the finest on the Great Lakes. Bass and pike fishing in the waters off nearby Garden Island attract many fishermen by motor launch from St. James. Lake Genesareth on Beaver Island has a public fishing site, with a boat launching ramp.

their broken bones. Although his pay was necessarily meager, Dr. Protar never seemed to want for money. Stories are still current on the island that he continued to receive an income from his family estate in Russia during his residency on Beaver Island.

DR. PROTAR's log home still stands, pretty much as it was at the time of his death in 1926. It is now owned by the Beaver Island Historical Society. Pat Bonner, a close friend of Protar's, lives across the road, and will open the door if anyone wants to look around inside.

Nearby is Dr. Protar's tomb, erected by the grateful inhabitants of the island. It consists of a fieldstone enclosure around his grave and a bronze plaque bearing his likeness.

Behind the tomb is a huge boulder upon which Dr. Protar used to sit in a chair and read. It was close to the tracks of a lumber railroad which once ran the length of the island.

Dr. Protar also had another favorite "study" on the island, a clearing in the woods at the foot of Bonner's Bluff, a steep escarpment which drops off to the western shore of the island. The clearing actually was a tiny island in the middle of a flaring spring, reached by rustic bridges.

After his death, a well-meaning islander fenced it off as a memorial to the doctor, but the fence kept out browsing deer as well as intruders.

Hunting For Petoskey Stones

CHARLEVOIX -- Charlevoix's Lake Michigan beaches are a prime hunting ground for the elusive Petoskey stone---the state stone of Michigan. Formed millions of years ago, the stones actually are petrified "colony corals" which lived when northern Michigan was at the bottom of a tropical sea.

Although it is named for the city of Petoskey, the stones are plentiful---if you have a sharp eye---many places along the northern Lake Michigan shore. Some excellent stones have been found at Bells Bay, about five miles south of Charlevoix.

PETOSKEY stones may look like this when you find them on the Lake Michigan shore.

POLISHED, the stones make attractive pieces for jewelry and other decorations. Kits are available to hand-polish the stones.

When polished, the stones make beautiful earrings, cufflinks and brooches. Larger stones may be used as paperweights or door stops.

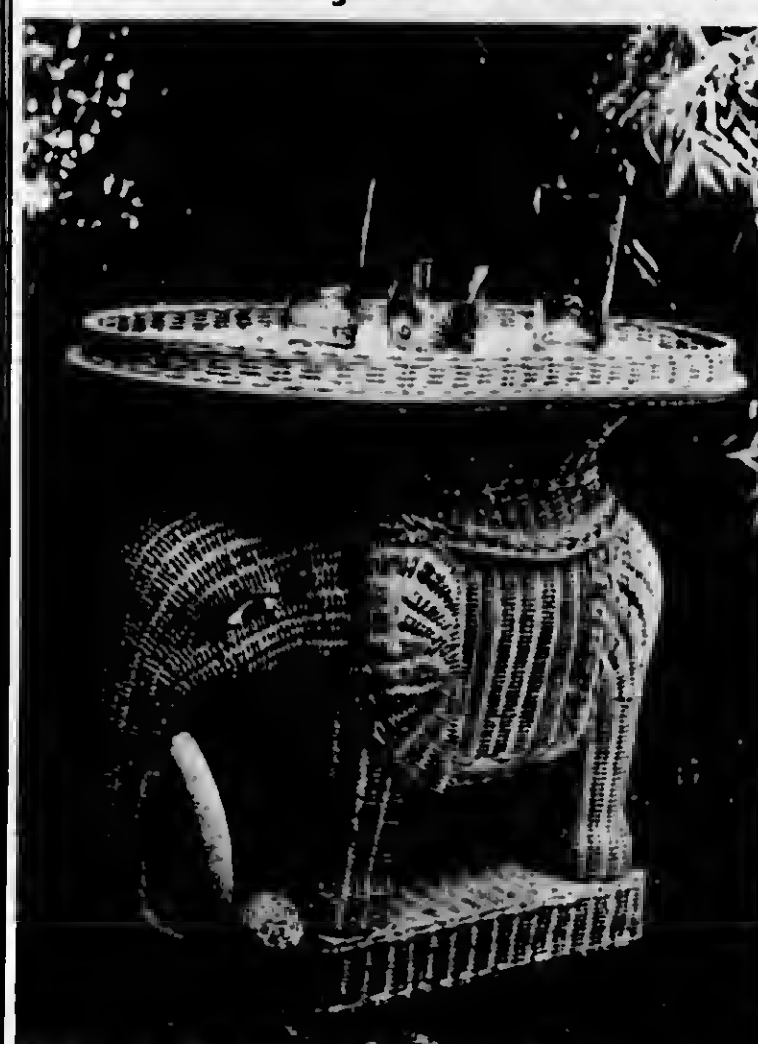

PETOSKEY stones are easiest to spot when they are wet, since moisture brings out the hexagonal (six-sided) pattern of the original coral. An uncut Petoskey stone may sometimes appear as an ordinary rock covered with tiny bumps.

Other stones, particularly those at the water's edge, clearly show the hex lines which are the mark of a true Petoskey specimen.

Mormons Put Up 1st Cabins at Boyne

Boyne City's history goes back to 1856 when John Miller, his wife and two sons along with John Dixon sailed across Pine Lake (now Lake Charlevoix) from Charlevoix to settle at North Boyne.

Miller, originally from Ireland, found some vacant cabins formerly occupied by the Mormons who were forced to leave and moved in with his family and Dixon.

MILLER CALLED the area "River Boyne" after a river in Ireland where a decisive battle was fought.

After that it was called Boyne Village until 1904 when it became Boyne City.

BOYNE CITY now has a population of about 3,000 persons with a summer increase of about 2,000. The city's major industries include Boyne Products, Inc., Roble Industrial Counter Products, Howe's Leather Company and Mill's Cabin Mills.

In 1961 a new high school and elementary school was built and the city has 12 churches.

Boyne City has seven city parks including Whiting Park where children's swimming classes are held mornings and afternoons. Young State Park, two miles northwest of the city, features a bathing beach with a life guard on duty, picnic facilities, camp sites, and a park store on its 536 acres.

THE CITY also has four marinas, a new steel bulkhead dock with accommodations for crafts up to 60 feet long, tennis courts, shuffleboard and playground equipment, a nine hole golf course and riding stables.

Wednesday evenings at 8 p.m. band concerts are held at Memorial Park with a dance following the concerts.

New Port St. James on Beaver Island

A FAMILY VACATIONLAND

Life is great in Port St. James on scenic Beaver Island. For fishing, hunting, picnicking, exploring, shooting pictures or delving into the romance of the past, there's just no place like Port St. James. There is swimming, hiking, horseback riding, and an inexhaustible supply of subjects for the camera fan such as scenic spots, wild life, and the quaintness of "old Ireland" found in no other place in America.

FISHING

Go fishing for big Lake Michigan perch and bass in spring and fall, and enjoy ice-fishing fun in winter. Beaver Island's inland lakes are teeming with smallmouth bass, blue gills and pike. And these fish from the crystal clear waters of Lake Michigan are a gourmet's delight.

HUNTING

Beaver Island is a hunter's paradise with over 1,000 deer inviting archers and riflemen. Ruffed grouse and duck offer sport for the small game hunter. For those hardy individuals who like the chase, there is the excitement of fox, coyote, and rabbit hunting with dogs during the winter months.

BROOK TROUT-GOLF-MUSHROOMS

Fox Lake, one of the most beautiful lakes on the island, provides good trout fishing and produces speckled beauties up to 14 inches in length.

For the golfer there's an intriguing nine-hole golf course that can be more challenging than it appears.

The island, too, is a newly discovered paradise for mushroom hunters. There are hundreds of acres of ideal mushroom country and gathering these delicacies is becoming increasingly popular with our guests on the island.

THE INTERMEDIATE Chain of Lakes Association will discuss its course of action concerning the "tube bridge" and other problems this Monday night at their meeting in Central Lake. Above is the old bridge connecting Ellsworth and St. Clair Lakes.

ABOVE IS the new bridge, built six years ago. The association claims it violates the rights of lakefront property owners.

Lake Residents Press War on Tube Bridge

ELLSWORTH — The Intermediate Chain of Lakes Association is holding a membership drive meeting Monday, Aug. 7, in the Central Lake A.V. Hall at 8 p.m., to discuss mutual problems, including the tube bridge over Ellsworth Lake.

All property owners on Beards, Scott, Six Mile, St. Clair, Ellsworth, Wilson, Benway, Haines, and Intermediate Lakes and connecting rivers are invited to attend the meeting.

MRS. JAMES J. JAMES, secretary-treasurer, said the organization was formed last fall to promote projects and find solutions to problems facing waterfront property owners through a united and unified organization.

She said the most recent problem is the tube bridge over Ellsworth Lake.

She said, "Recently the Clinton County Board of Supervisors refused to grant a motion presented by one of its members asking members to gather information on specifications and costs for an adequate bridge crossing between St. Clair and Ellsworth Lakes."

She added, "Michigan Statutes, Sec. 247 provides that a board of supervisors shall have the power to make general rules and regulations as to the kind of bridges, and mode of construction of same over such streams, as shall be judged proper with reference to the safety of boats, rafts and other vessels."

SHE SAID creation of Island from Arab soil at the end of World War II is still the main bone of contention in the Near East. Thousands of Arabs who formerly lived in what is now Israel are still crowded into what she called "concentration camps."

MRS. POMEROY, who is a guide for the Mercury Travel Bureau in St. Paul, said she had just seen a tour back to the United States and was investigating some ancient Egypt churches in Ethiopia when the fighting broke out.

When she returned to Cairo, she was surprised to find all Americans had been evacuated. After several days she managed to secure a seat on a flight to Beirut, Lebanon.

MRS. POMEROY, who makes an average of two trips to the Middle East every year as a tour guide, said she has needed a mounting hostility toward the west among the Arab nations in recent years.

MRS. POMEROY said she encountered outward hostility toward Americans only in Syria where she was with the 25th anniversary celebration of her 25th birthday class from Charlevoix High School.

Double Rites Planned at Boyne City

BOYNE CITY — A double funeral service for the late Mrs. Mary Pomeroy will be held at 2 p.m. Thursday at the Boyne City High School auditorium.

The victims were Patrick Varnum, 19, son of Charlevoix County President and Mrs. Harvey Varnum, and Collins Dolan.

No Word

CHARLEVOIX — At press time, the Red Milligans of North Point had received no word from the Navy regarding the safety of their son, Red Jr., a sailor aboard the aircraft carrier USS Forrestal which burned off Vietnam Saturday. He was not listed among the first casualties.

Traveler Claims America Has Lost Trust of Arabs

CHARLEVOIX — A world traveler who was in Africa when the Arab-Israeli war broke out thinks that Israel is getting off lightly in the eyes of the world for her role in the almost conflict which extended her boundaries to the Suez Canal.

She is Mrs. Mary Pomeroy of St. Paul, Minn., the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mills of St. Paul Avenue.

Charlevoix Named Home of Fish Research Station

60-Foot 'Steelhead' Also Will Dock Here

CHARLEVOIX — The Conservation Department's new Great Lakes Fisheries Station will be located in Charlevoix, State Rep. Robert W. Davis has announced in Lansing.

The announcement ended months of speculation on where on Lake Michigan the station would be located. Manitowish in the Upper Peninsula was a strong contender.

THE STATE will make use of the present federal fish hatchery on Pine River Channel at the Lake Michigan shore. It will be home port for a 60-foot Great Lakes survey vessel, the Steelhead, now under construction in Escanaba.

The vessel will start fishery investigations next spring.

Davis said Myrl Keller will be station supervisor and the station will be named in the end of August.

SKIPPER of the Steelhead will be William J. Palmer of Escanaba. His appointment was announced by C. Troy Yoder, Region II Conservation Department manager.

IN ANNOUNCING the location of the station, Davis said:

"Our plans for regulating sport and commercial fishing on the Great Lakes to yield top allowable returns are pegged to getting precise and dependable information on fish stocks."

With this new boat and station, we'll be able to do the kind of scientific and systematic job of monitoring fish stocks that is required to make our plans pay off."

MAJOR emphasis at the beginning will be on salmon and trout in Lakes Superior and Michigan where efforts are furthest along for rebuilding quality fish populations.

The station will be manned by skeleton crew at the onset, with staff additions as the program gets underway.

PALMER, 35, comes to his new assignment as Steelhead skipper with a broad background of boats, rafts and outdoor life. He will be in charge of the station.

Former U.S. Hatchery lifetime experience, including five years with the Navy and four years with the Coast Guard. For the past six years he has operated vessels on the Great Lakes for the U.S. Corps of Engineers.

He and his wife Rosemary and three children plan to live in Charlevoix.

Ellsworth Votes Aug. 7

ELLSWORTH — Voters here will be asked to approve 12 mills for school operations Monday, Aug. 7.

Superintendent John Jorgensen said the 12 mills will be combined with 9.3 mills from the allocation board giving the school a total of 21.3 mills.

HE ADDED that the school expects $60,000 in state aid. Based on 50 percent tax collection, which is the guideline the board uses, the school's estimated $41 million, the school should collect about $77,000 in total millage.

Due to salary increases for teachers, about $130,000 is earmarked for salaries.

Miss Peters to Lead Band

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix City Band concert tonight will be conducted by Miss Evelyn Peters in the absence of Director Clarence Odmarr, who is on vacation.

A graduate of Charlevoix High School and Northern Michigan University, Miss Peters teaches instrumental music in the Charlevoix school system. She has assisted Odmarr with the City Band during the past six weeks.

The concert begins at 8 p.m. in East Park.

New Pastor at EJ Church

EAST JORDAN — Rev. James Larson will be installed here Sunday morning at 11:15 as new minister of the Evangelical Lutheran Church.

Rev. Larson succeeds Rev. Warren Salverson who left the ministerial post in January at the church to take a position with a camp near Strawberry, Iowa.

AMERICAN Lutheran Conference District President Robert Wedemeyer will be on hand for the installation service as will the combined East Jordan Presbyterian and Lutheran choirs.

A native of Muskegon, Rev. Larson is a graduate of Hope College and Wartburg Seminary in Dubuque, Iowa. For the past three years he was pastor at the Trinity Lutheran Church in New Era.

Rev. Larson is married and has two children.

He added that Israel is the only nation in the Arab world to recognize the Communist party, and that 90 percent of the land in Israel is owned by the government.

MRS. POMEROY said the incident which touched off the war — the docking of the Gulf of Amman by Egypt — was merely an attempt by the big powers to prevent recognition of the refugee problem.

Israel's rapid defeat of her Arab neighbors was laid to the Jew's rugged military training program and compulsory government service.

The Egyptian army, on the other hand, has an officer corps made up largely of the sons of wealthy families. Training is inadequate and a tour of duty with the Army is looked upon more as a vacation for the elite than as a serious business.

Council Hot and Cold on Shower Building shower and toilet facilities, the most expensive portion of any structure.

ONE ALDERMAN objected to the building on grounds that it will be used chiefly by yachtsmen — not taxpayers.

"How many people go downtown to the bathroom?" one of them asked.

Mayor Lockman said: "There's a lot of building there for the public, whether they're yachtsmen, visitors or year-round residents."

ANOTHER alderman objected that insufficient money has been set aside in the budget for the building. (The original estimate was $50,000.)

Alderman favoring the building said there is ample money in the electric reserve fund to make up the deficit.

ONE ALDERMAN thought the city would be wise to wait to see if prices come down. His colleagues thought there was little likelihood of that happening.

"The Water Resources Commission has agreed to help with the cost of the building in hopes it will help abate pollution of Round Lake resulting from the large number of yachts which visit Charlevoix every summer."

A vote on the building must be taken at the next Council meeting Aug. 7, two days before the bids expire.

Grid Practice Starts Friday

CHARLEVOIX — Pre-season football conditioning will begin Friday, Aug. 4, at 5:30 p.m. at the football field, according to Coach Don Carro.

After a physical examination card and will be required to have his own physical from his family doctor.

Vote Monday

CHARLEVOIX — Charlevoix School District will vote on the polls Monday, Aug. 7, to vote on 6.5 mills for school operations. The polls at the High School will be open from 7 a.m. until 8 p.m.

A NEW EXPERIENCE was in store for the 15 pre-schoolers taking part in Charlevoix's first federally-sponsored Head Start program when they visited Charlevoix Airport last Friday morning. With them were instructors Dorothy McBride (left) and Diana Weisgerber. The program has two weeks to run.

GROUND BREAKING for an addition to the Assembly of God Church on East Upright Street was held Sunday. From left are Dawson Way, Ivan Byard, Max McGlashen, Dick Way, Gordon Capelin, Doug Way, Eugene Drost, Parvin Lee, Asst. District Superintendent, Charles Elzinga and pastor Donald Schorsch. The new addition will house Sunday school rooms and a fellowship hall.

I Am A Clown -- I Like To Go To Church

I'm always glad to take time away from life's concerns and demands—yes, a clown has them—just to worship in peace and quiet. For me it is good to banish material thoughts and desires and set my mind on spiritual things. I am thankful for the opportunity to worship, meditate and pray. It is good for a clown to pray.

Occasionally, I am in a situation where I cannot attend church. It is a real pity, but I realize that I am not alone. I am sure that I am not the only one who is in a situation where I cannot attend church. I am sure that I am not the only one who is in a situation where I cannot attend church. I am sure that I am not the only one who is in a situation where I cannot attend church.

Camp Charlevoix

Corrall Chatter

The fifth week of camp was the start of a camping season for many boys and they were eager as the many activities started. It was a beautiful, sunny hot day, and along about evening, the rains came and the entire camp met in the big gym for a movie.

Tuesday was a very fine sunny day, the temperature in the low 80's and just right for everyone to feel great. The first trip out of camp this morning was Rusty Smith taking his boys on a canoe trip down the Jordan River. These boys were: Paul Blumberg, David Rhame, Steve Storms, Peter Bowers, Randy Chapman, John Tiesdale, John Worchester and Dick Hyma.

DAMP SWIMMING trunks and wet towels hanging on lines at end of cabin indicate that swimming is a popular sport at Camp Charlevoix. This is one of the log cottages used as sleeping quarters at the camp.

After the noon meal, the Green and the Grey and to fill vacant places in their leadership, and the following boys were elected: Senior Greens, Paul Kelly, Captain. His lieutenants are John Park and Steve Bromley. Intermediate Greens chose Paul Dancer, captain, with Lee Merrill and Mark Huffin, as his assistants. The Grey Section chose as their Green Captain Sheriff Guidi, and as the lieutenants, Dan Buckley and Dick Skaff. The Senior Greys chose Captain Mike Kelly, with Dave Washburn and Ross Deeken as his assistants. The Intermediate Greys picked Chuck Gardella as captain, and Steve Storms and Bob Howell as lieutenants. The Juniors will hold their election later.

Wednesday, the Juniors had their elections. The Greens are being led by Brad Matt, captain, with Robie Quinn and David Townsend as lieutenants. The Greys chose Jim Huddleston as captain with Chuck Zitsman and Jim Douglas as lieutenants. The Juniors, the boys being: Don Lewellen, Henry Whiting, Hank Dow, Bill Ricker, Steve Botheroyd, Tom Spurgeon, Bob Phillips, and Dan Noel. Friday, another great day for camping, sunny, warm, and just right for the boys to enjoy their activities. The boys left camp with those boys chosen to take a horse-back overnight trip, these boys were: Steve Gunning, Dave Smith, Steve Storms, Russ Barbone, Greg Roise, Mike Kelly, Rick Wilkins, Dave Rhame, Gus Gluck, Riley Turner, Paul Dancer, Jeff Rustle, George Kiser, Mark Huffin, Joe Michael, Leigh Merrill, Mark Hildenbrandt, Andy Case and Jeff Young. In the afternoon, Rusty Smith took a softball team down to Camp Sea-Down today a double-header, and they won both games by close scores, 5-3, 5-2, the boys enjoyed it very much. The boys on the team were: John Worcester, Colin Hamilton, Chuck Gardella, Woody Boydell, John Park, Ken Mabbatt, Kim Kuehn, George Boomer, Kevin Geer, Greg Gallini, Steve Rentschler, Fred Beyer, Lee Jackson and Duke Bertke.

ON SATURDAY, the horse trip returned to camp, and the boys had many tall tales to tell. Later, each section had a relay evening. The Greys picked up another three points, and the lowly Greens are struggling to keep up with them.

This is "Capture the Campers", with all campers hiding in the woods and the staff trying to find them. The side with the least number caught gets the points. After an hour of searching, the staff managed to find a great number of the boys, and when the points were added up, the Greys had won down to Camp Sea-Down today a double-header, and they won both games by close scores, 5-3, 5-2, the boys enjoyed it very much. The boys on the team were: John Worcester, Colin Hamilton, Chuck Gardella, Woody Boydell, John Park, Ken Mabbatt, Kim Kuehn, George Boomer, Kevin Geer, Greg Gallini, Steve Rentschler, Fred Beyer, Lee Jackson and Duke Bertke.

Clockwise 'Burn, Baby, Burn'

By Bob Clock

It's a pretty sad time for a fellow when they turn down his home town.

Like many expatriots from Detroit now living in Charlevoix, I was glad to learn last Monday morning that the Arsenal of Democracy was once again embroiled in a racial riot.

Then Tuesday morning the Detroit Free Press carried an aerial photograph of the neighborhood where I was born. Clouds of smoke were rolling out of a block of buildings at the end of our old street--- Larchmont. One of the burning buildings was the Kroger Store on Grand River where I worked all through high school as a stockboy.

There was a long stretch of relative quiet near Northwestern Field, but east of Olympia Stadium it appeared like all hell had broken loose.

THE SAME newspaper contained a column by Judd Arnet saying that anyone who cherished memories of Grand River, the way she used to be, had better polish them up and stow them away for safe keeping, because Grand River would never be the same again. The destruction was well-nigh total.

It was enough to make you sick. Sunday morning Chapel was held in the outdoor Chapel with Mike Madosky as the speaker. He chose as his subject, "Responsibility and Honor and Responsibility." It was one of the finest talks we have ever had given here. The one could have heard a pin drop as he was speaking. This young man on our staff has spent several years in school on Oklahoma and has traveled much. The scripture was read by Steve Bromley and the prayer was given by Jim Walsh. Jonathan Howard conducted the service.

In the afternoon, we had a waterfront afternoon, and as it was a hot day, the boys enjoyed the water. Henry Dow, Midland, Mich., won the sailing race. The Greys picked up another two points to the Greens one point, bringing the score to Greys 30, Greens 22.

practically faded, and relations between whites and Negroes had never been better. Schools were integrated---which they weren't in 1943---and there was scarcely a shop, a restaurant or a theater in Detroit which did not number Negroes among its regular patrons. Likewise, whites were welcome customers at Negro "black and tans."

THEN LAST January, when Judy and I made our ill-fated trip "down below" to attend the Michigan Press Association convention in Lansing and got snow-bound in Plymouth, I began to wonder if trouble was about.

That Saturday night, Judy and I lucked the snowdrifts to get downtown to see "Look Homeward, Angel" at the Bonstelle Playhouse. Enroute home, I decided to drive through my old neighborhood, just to see how she was getting along. When we turned the corner from Treen onto beechwood, I almost had to come to a dead stop. A band of young flat-shaking hoodlums was blocking the road. I told Judy to lock our doors and I stepped on the gas. A few blocks further on the same thing happened, but I wasn't about to stop to find out what they wanted.

THEN TWO weeks ago, I learned that big trouble was brewing in the city of Detroit. A police sergeant from the Motor City stopped at the office to buy a paper and pass the time of day. He said when he left on his vacation, he didn't leave any forwarding address, but merely told his boss he was going to "touring."

HE SAID police officers, particularly younger men, are leaving the force in droves. Some, he said, are dissatisfied with the pay, but most of them are angry with city officials whose instructions to treat lightly in dealing with the lawless element in Detroit's seething ghettos has effectively tied their hands. A Negro judge, in particular, came in for sharp criticism. The sergeant said it is virtually impossible for the prosecutor to win a case involving a Negro before this particular judge, regardless of evidence. Case after case is being thrown out, either during the preliminary examination or in the trial court.

IT IS CURIOUS that one of the main complaints of the rioting Negroes is that they are tired of living in Detroit's "ghettos." In the 12th Street-Linwood Avenue area where rioting started, this is the area which lies between our old home and the area where my grandmother used to live at Tuxedo and LaSalle.

When I was a kid I used to roller skate over to see her quite frequently, traveling on both these streets, and I can attest to the fact that they were far from being "ghettos" before the neighborhood changed following World War II. To the contrary, it was one of the finest neighborhoods in the city.

ONE BLOCK west of Linwood lies LaSalle, certainly one of the most fashionable streets in Detroit at one time. Scarcely a home for blocks contained fewer than ten or 12 rooms, each with a spacious yard. The street itself was lined with Lombard poplars, and strange as it seems today, this is where you took visitors when you wanted to show them how the "better half" lived.

Dear Sir: In mind that this is not an "old" neighborhood, as neighborhoods go. Many of the buildings and homes on Bridge Street, Park Avenue and Clark Avenue in Charlevoix are twice as old. Yet now they're calling Linwood and 12th Street "ghettos" and everyone wants to get out. Perhaps if someone could find out what has caused these ghettos down the floor, but is hard on the top.

Needed: A 'Yes' Vote on Millage

Charlevoix School District is moving down to the wire for the Aug. 7 school election.

Voters will be asked to approve 6.5 mills for school operation during the 1967-68 school year---some four mills more than they were asked to pay last year.

By now, most voters in the community must know that the district needs the added millage if it expects good schools.

As important as state assistance has become in running the school district, it is the money raised locally which lifts a school district above mediocrity.

The fact remains that we cannot have the kind of school system we want without the added millage.

WE WANT our children to have ample classroom space.

We want them to have the materials which will best help them to learn.

We want a range and depth of courses second to none in Michigan.

We want the best teachers we can afford.

And we want to pay them what they're worth.

If this is the kind of school system you want, don't fail to show up at the polls Monday, Aug. 7.

Why the Secrecy at Ellsworth?

It's no secret that Ellsworth Community School needs money if it plans to open in the fall. What is a secret, however, is just what the board plans to do with the money if it gets it.

With three defeated millage proposals already under the board's belt, it seems the board would be eager to inform the public as to just why it needs the money and what it plans to do with it.

THE BOARD is asking for 12 mills in the next election. Voters must be wondering what it plans to do with the money and how that particular figure was reached. It simply could have been picked out of a hat, but nobody knows for sure and the board isn't saying. One can only assume the board settled on 12 mills and will build its budget around it.

BESIDES refusing to answer questions about the budget, the board also declined to discuss anything about the millage.

Why all the secrecy? The Ellsworth board appears to have lost sight of the fact that members are elected officials and they have an obligation to keep the voters informed as to how their tax dollars are being spent.

With the school year only a few weeks off and the district without any local tax money, it seems the board would welcome all the public support it could muster.

Tips on Saving School Dollars

Ellsworth School Board President Maurice Taylor was overheard at last week's school board meeting earnestly suggesting that the school make all of its long distance calls collect, in order to save money.

Since the Courier is also interested in saving money on the school front, we offer some further suggestions the board might wish to adopt in the interest of economy.

---Save all worn art books, the leaves make excellent paper towels.

---SUPPLY STUDENTS with one paper plate and eraser at the beginning of the school year. This should save considerably on detergent and dishwasher.

---Place "out of order" signs on all the drinking fountains.

After all, a penny saved is a penny earned.

Letters to the Editor

Janssen Tells Why He Resigned

Mr. Bob Clock, Editor
Charlevoix Courier,
Charlevoix, Michigan 49720

Dear Mr. Clock:

A resignation from a position of public trust would seem to be entitled to the privilege of personal expression by the person involved. At the time of my decision I advised your newspaper's representative that I hoped to have the opportunity of presenting to him a written statement outlining my reasons for leaving. This was expected to be a statement of few words. Now that the personality issues have been aired in print, the brevity intended is more difficult.

First, I do not subscribe to the obvious "We have come to bury Caesar, not to praise him" celebration of the occasion. Trust, there have been mistakes and frustrations in my work. Some of them were self-imposed. Others resulted from a lack of understanding and/or acceptance of the legitimate role of the intermediate office by certain constituent schools. It takes time for everyone in education to agree one with the other on all of the changing implications of new legislation dealing with the problems of direction in education, and effectively promoting new services for our deserving children. Feuds that have existed are behind us. That that continues to exist are juvenile. To have them exist in the future is unacceptable, indeed rankly irresponsible. To be sure there has not been simply a plague on our house, I wish people slowly than ours, while I have seen few that have developed faster. This is not to say that anyone is entitled to feel superior and arrogant. To the contrary, the battle needs to be pressed with continuing vigor until every child is served in whatever area of disability may be found. This was the intent of state legislation passed in recent years, governing Special Education services. The intermediate office has attempted to implement this legislation. It goes without saying that it will continue to do so. I hope that you will give me space for a few words on head start. Because of a change in the economic formula which was announced at the close of the school year, a second survey was needed to establish the number of children under the old formula an insufficient number of children were found, the higher economic factor allowed for a sufficiently increased number of children. Also, owing to the rush of school closing time, it was at our suggestion that personnel of the Office of Economic Opportunity be used to make the needed second survey. By friendly arrangement all of the Charlevoix County superintendents expressed agreement to hold head start classes if the qualified children should be found. They were found (on the new formula), the rooms and staff were provided, and I have enjoyed their student cooperation. Please let this become a part of the record.

Finally, my resignation was overwhelmingly based on a bigger and more challenging position at the Livingston County Intermediate School District. I have qualms about leaving my friends. To all of them I express my appreciation. "Part we in friendship from your land, And noble Earl, receive my last."

Sincerely yours,
Law H. Janssen

Army Promotes Bob Bergmann

Dear Mr. Clock:

Just thought I'd drop you a line to let you know I have completed Drill Corporal School here at Fort Knox. I have studied subjects such as military leadership and how to conduct classes in all phases of military training. I carried a 93.7 academic average, scoring 87% out of a possible 1,000 points, and graduating fourth in my class of 119. We were trained in hand-to-hand combat, physical training and bayonet and dismounted drill.

WE ALSO had daily personal and barracks inspections based on the demerit system. I finished with 41 demerits over the four-week course.

I have received appointment to PFC-Acting Corporal as of the 12th of July. My new job will be training trainees here at Fort Knox. On the 1st of November I will attend Drill Sergeant School for six weeks. Upon graduation I will be awarded with the "Smokey Bear" campaign hat, I should then get a two-week leave for Christmas. When I return I will be assigned to a basic training unit until my tour of duty ends in February, 1969. I really enjoy getting the Courier every week to let me know what is going on back home.

It's just about noon and time for chow. So my new address will be: Cpl. Robert R. Bergmann, US 4-64-292 A-6-A Det. II, USATCA Fort Knox, Ky. 40121. Thanks for sending the Courier.

Sincerely,
Cpl. Robert R. Bergmann

Larry Anders Joins Throng at Jamboree

CHARLEVOIX--Larry Anders, 12, is representing Charlevoix at the 12th World Boy Scout Jamboree in Farragut Park, Idaho.

Larry left Charlevoix last Wednesday through the American west, including the nine-day jamboree which will bring together more than 14,000 Scouts from nearly 100 countries.

LARRY is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Anders of Auld St. The Charlevoix Kiwanis Club is helping finance his trip west.

The American delegation at the jamboree is the largest, numbering about 4,000. Canada, Mexico and Great Britain each sent almost 1,000.

Scout officials have been working for months on the logistics of the gigantic camp-out, particularly the problem of rounding up enough chow to feed 14,000 hungry boys.

The menu includes 49,154 hamburger patties, a ton of salmon, two tons of beef and thousands of tons of peanut butter and loaves of bread.

En-route to the jamboree, boys from the East were scheduled to visit the Black Hills, a visit to the Space Needle at the site of the 1961 World's Fair in Seattle, a tour of the battleship USS Missouri and a day in Victoria, B.C.

As large as it is, the jamboree is not the biggest in Scouting history. The first, held in England in 1920, drew 18,000 Scouts, with almost 50,000 attending the 1929 jamboree, also in England.

STATE POLICE said the car was driven by Varnum when it hit the abutment at 5:45 a.m. The two young men were on their way to work in Sault Ste. Marie.

Belford was killed instantly and Varnum died at 2:30 Tuesday morning at War Memorial Hospital in the 500.

The young men were 1966 graduates of Boyne City High School and had been active in football and basketball.

Charlevoix County Clerk Fenton R. Bulewicz says offices in the County Building, where young Varnum's father maintained an office will be closed from noon Thursday until after the funeral.

VARNUM, who would have been a sophomore at the University of Michigan this fall, is survived by his parents, one brother, Paul, and three sisters, Pamela, Penelope and Peggy, all of Boyne City. Also surviving are two grandmothers, Mrs. Edward (Margaret) Watkins and Mrs. Clark (Elsie) Varnum, both of Highland Park.

Varnum was born in Ann Arbor while his father was attending the University of Michigan. In high school he was named an all-conference center and tackle.

BELFORD is survived by his parents, four brothers, Terry, in the U.S. Marine Corps; Jeffery and Gerald of Boyne City, and Robert of Lansing; five sisters, Mrs. Dale (Charlotte) Looze of East Jordan; Mrs. Allen (Colleen) Ingals of Ellsworth; and Charlotte, Cindy and Bridget of Boyne City. His grandfather, Henry FitzPatrick, lives in Boyne City and his grandmother, Mrs. Charlotte Whitmore, in Peoria, Ill.

Belford would have been a sophomore at Ferris State College this fall. The bodies will be at the Stacks Funeral Home until noon Thursday.

THE PISTOL team from the Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club received trophies at the annual banquet last Thursday at Bay View Inn. Fifteen members and wives were present from Charlevoix and Petoskey, including several from the U.S. Coast Guard.

ANDY ANDERSON proudly displays his 14 1/2 pound brown trout Wednesday in East Jordan.

Trout May Set Record

EAST JORDAN--No fisherman's tale is Andy Anderson's story.

Anderson had proof of his gigantic catch with him Wednesday morning in East Jordan for everyone to see.

Flycasting at midnight, he reeled his 14 1/2 pound female brown trout in near Roger's Bridge in the Jordan River.

Anderson said it took him between 30 and 45 minutes to pull the 29 inch fish in. The fish measured 19 1/2 inches around.

TEDDY KOTOWICH, of Kotowich's Boats and Canoes, is pretty much of an authority on fish and he said Anderson's catch was the largest brown trout he's ever seen pulled out of the river. Other persons wandering over to admire the fish all agreed with Kotowich.

Anderson's story doesn't end there, however. The following night he reeled in a ten pound male brown trout. This one was 28 inches long and 16 1/2 inches around.

Beautiful Charlevoix County Has Something for Everyone

CHARLEVOIX -- There's something for everyone in Charlevoix County.

Located 270 miles northwest of Detroit, 350 miles northeast of Chicago, 54 miles southwest of Mackinaw City, 181 miles north of Grand Rapids, Charlevoix County lies on the east shore of Lake Michigan in the highlands of Michigan's lower peninsula. It may be reached by U.S. highway 31, which runs through the heart of the city of Charlevoix, by U.S. highway 131, which cuts through the western part of the county, or by State routes 32 and 66 which enter the county from the southeast, merging in the city of East Jordan and continuing along the south shore of Lake Charlevoix into the county seat at Charlevoix.

Historically, Charlevoix County was organized in 1869. It was named for the Jesuit missionary Pierre de Charlevoix, one of the first French explorers to visit and write about northern Lake Michigan.

IN THE SCENERY department alone, Charlevoix County rates second to none in the state. The land rises rapidly from the Lake Michigan shore, with the second highest elevation in Michigan--Mt. Pisgah--lying just south of Thumb Lake in the western part of the county.

This is the rugged wilderness area where elk have been reintroduced to Michigan and are thriving.

THE EASTERN half of the county is dominated by Lake Charlevoix, a 13-mile long body of water with the city of Charlevoix at its eastern extremity and Boyne City at the western end. The city of East Jordan lies at the end of the lake's South Arm, a narrow, picturesque body of water with many beautiful summer homes along its shores.

Other Lake Charlevoix communities include Ironton, where auto ferry service is offered across the South Arm, Horton Bay, famed for its Ernest Hemingway lore, and Advance, home of Top O' Michigan Rural Electric plant.

SEPARATED from Lake Michigan by Round Lake (within the city of Charlevoix) and the upper and lower Pine River Channels, Lake Charlevoix is a mecca for boating enthusiasts. There is usually a fair breeze for sailing, without the high seas which sometimes make Lake Michigan precarious for small craft.

Fishermen also find Lake Charlevoix much to their liking. Scrappy rainbow trout are to be found in increasing numbers in her crystal waters, and excellent small mouth bass catches are reported regularly. (Two years ago, an eight-pounder was taken near the C&O railroad bridge just off Charlevoix.)

The village of Ironton is noted for its perch runs; and although the number of perch in the lake is down substantially from what it was a few years ago, there are still some good size yellow-bellies taken summer and winter near Ironton.

During July and August, swimming is perhaps the most popular outdoor sport in the county. Dozens of fine swimming areas are located throughout the county, with three supervised beaches in the city of Charlevoix alone. An increasing number of surfers have found that the windswept Lake Michigan shore is an excellent place to practice their sport.

In addition, there are many fine public and private camping areas in the county, including Young State Park on the Boyne City Road between Charlevoix and Boyne City, Whiting Park on the south shore of the lake and Bells Bay state campground on the Lake Michigan shore four miles south of Charlevoix.

The federal government recently has earmarked $109,850 for the development of 170 new campsites at Young State Park, the money to be matched by the state.

Young State Park offers modern sanitary and shower facilities, and electricity is available. Visitors to Whiting Park and Bells Bay "rough it."

THE CITY of Charlevoix has a year-round population of 2,751, but the figure swells (Continued on Pg. 3)

to several times that during the summer. Since before the turn of the century Charlevoix has been a mecca for vacationers from throughout the Midwest. Two private clubs--the Belvedere Club and the Chicago Club--are located on the shores of Round Lake and Lake Charlevoix within city limits. Each boasts dozens of elegant summer homes many of which have been in the same families for generations.

More recently, many excellent motels have erected in the city, offering excellent accommodations for the short-term vacationer and travelers. The city also has a number of fine restaurants which have become famous throughout the state.

CHARLEVOIX County also has become famous in recent years as center of Michigan's ski industry. Four superb ski areas are located in the central part of the county--Boyne Mountain, Thunder Mountain, Walloon Hills and Barn Mountain (formerly Avalanche), all of which afford excellent skiing usually from late November through March. Many skiers also make Charlevoix County their headquarters even when skiing at Boyne Highlands or Nubs Nob, just north of Petoskey.

Ski hills range from bunny slopes where the novice can try his wings to rugged grades which even the expert finds challenging.

IN THE 1960's, two major industrial developments have taken place in Charlevoix County. Consumers Power Co. has erected its first nuclear power plant at Big Rock Point on the Lake Michigan shore five miles northeast of Charlevoix. Medusa Portland Cement Co. of Cleveland expects to complete construction of its $25 million Charlevoix plant this summer. It is located on South Point, across the bay from the city of Charlevoix.

In addition, many light manufacturing industries have found it profitable to locate in Charlevoix County, providing year-round job opportunities for thousands of people.

So welcome to Charlevoix County. Whether you have come north for a day, a week, a summer or a lifetime, you'll find plenty to keep you busy.

VISITORS and natives alike are fascinated by the Pine River Channel bridge which raises several times a day to let ships pass in and out of Charlevoix Harbor. This view was taken west of the channel from the rear deck of the Beaver Islander.

Our Fascinating Bridge

CHARLEVOIX --- No visit to Charlevoix is complete without seeing the bascule bridge over Pine River Channel raise her steel and concrete arms to let a vessel pass in or out of Charlevoix Harbor.

Maintained by the State Highway Department, the bridge is manned 24 hours a day, 12 months a year by a team of three bridge tenders and a relief man.

When in place, the bridge carries U.S. 31 traffic north and south through the city of Charlevoix.

IT IS RAISED whenever a vessel to high for clearance must pass between Round Lake and Lake Michigan. Three blasts of a boat's whistle is the signal that a boat operator wants the bridge opened. The bridge tender responds in kind and sets in motion the gigantic mechanism which lifts the twin portals to let her pass.

THE FIRST STEP in the procedure is the turning on of warning lights and bells at the bridge approaches. Gates are dropped across the highway and the sidewalks and a road barrier raises as if by magic from the pavement.

When this is done, the tender manipulates levers which activate machinery under the street surface which move weights to raise the bridge.

On an average, it takes about three minutes to raise and lower the bridge to let a boat pass, however the time can vary, depending on the speed of the vessel or how many boats wish to pass through at one time. The bridge has been opened as long as 20 minutes to let a big lake freighter through.

TRAFFIC pileups sometimes occur on each side of the bridge, particularly during the busy summer season.

Indian Past Lives Again at Greensky Hill Church

BUILT OF native cedar logs, the Greensky Hill Indian Methodist Church appears today much as it did in 1860 when it was completed.

JAY OLIVER, a member of Greensky Hill Church, stands near ancient twisted maple trees which once marked the site of Indian ceremonials.

CHARLEVOIX --- Lovers of Indian lore will be fascinated by a visit to Greensky Hill Methodist Church, located high on a bluff near Susan Lake, northeast of Charlevoix on the old Petoskey Road.

Built of hand-hewn logs, the church was completed in 1860 on the site of an ancient tribal meeting ground.

Nearly stand nine gigantic maple trees in a circle. Their lower limbs were bent outward with thongs when they were saplings as a symbol of peace among Indian tribes in the area.

SERVICES are conducted each Sunday during the summer at 9:30 a.m. by the Rev. Leona Winegarden, pastor of the Charlevoix Methodist Church. The services are conducted in English, with several hymns sung in the Ottawa language.

The mission church was built by Peter Greensky, an Indian brave who received his Christian training at the Methodist settlement of Bay Mills in the Upper Peninsula. In 1838, Greensky moved to the Lower Peninsula to take part in a Protestant movement then underway in the Grand Traverse Bay area.

Later, Greensky became dissatisfied with the mission and decided to establish a church of his own where he and his followers could worship as they saw fit.

Twenty-seven families joined him on the trek north, through Lake Michigan, Pine River Channel and Round Lake into Pine Lake (now Lake Charlevoix). They came upon the Council Trees where their ancestors had once smoked the peace pipe and decided this would be the site of their church.

a rude shelter of boughs covered with cedar bark. In 1850, work began on the present church. Although the logs were cut from the surrounding woods, the windows and other hardware had to be transported from Traverse City in canoes, and then carried by hand two miles overland from the Lake Charlevoix shore to the hilltop where the church stands.

The building is 26 by 32 feet and has eight windows. The logs are all notched at the ends to make a snug fit and the crevices have been filled with wood and mud.

THE TINY church has had its ups and downs over the years. Sometime back, a parcel of land including the famed Council trees was purchased by an adjoining farmer. However, the church recently has been able to purchase back some of the property it lost, inspite of a membership of less than 25.

Members also have built a meeting house on the grounds, where church socials and banquets are held. Last year, the old wood-burning stove in the church was replaced by an oil space heater.

Another recent project has been the planting of a new circle of Council Trees adjacent to the church.

Visitors to the area will find it interesting to visit the old Greensky Hill Indian cemetery overlooking Susan Lake, named for Peter Greensky's wife. The older graves, all facing East, are marked off with wooden fences and or rude wooden crosses.

Steelhead Trout Back, But Anglers Seek Bass

by Glen Sheppard

Though the return of steelhead trout to Lake Charlevoix and Little Traverse Bay is still the most exciting news on the sport fishing front, scrappy smallmouth bass remain the major target for most anglers.

This spring steelhead fishermen had fabulous luck on the Jordan, Boyne and Bear rivers and in Lake Charlevoix and Little Traverse Bay. Documented catches of fish weighing up to 13 pounds were made.

SUMMERTIME fishing for the savage-fighting steelies is always less than good, however. So in July and August about the only trout caught in the lakes are taken by bass fishermen—who just happen to get lucky.

The Lake Charlevoix shoreline is splattered with smallmouth hot-spots. The most consistent producers are areas of the South Arm near Iron-ton.

UNDOUBTEDLY the most proven method for taking the plucky smallmouths (and an occasional steelhead) is to troll just off the shore. Troll slow with Mepps spinner, Jig A Do, Rapala, small Flatfish or Daredevil.

Sometimes you'll snag a curly pike as you work your lure around weedbeds.

If it's the kids you want to please, try dunking worms off docks or near weeds for rock bass and perch. (One of '3m is apt to nail a four-pound bass, though. So be prepared to blush.)

IF YOU hanker to try some of Walloon Lake's reknown angling you can rent a boat in the village, or launch your own at several public sites.

Walloon continues to produce some of the biggest bass in northern Lower Michigan. STREAM fishermen will find the trout fishing slow on the lower end of the Jordan river, guide Ted Kotowich reports. But, he says, some nice catches of browns are coming from the headwaters.

The short section of the Boyne river that is still open to the public is also reported to be producing fine trout fishing.

IF YOUR fancy runs more to worm dunking, there are plenty of small creeks around that harbor trout. You can try Stover, Deer, Monroe, the Bear out of Walloon Lake, and several that feed into the Jordan.

Worm dunkers also have a good time off the Pine River breakwaters and the railroad bridge, where they can sit and soak up the charm of the Charlevoix harbor and luxury yachts.

If you feel more confident fishing small lakes there's no shortage of them in the Charlevoix-Ellsworth area.

THERE IS still a handful of virtually unexploited small lakes known by only a few fishermen. Pike weighing in the 20 pound class and bass that top five pounds come from them.

But to reveal their whereabouts in print would be a violation of an angler's most sacred oath. So dig out a map or buy a native fisherman a drink and find them yourself.

Here's a list, though, of a few of the smaller lakes that are better known and guaranteed to have fish in them:

--Lake 26 (Lake Marlon), for pike, bass, panfish.

--Nowland Lake, for pike,

IF YOU'RE looking for real

fishing adventure journey to Beaver Island. Once in St. James you can rent a small boat to take you into the bays of Garden and Hog Islands. These bays are among the nation's top-ranked small-mouth hot-spots.

CHARLEVOIX'S annual Waterfront Fair for Artists and Craftsmen attracts thousands of people to northern Michigan each summer. This year's fair will be held Aug. 12.

Artists Sell Wares at Annual Fair

CHARLEVOIX -- Artists from throughout Michigan and nearby states will converge on Charlevoix Aug. 12 for the 9th annual Waterfront Fair for Artists and Craftsmen.

The fair is held in East Park, against a backdrop of Round Lake and the yacht basin.

In fact, many artists come to Charlevoix by boat to show their wares.

Exhibitors are allotted space throughout the park to display and sell their wares.

IN ADDITION to paintings of all kinds, wood carving, ceramics and sculpture are on the bill of fare.

On the park stage, Mr. and

Mrs. Nate Cummings of Chicago usually show some of the paintings from their personal collection, which includes paintings by Picasso, Renoir and Degas, among others.

THE FAIR has become famous among Michigan painters, because many visitors have a penchant for buying. Last summer a sculpture student sold out his entire work. His profits allowed him to continue his studies at the University of Michigan.

The exhibit appeals to professionals too, with many well-established artists numbered among the regular exhibitors.

Operated by Melvin Essenberg, "Spider Sand Dune Rides," offers a scenic thrill-tour of the Lake Michigan shore.

THE ROUTE takes passengers past an old Indian campground where pottery fragments have been found and near the site where a Great Lakes freighter sank during a storm.

ESSENBERG says the greatest testimony to the popularity of the rides comes at the end of the tour.

"Kids simply refuse to get out, and teenagers start begging for money so they can ride again."

Rides are made in a Scout, a four-wheel drive vehicle made by International Harvester.

Beaver Land Boom Brings New Activity to Scenic Isle

ST. JAMES -- Beaver Island is undergoing its most dramatic change since King Strang and his Mormons settled there in the 1840's.

The 54 - square mile island is the site of the largest land development project in the Midwest, Recreational Properties Inc., affiliated with American Central Land Co. of Lansing, is handling the 1,000-acre development called Port St. James along Font Lake and the northwest portion of the island along Donegal Bay.

Along with developing the land and building between 40 and 50 miles of roads to service the area, the corporation offers many extras to persons who buy lots. Among other things these persons find a swimming pool, riding stable with eight horses and a golf course at their disposal.

Hundreds of persons, including many from Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin, have already bought lots within the development.

THE FISHING around Charlevoix is great, witness this 5 lb., 14 oz. rainbow. It was caught in Lake Charlevoix this spring by Dave Julleret.

Let's Take a Jaunt on Horseback

Horseback riding is an exciting way to spend a morning or afternoon while visiting Charlevoix County. There are several stables to serve you. Trousley's Circle T. Riding Stable is located one mile south of Boyne Falls on U.S. 31.

The Ernst Riding Stable is located in East Jordan.

MAPLE HILLS Bridle Path is on north Ranney Road near Eveline Orchards. Their phone number is 536-7122.

The Walloon Hills Riding Club is located at Walloon Lake.

And American Central Land Co. has its own riding stable on Beaver Island.

MUCH OF the attraction to buyers lies in the seclusion the island offers. As an escape from commercialism, the island affords a slow, peaceful way of life. Although the development is geared to this seclusion, both Donegal Bay and Font Lake are only minutes away from both the airport and St. James Harbor.

This seclusion is coupled with the excellent hunting and fishing areas to make the island a perfect vacation spot.

Miles of untouched forests where deer, wild turkeys, grouse and rabbits abound are equaled only by the clear, blue fishing waters where smallmouth bass, bluegills, and pike are pulled up by the thousands every year.

Add still another attraction -- the miles of natural sandy beaches.

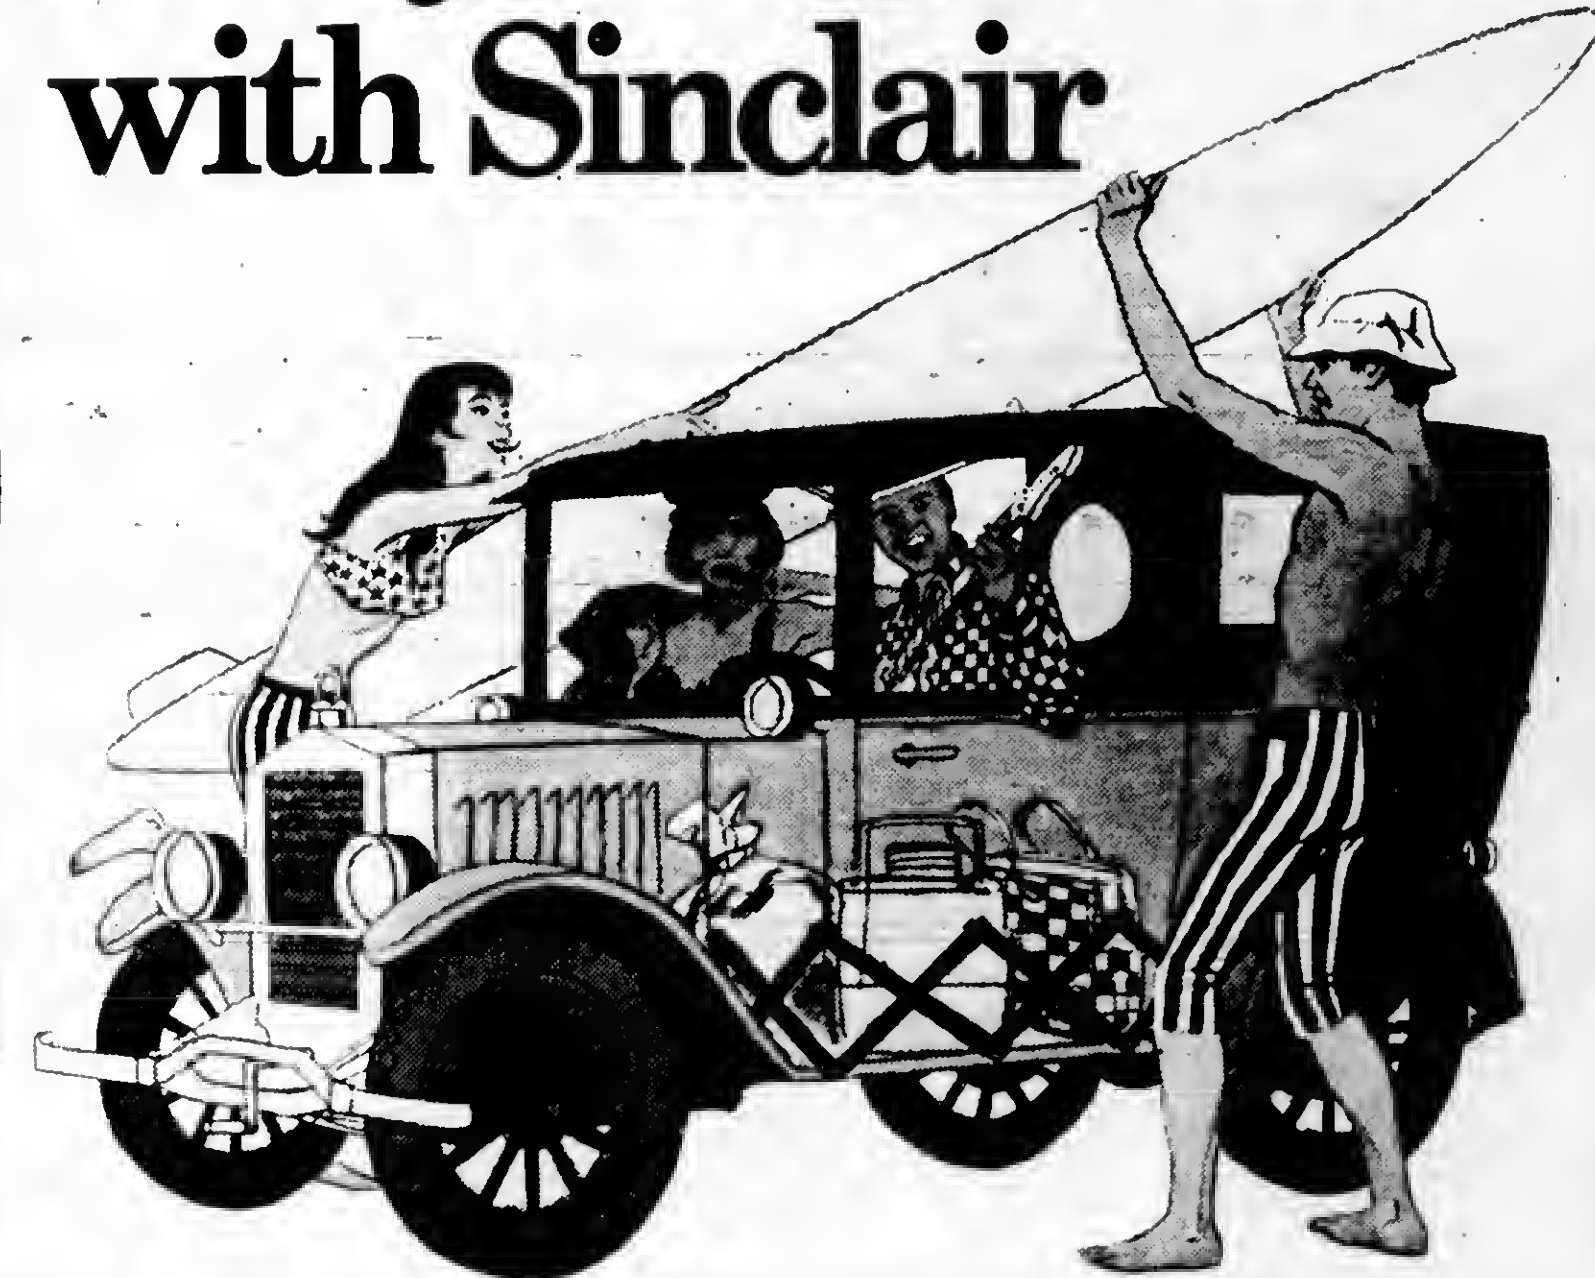

Beaver Island has a modern medical center, directed by a resident doctor.

Coast Guard Activity Keeps City Humming

CHARLEVOIX -- Charlevoix is the home of three U.S. Coast Guard activities in northern Michigan.

The Coast Guard Cutter Sundew, which is responsible for placing and maintaining all the buoys in northern Lake Michigan and Lake Huron, ties up at the city dock in Charlevoix.

Charlevoix also is the home of the Coast Guard's group headquarters in northern Michigan and is the site of the Charlevoix Coast Guard Station.

THE 180-FOOT Sundew has a crew of 45 men and five officers. Skipper is Lt. Cmdr. Jon Ulthol.

In addition to buoy duties, the Sundew also breaks ice, takes part in search and rescue operations and enforces federal regulations governing maritime activities.

Throughout the summer, the Sundew will hold openhouse each Saturday, Sunday and holiday from 1 until 4 p.m. and from 6 until 8 p.m.

A TOTAL of 81 men presently are assigned to Group Charlevoix, including the 15 men at the Charlevoix Coast Guard Station and five men at the Beaver Island station.

The Group embraces 14 CG stations, including 11 light-houses (seven isolated) and three shore stations in northern Michigan. Group Commander is Lt. Dave Smith. The Charlevoix Coast Guard station operates two boats, a 44-foot motor lifeboat and a 30-foot utility boat. The men on Beaver Island have a 40-foot utility boat.

Men assigned to the station take part in search and rescue operations, inspect pleasure boats and perform law enforcement functions.

Charlevoix has been a center for Coast Guard activities in northern Michigan since before the turn of the century.

Beautiful Beaver Awaits You

Island Steeped in Lore

ST. JAMES--If you're looking for something different in the way of a vacation re-

creat, why not try Beaver Island -- America's Emerald Isle?

Located northwest of Charlevoix in the middle of northern Lake Michigan, Beaver Island offers everything an island should--and then some.

PHYSICALLY, Beaver Island is as attractive a chunk of island real estate as you're likely to find in North America. Fourteen miles long and from three to six miles wide, the island is still heavily forested. Visitors are amazed at the girth of the giant hemlocks and birches which line the island's 75 miles of narrow, gravel roads.

The island may be reached either by water or air. The motorship Beaver Islander carries mail, freight, passengers and cars from Charlevoix to St. James, 32 miles distant, on a regular schedule from the middle of April until the end of December. Fifteen-minute air service is available either from the Charlevoix or Harbor Springs airports. The island airport has two runways, one of them 3,500 feet long.

OTHERS choose to visit the island in their private yachts, weather permitting. The island has ample dock facilities in a natural, sheltered harbor at St. James.

Transportation on the island is no problem if you bring your car. Otherwise, cars and motorcycles may be rented at St. James. Some vacationers prefer to enjoy the island scenery from a bicycle seat.

THE ONLY community of the island, St. James stretches along the shores of Paradise Bay for more than a mile. The village proper has two general stores, two bars, three restaurants and numerous motels, hotels, rental cottages, lodges and rooming houses. An excellent restaurant-bar is located one mile south of the village in what was formerly the Holy Cross parsonage.

LIKE MOST islands, Beaver Island has a mystery. Archaeologists are still puzzled as to the origin and the fate of the first "mound builders" who made their home on Beaver Island. Their worship and burial mounds are still to be seen.

Later, the island was inhabited by Chippewa and Ottawa Indians, many of whom still make their home there.

Beautiful Beaver

band of Mormons led by James Jesse Strang moved to the island from Voree, Wisc., in order to practice their religion without interference. Strang, a rural New York lawyer, had himself crowned "King of the Earth", built a Mormon tabernacle and laid out the village of St. James, named after himself.

However King Strang proved to be a dictatorial ruler. He outlawed the use of tea, tobacco and liquor on the island, instructed the women to wear bloomers instead of long skirts and legalized polygamy.

The Irish mainlanders were aghast at his high-handed dictums and eventually Strang's own people turned against him. Following his assassination June 16, 1856, by one of his followers, the Irish moved in, bodily evicting some 2,000 of his followers.

Before long the island was populated entirely by Irish fishermen, whose descendants make up the bulk of the island population today. If you listen to a native Beaver Islander talk, you'll catch a trace of the brogue his ancestors brought over from the Auld Sod.

At one time, the wooded island was visited daily by Great Lakes steamers, since it was a convenient place to stop and pick up firewood for their boilers en route from Chicago to Detroit.

Although the fishing industry is not what it once was, at least one commercial fisherman still operates out of St. James bringing in excellent catches of whitefish.

HOWEVER, the main industry today is tourism. Americans by the thousands have found on Beaver Island the peace and solitude which have

Russian Nobleman Escaped to Beavers

ST. JAMES—Many Beaver Islanders have stories to tell about the late Dr. Feodoro Protar, a Russian nobleman who found his Shangri-la on America's Emerald Isle.

The son of a wealthy family, Dr. Protar was sent to Siberia by the Czarist government for his liberal ideas. He managed to escape from Russia in the guise of a priest, making his way to Germany where he spent several years.

IN THE LATTER half of the last century he emigrated to the United States, where he published a German language newspaper in Illinois.

He had no formal medical training, but was fascinated by the healing arts and studied medicine on his own.

ONCE he took a trip aboard a Lake Michigan steamer which visited Beaver Island. It was love at first sight. He later wrote to friends that the island was "the breeding place of whitefish and Galaghers."

Before long, Dr. Protar disposed of his newspaper interests, bought some farm equipment and moved to the island, never to leave again.

However he never farmed. Shortly after he arrived he found a farm family which could make better use of the equipment than he would and gave it to them. Instead, he became the island's only "doctor", treating his patient's aches and pains, stitching their wounds and setting all but vanished from other vacation retreats. Attractive summer cottages have sprung up along the Lake Michigan shore as well as on some of the islands seven inland lakes.

This summer, American Central Land Co. of Lansing has given the tourist industry a big push by subdividing several thousands of acres on the island for resort development.

THE 54-SQUARE mile island still teems with wildlife, including grouse, rabbits, squirrels, ducks, geese, deer, and wild turkeys and the hunting is superb.

Fishing in the Beavers is generally excellent. Three of the islands inland lakes yield game and panfish. The perch run in Paradise Bay each spring and fall is one of the finest on the Great Lakes. Bass and pike fishing in the waters off nearby Garden Island attract many fishermen by motor launch from St. James. Lake Genesareth on Beaver Island has a public fishing site, with a boat launching ramp.

their broken bones. Although his pay was necessarily meager, Dr. Protar never seemed to want for money. Stories are still current on the island that he continued to receive an income from his family estate in Russia during his residency on Beaver Island.

DR. PROTAR's log home still stands, pretty much as it was at the time of his death in 1926. It is now owned by the Beaver Island Historical Society. Pat Bonner, a close friend of Protar's, lives across the road, and will open the door if anyone wants to look around inside.

Nearby is Dr. Protar's tomb, erected by the grateful inhabitants of the island. It consists of a fieldstone enclosure around his grave and a bronze plaque bearing his likeness.

Behind the tomb is a huge boulder upon which Dr. Protar used to sit in a chair and read. It was close to the tracks of a lumber railroad which once ran the length of the island.

Dr. Protar also had another favorite "study" on the island, a clearing in the woods at the foot of Bonner's Bluff, a steep escarpment which drops off to the western shore of the island. The clearing actually was a tiny island in the middle of a flowing spring, reached by rustic bridges. After his death, a well-meaning islander fenced it off as a memorial to the doctor, but the fence kept out browsing deer as well as intruders.

A-Plant Tours Popular

CHARLEVOIX—One of the prime tourist attractions in the Charlevoix area is Consumer's Power Co.'s Big Rock Point nuclear power plant. Situated five miles northeast of Charlevoix via U.S. 31 on the Lake Michigan, the plant is one of the first in the world to generate electricity by means of nuclear fission.

SINCE the information center at the plant opened in 1961, Consumers has played host to more than 442,000 persons, 62,900 of whom visited the site in 1966 alone. Chuck England, director of the Information Center at the plant, says visitors are welcome from 8 a.m. through 5 p.m. seven days a week during the summer.

ALTHOUGH tours of the atomic reactor itself are not practicable, visitors are welcome to visit many cutaway displays of plant operations and sit in on a lecture-motion picture presentation of how the plant converts atomic energy into electricity for home and industrial use.

The plant uses heat from uranium fuel packs to make steam, which in turn operates a giant turbine to create electricity. The power generated is fed into Consumers network of power lines across Michigan, and is utilized far beyond the immediate Charlevoix area.

THE CITY of Charlevoix is unique, since it draws on power supplied not only by the ultra-modern Big Rock plant, but also from an old hydro-electric plant at Bel-Aire.

England emphasizes that there is absolutely no difference in the electricity generated at the Big Rock Point plant and that of other generating facilities. The only difference is the source of heat.

Hunting For Petoskey Stones

CHARLEVOIX -- Charlevoix's Lake Michigan beaches are a prime hunting ground for the elusive Petoskey stone--the state stone of Michigan. Formed millions of years ago, the stones actually are petrified "colony corals" which lived when northern Michigan was at the bottom of a tropical sea. Although it is named for the city of Petoskey, the stones are plentiful--if you have a sharp eye--many places along the northern Lake Michigan shore. Some excellent stones have been found at Bells Bay, about five miles south of Charlevoix.

PETOSKEY stones may look like this when you find them on the Lake Michigan shore.

POLISHED, the stones make attractive pieces for jewelry and other decorations. Kits are available to hand-polish the stones.

Country Has Marinas Galore

Need boat equipment, supplies or repairs? Or would you like to rent a boat? There are plenty of marinas to serve you in Charlevoix County:

CHARLEVOIX
Bellinger's Marine Service, Belvedere Ave.
Brow Marina Inc., 207 Belvedere Ave.
Charlevoix Marine Supply Co., 107 Belvedere Ave.
Fairport, 307 Belvedere Ave.
Hamilton Boat Yard, 231 Belvedere Ave.

IRONTON
Alray Cabins, boats and bait.
Scott's cabins and boats.
WALLOON LAKE
Harrington's Marina.
Master's Boat Works, water ski rental.
St's Marine Service, Village Resort.

When polished, the stones make beautiful earrings, cufflinks and brooches. Larger stones may be used as paperweights or door stops.
PETOSKEY stones are easiest to spot when they are wet, since moisture brings out the hexagonal (six-sided) pattern of the original coral. An uncut Petoskey stone may sometimes appear as an ordinary rock covered with tiny bumps.

Other stones, particularly those at the water's edge, clearly show the hex lines which are the mark of a true Petoskey specimen.

Mormons Put Up 1st Cabins at Boyne

Boyne City's history goes back to 1856 when John Miller, his wife and two sons along with John Dixon sailed across Pine Lake (now Lake Charlevoix) from Charlevoix to settle at North Boyne.

Miller, originally from Ireland, found some vacant cabins formerly occupied by the Mormons who were forced to leave and moved in with his family and Dixon.

MILLER CALLED the area "River Boyne" after a river in Ireland where a decisive battle was fought.

There is swimming, hiking, horseback riding, and an inexhaustible supply of subjects for the camera fan such as scenic spots, wild life, and the quaintness of "Old Ireland" found in no other place in America.

Beaver Island is a hunter's paradise with over 1,000 deer inviting archers and riflemen. Ruffed grouse and duck offer sport for the small game hunter. For those hardy individuals who like the chase, there is the excitement of fox, coyote, and rabbit hunting with dogs during the winter months.

Fox Lake, one of the most beautiful lakes on the island, provides good trout fishing and produces speckled beauties up to 14 inches in length.

For the golfer there's an intriguing nine-hole golf course that can be more challenging than it appears.

The island, too, is a newly discovered paradise for mushroom hunters. There are hundreds of acres of ideal mushroom country and gathering these delicacies is becoming increasingly popular with our guests on the island.

CHARLEVOIX--Voters approved 6.5 mills for school operation at a special election Aug. 7 by a vote of better than two to one.

A total of 540 votes were cast for the millage, compared to 256 against, for a margin of 284. Two ballots were spoiled and one absentee ballot was not returned, for a total vote of 796.

On June 12, a request for 8.5 mills for school operation was turned down by a vote of 404 to 346, although voters approved millage for library operation and the purchase of land on the north side for an elementary school.

THE SUCCESSFUL millage election means that the district will have sufficient funds to handle an influx of new youngsters next month as well as broaden the educational program.

The Board of Education was able to trim its original request for 8.5 mills by 2 mills by scratching plans to have the high school parking lot, postponing the purchase of a business machine for the superintendent's office and not attempting to replace a $35,000 deficit in the operating reserve fund.

Voters apparently went along with the belt-tightening.

AT THE Board of Education meeting Monday night, members accepted a sole bid by the Charlevoix State Savings Bank to finance the purchase of property for school and library expansion. The bank offered to put up $40,500 in tax anticipation notes against the 1.75 mill building and site levy approved June 12.

The money will be used to purchase property owned by Frank Novotny and sons adjacent to the new city library to be used for parking.

The district also will purchase north side property owned by Douglas and Betty Reynolds, Lloyd and Aletha Arnold, David and Lillian Arnold, Frederick and Rose Bergmann, Cecilynn Lewis, Stanley and Patricia Whitley and the Pick family for construction of a new elementary school.

THE BOARD ALSO: --Authorized Supt. Rex Milligan to borrow up to $35,000 against anticipated state aid to meet the Aug. 16 payroll. Regular state aid funds will not be forthcoming until Aug. 24 and the district only has about $7,000 in reserve.

--Told Milligan to have the school boundaries adjacent to the American Legion Hall surveyed before temporary classrooms are moved in to accommodate sixth graders.

Milligan said the temporary buildings probably will not be ready for use until a week after school starts Sept. 11. In the interim, he plans to house sixth graders in the elementary school gym.

Artists Are Due Saturday

CHARLEVOIX--The 9th annual Waterfront Fair for Artists and Crafts men will get under way at 10 a.m. Saturday, August 12, in East Park with approximately 220 artists expected.

The fair will continue throughout the day, closing at 7:30 p.m., Mrs. Carson, general chairman.

She said the number of entrants this year has climbed sharply, forcing her committee to open the park area south of the Parkside restaurant as a display area.

Special attractions at this year's fair will be a glass blower, portrait artist and a caricaturist.

MRS. CARSON said this year's program lists only 196 entrants, although 20 others have signed up since the program went to press.

Sculptor Allen Harris of Ironton will have a piece of statuary on display on the park stage. Nathan Cummings also plans to show a new acquisition from France--The Cleopatra by Rousalt.

The fair will continue throughout the day, closing at 7:30 p.m., Mrs. Carson said.

Her co-chairman in arranging the fair is Mrs. Ed McNamara. Mrs. Marie Webb has been named "rain chairman." In the event of foul weather, the fair will be held in the corridors and in the lunchroom at the High School.

(A feature story on Allen Harris appears on Pg. 6)

RIVERBOAT Captain Parker Seiler gets his boat into shape before taking off for his 1,700 mile journey down the Mississippi.

Old Man River Calls Jordan Adventurer

EAST JORDAN--First he cycled 25,000 miles through 48 states.

Then he walked 2,350 miles from Seattle to Anchorage.

Now he's rowing 1,700 miles down the Mississippi River in a 12 foot aluminum boat decorated like an old-fashioned riverboat.

Parker Seiler, a bachelor school teacher, begins his three and one-half month journey Aug. 10 at St. Paul and plans to end up in New Orleans about Dec. 1.

However, with Seiler's prolific mind, he'll probably come up with another wild adventure next year.

TRAVELING LIGHT, Seiler is carrying little more than a board to sleep on in the boat, a sawed off couch shell he'll blow in place of a whistle, a small oven and a toothbrush.

The oven is to bake cherry pies in. "Since the boat is named the Cherrie Belle, I have to make sure it lives up to its name and make a few cherry pies along the way," he explained.

Not concerned about eating during the trip Seiler said, "I always find someone who will feed me -- and I don't turn them down either. On my other trips, people would come over to ask me about my trip and before I knew it, I was eating dinner with them."

He added, "Eating is really the least of my worries -- as long as I don't have to eat my own cooking."

SEILER SAID he didn't know how he'd return to Michigan once he arrives in New Orleans, but in typical Seiler style he said he's not worried about it.

"Something will work out," he said. The riverboat captain said he didn't know what his next adventure would be.

"I try to do something involving physical energy on my trips, but I'm running out of things to do. I've cycled, walked and am now rowing so there's not much left."

"Someone suggested that I swim on a trip, but you just can't get very far -- especially if you swim the way I do," he said.

SPRINGPORT, MICHIGAN

FILE

ALMOST 800 voters turned out Monday in the special school district election, most of them voting "yes" on a request for 6.5 mills for school operation.

NEW CHAMBER of Commerce secretary-manager Wally Loder was at his desk Monday morning learning the ropes of his new job. With him is secretary Anna Kortan.

Wally Loder Hired as C of C Manager

CHARLEVOIX--Wally Loder, former resort owner, traffic executive and stock broker, has been named secretary-manager of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.

He succeeds Archie Dayton, who tendered his resignation at a meeting of the Board of Directors Aug. 1. Dayton had held the job just over two years.

Born Dec. 11, 1900, in Boyne City, Loder left northern Michigan at the age of two when his family moved to Ohio.

HE ATTENDED grade school and high school in Lakewood, Ohio, and took seven years of night classes, most of them at the YMCA.

Loder started his business career with Stanley and Bissell, Inc., a Cleveland brokerage house, serving as manager of the Chicago office for more than three years.

He later was in charge of the bond department of a Cleveland bank before joining the firm of Hunkin and Cuskey, general contractors, as traffic and transportation manager.

In 1944 he joined Industrial Rayon Corp. in Cleveland in the same capacity, serving until his retirement in 1961.

IN THE SPRING of 1962, Loder and his wife, Marie, bought the Bancroft cabins north of Charlevoix, operating them until last spring when they sold out to Mrs. Florence Clark.

Since their arrival in Charlevoix, Mrs. Loder has been proprietor of the Walmar Collier Shop at Osborn's Shopping Center.

The Loders, who recently bought the Jim Taylor home at 329 Meach, have three children. Wallace R. Jr. is a research chemist with Sohio Oil Co. in Cleveland and twins Rosemary (Mrs. Michael Johnson) and Gary are married and live in Charlevoix.

Loder, who served as a justice of the peace and on various civic organizations before moving to Charlevoix, believes that a better relationship must be developed between the Chamber of Commerce and the community.

"I hope to make the chamber as near as possible to what I think a good chamber should be," he said, adding that his chief emphasis will be on service to the members and the community.

He says he intends to personally contact all chamber members as soon as possible to find out what they expect of the chamber and what some of their gripes are.

"There is a lot of talent in Charlevoix, a lot of people with ideas," he says, adding, "I don't expect to operate the hallgame by sitting in the bleachers."

Medusa Bows Amid Vapor

CHARLEVOIX--The Medusa Plant at South Point moved slowly into the production of cement this week.

Immense clouds of smoke and vapor from the stack alarmed many Charlevoix residents Sunday and Monday and a foul odor from the plant was reported as far away as the Belvedere Golf Club.

ALTHOUGH no Medusa official was available for comment either Monday or Tuesday, Robert Gill, a Charlevoix alderman who works at the Penn-Dixie plant in Petoskey, says that the plant probably is encountering normal start-up difficulties.

He told the City Council Monday night that it is inadvisable to activate the dust precipitator until the kiln is thoroughly heated.

The plant will be dedicated Aug. 22.

Sharks a Menace Dentist Who Swam Bay to Try Molokai Channel

CHARLEVOIX -- Remember Dr. Harry Huffaker, the 27-year-old Grosse Pointe dentist who swam across Grand Traverse Bay from Northport to Eastport last Aug. 19?

The day after his 15-mile swim, Huffaker and his wife, Christine, left for Honolulu where he had a job waiting at the Stog-Carter Dental Clinic.

HUFFAKER had hoped to return to Michigan this summer to swim from St. James to Charlevoix in connection with the Venetian Festival, but he couldn't find any takers to help finance the trip. However, Huffaker hasn't thrown in the towel so far as long distance swimming goes.

Sometime between Aug. 15 and Sept. 1 he plans to swim the 25-mile shark-infested Molokai Channel between the islands of Oahu and Molokai.

IN A RECENT interview with the Honolulu Star-Bulletin, Huffaker said he has been swimming four miles a day weekdays and nine miles a day weekends.

He plans to increase his practice swims two miles a day until he feels he is ready for the channel.

"I think that by that time I will be physically and psychologically ready," said Huffaker, who is 5 feet, 11 inches tall and weighs 175 lbs.

HE SAYS he has a committee of friends from the Outrigger Canoe Club in Honolulu who have been advising him during his training and will follow him during his swim.

"I'm leaving studies of the currents to them," he told the Star-Bulletin. He added that his friends also were working on methods of shark protection.

THE ONLY other person who has officially swum the Molokai Channel is Keo Nakama who went the distance in 15 hours, 31 minutes in September, 1961.

Unofficially, another Hawaiian also claims to have conquered the channel. He is Willie Pai who claims to have swum between the two islands in 1959 in 18 hours and 45 minutes.

Other swimmers have tried and failed.

IN ADDITION to Grand Traverse Bay, Huffaker has two other long-distance swims behind him. Several years ago, he swam 21-mile-long Torch Lake in Antrim County and the Straits of Mackinac.

He has been unsuccessful in two attempts to swim the English Channel.

However, Huffaker feels he has a better chance of conquering the Molokai Channel. "The water here is saltier and rougher," he said, "but the main thing I will have going for me is the warm water."

He estimates the channel swim should take him about 16 hours.

"I wouldn't be training like this if I didn't think I would do it," he told the Star-Bulletin.

Dr. Harry Huffaker, University of Michigan swimming team, Huffaker swam Grand Traverse Bay on the spur of the moment last summer.

He was visiting with friends, the Bryce Barnes of Eastport, when he happened to mention his yearning to attempt Grand Traverse Bay.

By the following morning, the Barnes had arranged for an escort boat and Huffaker had hurried into Charlevoix to buy a pair of swimming trunks, since he had left his at home.

He entered the water off the Northport Marina, coming just north of Eastport some six hours and 15 minutes later. No one at Eastport could ever remember anyone attempting to swim the bay before.

Service First Wednesday of month 8 p.m.

ARE YOU A PUPPET?

It is comparatively easy for an individual to allow himself to become a puppet. Falling into a group of habits—not necessarily evil or vicious—he falls into a routine or rut. Thus he loses his full effectiveness and usefulness to his community and to the World. Instead of using habits to his own advantage he becomes the servant of those habit-puppets.

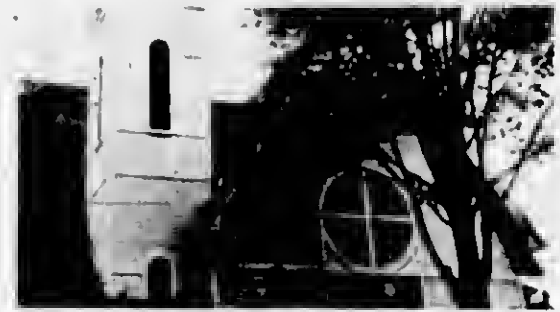

There is one habit that will never make a puppet of you or get you into a rut. That is the habit of attending church. It has the opposite effect, it prevents it. When men find the Church that lifts them they should attend on all possible occasions—for then they will have acquired a habit that will promote their individuality and their power and influence for usefulness.

Noted Sculptor to Display Work On East Park Stage this Weekend

Allen Harris, one of America's most noted and honored sculptors, will display a four-foot bronze female on the park stage at the Waterfront Art Fair in Charlevoix this weekend.

As a practitioner of America's dying art of bronze casting, Harris has won numerous awards in the U.S. and abroad for his work.

Just a fraction of these honors include the Jone Prize Fellowship in sculpture, two Da Vinci Gold Medals from the Da Vinci Art Alliance in Philadelphia, and awards from the National Academy of Design, New York, the City Art Museum, St. Louis, and the Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts.

Harris, a summer resident of Ironton for a number of years and a native of St. Louis, recently completed a major work for the New American Zinc Company Building in St. Louis. The sculpture, a six-foot female and a six-foot, two-inch male representing Vulcan giving the gift of fire to civilization, was started in September, 1966. The plaster models were shipped to Ironton in February, 1967, for casting into bronze.

Presently he is working on a portrait bust of Harry Truman.

SCULPTOR John Harris (left) sits next to one of his sculptures and Allen VanHaver, owner of Castle VanHaver, on display through the summer on the castle's grounds and in the giftshop.

Philadelphia, he was working on some pieces later this month at Castle Van Haver.

Along with working on sculptures, Harris is an instructor of sculpture at the Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts. Previously he taught at the Philadelphia College of Art.

Cabbages and Things
By Carol Walsky

I'm a simple eater. It's not by choice though—it's just easier that way.

Whether you make a meal for one or 16, I'm convinced you can get the same number of jobs, jobs and dishes.

Therefore I follow the path of least resistance and mix up a batch of hamburger slaw in one huge pot to last me all week. If there's anything left the end of the week I give it to my cat. Then I start all over again.

Well, meat? Yes. But dish-pan hands? No.

Then something happens like last week.

Ralph Price of Ironton owns this portrait bust done for him by Allen Harris. Harris has also done busts of Presidents Lincoln and Grant and is currently working on one of Harry Truman.

man for the National Guard Association in Washington. Two other presidents who belonged to the National Guard, Abraham Lincoln and Ulysses Grant, were also sculpted by Harris for the association.

THE LIST of owners of his portraits and sculptures is impressive and includes the Swedish Academy in Rome, the American Academy in Rome, the Cortile of Honor in Pompeii and Pennsylvania State University.

Other owners live in Rome, Stockholm, St. Louis, Los Angeles and Philadelphia.

A local resident, Ralph Price of Ironton, is also included in the list.

Harris is now displaying 21 of his works at Castle Van Haver. Fifteen of his larger pieces from two feet to four feet high are exhibited on the grounds, while six smaller works are displayed in the gift shop.

Although Harris does most of his work at his foundry in State University.

VISITORS at East Jordan's Portside Art Fair last weekend had a chance to try their hand at painting. The large canvas was placed in the center of Memorial Park and would-be artists were furnished with felt tipped pens. Judging by the amount of art work on the canvas, the exhibit proved to be one of the most popular attractions.

Camp Charlevoix

Corrall Chatter

The sixth week of camp started off in high gear with the boys on this year's Mackinac Island trip. Boys making the trip were Scott Field, Steve Gunning, Mike and Henry Whiting, Cliff Oberlin, Bill Earle, Ron Ureel, David Townsend, Tom Abbott, Kevin Geer, Brian Ingersoll, Tom Cranmer, Chuck and David Harrington, Brad Bayliff, Mark Ruffin, Woody Royliff, Park at the other end of Lake Charlevoix. These boys were: Chuck Zitzman, David Whiting, Tom DeBatski, Frank Kent, Scott Shriver, Charles Wattle, Alex Bravo, Rick Silver, Mark Strek, Jim Daoust, Brad Fowler, Bob Fries, Pat Haghey.

TUESDAY DAWNED warm, sunny and was another day for camping. However, we had a real hard rain Tuesday night, so that regular activities were called off on Wednesday morning and the entire camp met in the Clubhouse for games. By noon the sun was out, it was hot again and three of our Cabin groups took off for Young's State Park on an overnight. The men taking the boys were: David Meyer, Cabin 9, with Russell Barbone, Mike Strek, Doug Bacon, Kevin Geer, Lynn Isaac, Greg Skau, and John Simpson. Going from Cabin 12 were Bob Mucci's boys: Mark Herschede, Harvey Allison, George Ferguson, Greg Gallinet, Tom Harrington, Mike Hogan, Kirk Kirlin, Erik Wicklund, and Steven Benischler. Cabin 14, Rusty Smith's cabin group on this trip were: Paul Dancer, David Rham, Steve Storms, Peter Bowers, Randy Chapman, a John Tiesdale, John Worchester, and Dick Lynd. The newspaper man came out and took a picture of our three foreign men and our boy from Hawaii. One of our cowboys, Manuel Valenzuela, is from Mexico; Pieter Van Essen, from Groningen, The Netherlands; Brad Fowler of Honolulu; and Iain Hamilton, a native of Strathaver, Scotland.

Mahtood, left at the end of four weeks. In the evening, the entire camp joined in a "Capture the Counselor" event with the boys getting quite a kick out of chasing the men trying to get away. After the event was over the Greens had picked up two points bringing the score a little closer.

ON THURSDAY, several more Cabin groups left camp for overnight trips, and boys sure do enjoy sleeping out under the stars and enjoying cooking their meals in the wide open spaces. Three of the Junior Cabins were driven down to Eastport to the Park there on Lake Michigan. The cabins were Bob Pardee's boys, Jimmy Eberts, Mike Williams, Doug Laing's boys: Jerry Bodar, David Bolton, Ted Kanakis, Carl Letz, Barry Thornton's boys: David Townsend, Mike Byrne, "Tripp" Howell, Paul Jursosy, Hugh Richards, and Robert Williams; Doug Laing's boys: Jim Douglass, Jim Huddlestone, Robby Quinn, Brad Mast, David Kelly, John Higgins, Joe Manby and Ed McGinnis. Two of our Prep Cabins also took off for Young's State Park for an overnight. This was to be a sailing trip, but as it was much too rough and windy on the lake, they were driven down. Mike Maslow's took his boys, Ricky Kahn, Billy Otto, Fitz Simmons, Earl Artman, Andrew Morion, William Millard, Jim Webb and Mike Whiting. Steve Wardrop of Cabin 8 also took his boys on this trip, including Stuart Hartger, Lee Jackson, David Sanders, Tim Washburn, Har-

Ureel, Tom Earle, Bill Earle, Brad Bayliff, Jimmy Huddlestone, Don Clark, Alan Johnson, Bob Phillip, Dan Noel, Jim Daoust, Coup Thert, Jim Welsh, Dave Morton, David Townsend, Jim Douglass and Jeff Rouse. We had quite a few parents and visitors drop in including the widow of the man who started this camp, Lewis C. Reimann. Mrs. Pearl Reimann Young, and Mr. Young, of Ann Arbor, stopped in for about an hour.

In the evening, we had an evening of "skits" in the Big-wam and the boys enjoyed seeing their friends in a different role.

ON SUNDAY morning, we had our service in the outdoor chapel, with Bill Shilling as the speaker. He had a really fine talk telling the boys that they should be mindful of the beauty in nature all around.

At the noon dinner, we had a large sign across the front of the dining room saying "Don Voyage to Pieter" as our guest from The Netherlands was leaving us. Most of the staff gave him little gifts personal to their activity, with Ken and Ruby giving him an Arrow "CC" along with a picture of himself with the Smith family. He was most appreciative, and as each gift was accompanied by a poem written by either Dan or Alice Ross, or Ruth Townsend, it was a great affair. Ruby had purchased the gifts, and arranged the whole party. Needless to say that he was deeply touched and made a most gracious farewell speech. He returns to the Netherlands to start the University of Amsterdam yet this month.

IN THE AFTERNOON, we had the second Mile Swim of the season with 22 boys entering the event and 63 finishing. Among the finishers were right Juniors which is a record, as we usually have only one or two from this group who finish. These boys were all given a big round of applause at supper. The Greens picked up two points to the Greys one, thereby gaining one point in the competition. The Junior Swimmers completing this event were: David Bellutski, Jim Eberts, Robby Quinn, Scott Shriver, Hugh Richards, Jim Douglass, Frank Kent, and Joe Manby. The first three finishing at 39 minutes were: Mark Basinger, Doug Bacon and George Isaac. In second place at 41 minutes came Steve Bromley, and Mike Surgeon. In third place at 42 minutes were: Ross Dicken and Doug Olenick. In fourth place, was David Washburn.

In the evening, the Juniors had their Vespa ride on the Punt Buntan Ring, while the rest of the camp met on the shore of the lake for a barbeque. Jonathan Howard spoke on "What a Campers Should get out of Camp".

IT DOESN'T seem possible

To Give Cage Tips at Camp Sea Gull

CAMP SEA GULL -- A basketball clinic sponsored by the P. Cinci Sachs Basketball School will be conducted for boys at Camp Sea Gull all day Wednesday, Aug. 9. Lewis Schulman, director of Camp Sea Gull, says any Charlevoix cagers interested in picking up some pointers are welcome to drop in and see the basketball demonstrations by Sachs and his squad.

SACHS and a squad of his proteges presently are on a tour of boys camps throughout Michigan, with stops in Charlevoix, Kewadin, Kalkaska, Petoskey, Charlevoix and Ortonville.

"This is the first such clinic tour in Michigan and we hope it will be of benefit to many interested boys," he says. Sachs, who has trained at least 60 former outstanding college cagers, grades his students right on the court.

"That was excellent, worth an A," he said after a good play, sometimes it's "You flunked that assignment."

"Everyone of these boys is good material for some level of college, and they wouldn't break it if it was their summer time in this program if they didn't love the game," he says.

Circlin' the Bases

MEN'S FASTBALL American Mold moved a step closer to claiming the city championship by posting their third straight second round win against no defeats. They won the first round after beating the Air Force in the play-off game. Second place Medusa was the victim, and the loss, knocked them out of contention. Six runs in the second inning did the trick. Ken Bachel had four RBIs, with his two hits and teammate Don Kowal helped the cause with three hits. Nate Boss scattered three hits.

Youthful Lake Construction did the league leaders a big favor by eliminating County State Bank from the title picture. Bill Marne's fine catch coming with the bases loaded in the bottom of the eighth inning and gave the Construction a thrilling 4-3 win. His catch, off the bat of Tom Drenth, looked like at least a double but he leaped high to the air to tip it down for the third out.

LC's Steve Cunningham tied the game in the top of the seventh with an inside the park home run. Gary Stutzman had two hits for the losers.

Wilson - Mayhew gave American Mold a brief scare before falling 5-1. Ken Wozan's three-run homer in the fifth broke the game wide open giving the winners the victory.

The Air Force jumped on the band wagon to hand Medusa its second loss 11-5. Three runs in the first inning got a hit for the winners off running back, Sonny Wright picked up the win, while Rick Iles took the loss.

BLOOPER LEAGUE The Medicine Chest won the first round playoff against Howard's of Boyne City 11-5. Four runs in the first and five in the third did the trick. Everyone in the lineup collected at least one hit.

The Sunday picked on Novaks for an 11-6 win, while in one of the better games played in the bloopers loop this season, Freemans handed Hamilton's a 4-1 defeat.

WOMEN'S LEAGUE The Women's league championship ended right down to the final contest, which was played last night between Edwards and Al's Texaco. The Dairy Queens finished their regular season last week by whipping Paul Reed 10-4 for at least a tie for the title. Edwards, in order to tie for the crown, had to win last night's game.

A & W got a stiff fight from Electra before they were able to post a narrow 6-5 win. Tom Webb's clutch triple in the bottom of the sixth provided the winning margin. The 16-ers outlasted A & W but couldn't put them together. Roy Grunch collected three losses' hits.

MISS EVELYN PETERS was guest conductor at the Charlevoix City Band concert Aug. 2 in East Park. Miss Peters is instrumental music teacher at Clarkston.

Dear George:

As a follow-up to our telephone conversation of July 13 telling you that one of Upper Peninsula Microwave, Inc.'s construction permit applications had been approved, the Federal Communications Commission today informs me that the remaining five applications have now been granted.

With the approval of all six applications, it should soon be possible to bring the TV signals of WJRT-TV of Flint, and WCRD-TV of Detroit to the cable system of Charlevoix. I know Charlevoix residents will be pleased with the news that good television reception from Flint is on its way almost immediately and that Detroit will follow in the coming months.

It was a pleasure to help in expediting the FCC's action and let me know if there is anything further I can do.

With best wishes,

Sincerely,
Philip

Obituary

Capt. Albert Arnold

CHARLEVOIX -- Word has been received here of the death of Capt. Albert Arnold, 86, who died recently in Gloucester, Mass.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Willet Arnold, Capt. Arnold was born in Charlevoix May 24, 1881, and lived here until he was 20 years old, farming and lumbering.

On Aug. 14, 1910, Capt. Arnold joined a party of five fishing boats moving from Charlevoix to Cape Ann, Mass. The voyage through the Great Lakes and around Cape Cod took 24 days.

Capt. Arnold was skipper of the Mindora, whose crew consisted of Capt. Oliver (C) Tysver, Capt. Gerry (Mike) Shores and the late Capt. Herman Tysver.

Capt. Arnold fished with the Mindora for three years and later had the Anna.

Capt. Arnold operated gill netters off the Massachusetts coast the rest of his life and was active in improving the fishing industry and in bettering the lot of seafaring men and their families.

He is survived by his widow, E. Agnes (Edwell), a daughter, Phyllis W. Wagner, and four sons, Alvin G., Joseph M., Robert E., and Richard E., all of Gloucester; 18 grandchildren, four great-grandchildren and many nieces and nephews.

Funeral services were held in Gloucester, with burial in West Gloucester.

EJ Old Timers Planning Picnic

EAST JORDAN -- Sunday, Aug. 13, is the date for East Jordan's Old Timers picnic in the Tourist Park Building. The picnic is scheduled for 1 p.m. and everyone is requested to bring their own table service and a dish to pass. EMU Grads Hold Annual Tourney

CHARLEVOIX -- Saturday night will have climaxed "old home week" so far as Eastern Michigan University alumni were concerned. That was the day of their annual Arm of Honor-Alumni golf tournament at the municipal golf course.

It was the fifth annual tourney for the fraternity, the third for the alumni.

Under the Gallaway handicapping system, Harold D. Osborn of Central Lake places 1st with 70; and Ralph Foster and Lee Coatta tied for second with 74.

Among the alumni, Dave Somerville was first with 75 and Bill Mays and Hayes Jones tied for second with 72.

A guest trophy went to Alex Ramsey with 73. Jones, who won a gold medal in the Tokyo Olympics in 1961 in the high hurdles, is now a representative of American Airlines in Chicago. The airline supplied some of the prizes awarded golfers Saturday evening following their annual banquet at the Argonne.

The Eastern Michigan golfers and the Arm of Honor voted to return to Charlevoix again next August.

George Briggott of Charlevoix and Milwaukee was re-elected president of the Arm of Honor. Vice President is George Mead of Brighton, secretary is Les Coatta of Torch Lake and treasurer is Walt Draper of Franklin and Torch Lake.

A Vote for Good Schools

The voters of Charlevoix School District demonstrated their willingness to support good schools at the polls Monday. Almost 800 of them turned out to approve a six and one half mill levy for school operation. The vote was 540 to 236. With the additional money, Charlevoix not only becomes eligible to participate fully in state aid but also will be able to hire new teachers for our burgeoning school population and to expand the curriculum.

ALTHOUGH THE millage has passed, the question of teachers' salaries is still unanswered. A decision in this area can be expected shortly.

The Job Is Not Done Yet

Although most city aldermen had reservations about the cost, Charlevoix's long-discussed shower-toilet facility for yachtsmen will become a reality this winter.

The issue passed four to two at Monday's Council meeting.

There is no doubt that the building, on a square footage basis, will be the most expensive public facility ever constructed in Charlevoix.

THERE IS also no doubt that construction of such a building will be a major step toward alleviating pollution of Round Lake resulting from the annual invasion of pleasure craft.

We only hope the Council shows the same aggressiveness in adopting regulation enforcing its use once the structure is built.

More Education, Less Aspirin

It will be interesting to watch the results of a new High School registration procedure being inaugurated this summer by Principal Ray Carr.

To avoid the confusion and resulting waste of time schools normally experience during the opening days of school each fall, Carr has set up an advance registration system for students in grades nine through twelve.

DURING THE week of Aug. 21, students will report to the school to work out their class schedules, get their locker assignments, and pick up their books. When school starts Sept. 11, they should be all set to move right into their classroom without the confusion which usually attends the opening of school.

If the system works as Carr hopes it will, Charlevoix High students stand to gain a couple of days of solid education each year.

And teachers and administrators also should be able to start the school year with far fewer aspirin tablets.

When a Boy Reaches 21

The following poem was written by Mrs. Charles VandeCar Sr. to her son, Hospitalman Charles VandeCar Jr., of Portsmouth, Va., on reaching his 21st birthday.

... I tried to teach him the golden rule, As I watched him truck off first day of school, I watched him leave Murray for Charlevoix, I had hidden the young child good-bye.

... I watched him again on graduation day, Thinking much more than I could say, Then off to a sailor's life, was he, I'm still as proud, as I can be.

... I watched him again on graduation day, Thinking much more than I could say, Then off to a sailor's life, was he, I'm still as proud, as I can be.

Clockwise How Many to Go?

By Bob Clock

Sometimes I wonder whether our high-speed, modern society is worth the cost. A case in point is the traffic accident on I-76 north of St. Ignace last week which claimed the lives of two young men from Boyne City.

The victims were Patrick Varum and Collins Belford, both 19, who were enroute to their summer jobs at Sault Ste. Marie Monday morning when young Varum apparently dozed at the wheel and crashed into an abutment of the Pine River Road bridge.

Their deaths were only two of the highway fatalities which have wrought grief to Charlevoix County families this summer. And undoubtedly there will be others before the season is over.

It's no consolation at all to realize that the same thing is happening throughout the state and the nation, day after day, week after week, year after bloody year.

The frustrating part of the whole situation is that there seems to be nothing -- absolutely nothing that can be done to decrease the traffic toll. The country is working as fast as financially possible to bring its roads up to snuff. The section of I-75 on which young Varum and Belford were killed is one of the finest highways in the state, if not the world -- a wide, divided highway without the hills, curves and links which make death traps of so many of our older highways.

Yet ALONG came the automobile -- a sure means of broadening his horizons. No longer was it necessary for him to live next door to his work or stay within the confines of his own hometown.

He moved to the suburbs and soon thought nothing of driving 20, 30 or more miles each morning to work. I know of one Ford Motor Co. employee in Dearborn who commutes a total of 200 miles each day. Weekends and holidays, man's range is almost limitless. He goes anywhere and everywhere his car and his roads will take him.

YET HE'S the same old fellow who craved out of the cave or down from the tree, in his prime, his reflexes, fortunately, are swift enough to cope with most highway emergencies. But he is still human. He is impulsive to get where he's going, he fights with his wife. The kids squabbling in the backseat make him cranky. He worries about his work. He lets his mind wander. He tires easily.

And then, suddenly, amid the sound of shattering glass and the scream of twisted metal, it is all over -- forever. The PROBLEM, I think, is that we're spreading ourselves too thin, trying to go too many places, see too many things, take part in too many activities. We rush hither and yon in search of happiness, girls, excitement, jobs -- you name it -- without stopping to realize that most of the things we want out of life, the best things, are located right here at home.

The automobile today is an integral part of life in America; there's no denying that. And there are few among us who would want to go back to the horse-and-buggy days. Yet it seems that because we have the fast cars, the good highways and the necessary leisure time, we are taking advantage of all three to our own detriment.

Letters to the Editor Reader Wants Bicycle Riders Off Sidewalks

Dear Sir:

Here is this city we all like to have people think of it as Charlevoix the Beautiful.

We have police on the streets to make our streets as safe as possible.

Now why aren't our sidewalks being taken care of the same way? Our sidewalks are only a race track for young kids racing up and down, switching around in front of women who have to duck to keep from getting hit.

MANY TIMES the walk is so cluttered people can hardly get by a bunch of youngsters with their bikes across the walk.

When they are asked to move their bikes, they say, "Oh, go to hell."

It seems that bikes should not be allowed from the liquor store to Park Avenue.

THIS COULD be easily stopped if any one riding on the sidewalk would have his bike impounded and would have to pay $5 to get it back. That would stop this tearing around.

In no other town around are kids on the walks as here in Charlevoix.

Many outside people as we have every day who must put up with the nuisance on our sidewalks, we sure don't go too far when thinking of Charlevoix.

So why doesn't the city do something about the problem? I am a Charlevoix citizen and this bike riding is terrible.

To all concerned: I would like to use this time and media to express my thanks to Lyle Miles and his committee for the excellent job in promoting the boat parade portion of the Venetian Festival.

Most of the thousands of people who witnessed this event take it for granted and expect it to be great. Many, many hours are spent in planning and preparation before the show goes on.

Thanks also to the boat owners and their crews who participated.

Reports on Vietnam

(Following are excerpts from a special report by Northern Michigan Representative Phil Ruppe on his recent trip to Vietnam to study Coast Guard problems. Ruppe is a member of the Coast Guard subcommittee.)

"IN VIETNAM, we found American military morale high, and the task larger than we had imagined. In our specific assignment for the Vietnam tour, we report considerable progress. For example, American technology, ingenuity and money have untangled the shipping mess of 1966. Ships are no longer held at anchor for 20 or 30 days before unloading and pilferage is being held down.

Charlevoix Schools List Sign-Up Hours

CHARLEVOIX--Both Charlevoix High School and the Elementary School are planning to register students in August. Principal Glenn Sinder says youngsters from kindergarten through the sixth grade who did not attend the Charlevoix Elementary School last spring should be registered by their parents on Aug. 17. Hours are from 9 a.m. until noon and from 1 p.m. until 3 p.m. Parents should use the Grant Street entrance.

Parents who have not yet registered their kindergartners should bring birth certificates. A child must be five years old by Dec. 1 to qualify for kindergarten.

AT THE HIGH School, plans are under way to register all students, assign lockers and make out all class schedules Aug. 21 to Aug. 25 in preparation for the first day of school Sept. 11. Registration hours are from 9 a.m. until noon and from 1 p.m. until 3 p.m.

Principal Ray Carr says seniors will be asked to register Monday, Aug. 21, juniors Tuesday, Aug. 22, sophomores Wednesday, Aug. 23, and freshmen Thursday, Aug. 24. Freshmen, Aug. 25 from 9 a.m. until noon will be reserved for the few from each grade who might find it impossible to register on their assigned days.

CARR SAID a staff will be on hand to give each student any personal attention needed in order to get everyone scheduled with a minimum of inconvenience.

New students who will be entering the seventh and eighth grades should register at the High School office as soon as possible. The office is open from 9 a.m. until noon and from 1 p.m. until 4 p.m. weekdays.

To Show Work in Art Fair

CHARLEVOIX--Mrs. Lillemor Hansen of Oslo, Norway, arrived recently to visit at the home of her uncle, Henry Isakson, 204 Mason Street, and other relatives in Charlevoix and Petoskey.

Mrs. Hansen's daughter, Margaret, accompanied her, and is staying in Petoskey with the Floyd Potts' family. She will remain to attend Petoskey High School for one year.

Mrs. Ingma Pontious and Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Potts visited in Norway earlier this year and met the Hansens for the first time. They invited them to come to the states.

Mrs. Hansen is an artist in pastels and will display her work at the annual Waterfront Fair for Artists and Craftsmen, Saturday, Aug. 12, in East Park.

Shower Bldg. in Park Approved by Council

CHARLEVOIX--Aldermen voted four to two Monday night to construct a shower-tub facility for joggers in East Park.

The building also will house public lavatories and a Chamber of Commerce office.

Voting against the building, which will cost an estimated $68,000, were Aldermen Marie Webb and Del Terrill, who thought the cost out-of-line.

Alderman Jack Mol, who was critical of the project at a committee meeting last week, voted to construct the facility, relieving Mayor William Fochtmann of the responsibility of casting the deciding vote.

Fochtmann told City Superintendent James Taylor to check with the general contractor, A. T. Shaw of Ludington, on how soon he can begin work on the building, which will be located at the site of the present restroom.

As soon as the contractor sets a date, Taylor will have his men tear down the old facility.

SEVERAL State and Clinton Street residents attended a zoning hearing at the beginning of the council meeting, most of them to protest zoning the west side of State for office use. That particular segment of the city has never been zoned.

Mrs. Harley Ochs objected expressly to the inclusion of the Priest property on Clinton Street in the plan.

"I don't want to spend the rest of my life looking at a parking lot," she maintained.

THE ZONING request was made by officers of the Charlevoix State Savings Bank which plans to build a drive-in bank with customer parking on the site of the old library. The bank has an option on the Priest property to the west, across the street from the Ochs home.

Miss Anne Harsha, who owns property on State Street next door to the Congregational Church, also objected to the proposed zoning as an infringement on a residential area.

The Clare Harsha of Clinton Street also objected to the change.

At the close of the hearing, the matter was turned over to a committee for study. The committee will meet next Monday night at 7:30 p.m.

A SECOND hearing was held on the East Jordan Mulls Low Income Housing

EAST JORDAN--Elderly and low income persons here may be paying a monthly rent of $30 to $75 for federally financed housing, possibly within two years.

Jack Cronk, consultant for architectural and engineering firm Harley, Ellington, Cowin and Striton, Inc. of Detroit, told East Jordan's housing commission members and councilmen Wednesday night the rent would be about half of what is normally charged in the area.

The rent would go for apartment type dwellings which will operate on a non-profit basis.

Cronk appeared at the meeting to discuss plans for obtaining federal funds for the project and also for constructing the dwellings.

HE SAID his firm would handle all details from the basic paper work necessary for obtaining federal funds through building and getting the project open.

He also acts as the city's temporary housing consultant while training city officials to take over when the dwellings open.

Cronk said the federal government will finance the whole project by amortizing a loan with government bonds over a period of 40 years. At the end of 40 years, the dwellings will be turned over to the city.

He set the time period for the project at two years from beginning to the opening of the apartments.

Cable Offers Channel 12

The addition means that a full range of network television is now available to cable TV customers in the area.

ONE OF CHARLEVOIX's newest tourist attractions is Castle Van Haver, located on M-66 about two miles southeast of the city. The former Loeb dairy barns, reminiscent of a medieval castle, have been converted into an art foundry and gift shop by John Van Haver. This photo, taken at the beginning of restoration by R. Armstrong, took first place in a photo contest sponsored by the Flint Lensmen Camera Club.

Beautiful Charlevoix County Has Something for Everyone

CHARLEVOIX -- There's something for everyone in Charlevoix County.

Located 270 miles northwest of Detroit, 350 miles northeast of Chicago, 54 miles southwest of Mackinaw City, 181 miles north of Grand Rapids, Charlevoix County lies on the east shore of Lake Michigan in the highlands of Michigan's lower peninsula. It may be reached by U.S. highway 31, which runs through the heart of the city of Charlevoix, by U.S. highway 131, which cuts through the western part of the county, or by State routes 32 and 66 which enter the county from the southeast, merging in the city of East Jordan and continuing along the south shore of Lake Charlevoix into the county seat at Charlevoix.

Historically, Charlevoix County was organized in 1869. It was named for the Jesuit missionary Pierre de Charlevoix, one of the first French explorers to visit and write about northern Lake Michigan.

IN THE SCENERY department alone, Charlevoix County rates second to none in the state. The land rises rapidly from the Lake Michigan shore, with the second highest elevation in Michigan--Mt. Pisgah--lying just south of Thumb Lake in the western part of the county. This is the rugged wilderness area where elk have been reintroduced to Michigan and are thriving.

THE EASTERN half of the county is dominated by Lake Charlevoix, a 13-mile long body of water with the city of Charlevoix at its eastern extremity and Boyne City at the western end. The city of East Jordan lies at the end of the lake's South Arm, a narrow, picturesque body of water with many beautiful summer homes along its shores.

Other Lake Charlevoix communities include Ironton, where auto ferry service is offered across the South Arm, Horton Bay, famed for its Ernest Hemingway lore, and Advance, home of Top O' Michigan Rural Electric plant.

SEPARATED from Lake Michigan by Round Lake (within the city of Charlevoix) and the upper and lower Pine River Channels, Lake Charlevoix is a mecca for boating enthusiasts. There is usually a fair breeze for sailing, without the high seas which sometimes make Lake Michigan precarious for small craft.

Fisherman also find Lake Charlevoix much to their liking. Scrappy rainbow trout are to be found in increasing numbers in her crystal waters, and excellent small mouth bass catches are reported regularly. (Two years ago, an eight-pounder was taken near the C&O railroad bridge just off Charlevoix.)

The village of Ironton is noted for its perch runs, and although the number of perch in the lake is down substantially from what it was a few years ago, there are still some good size yellow-bellies taken summer and winter near Ironton.

During July and August, swimming is perhaps the most popular outdoor sport in the county. Dozens of fine swimming areas are located throughout the county, with three supervised beaches in the city of Charlevoix alone. An increasing number of surfers have found that the windswept Lake Michigan shore is an excellent place to practice their sport.

In addition, there are many fine public and private camping areas in the county, including Young State Park on the Boyne City Road between Charlevoix and Boyne City, Whiting Park on the south shore of the lake and Bells Bay state campground on the Lake Michigan shore four miles south of Charlevoix.

The federal government recently has earmarked $109,850 for the development of 170 new campsites at Young State Park, the money to be matched by the state. Young State Park offers modern sanitary and shower facilities, and electricity is available. Visitors to Whiting Park and Bells Bay "rough it."

THE CITY of Charlevoix has a year-round population of 2,751, but the figure swells (Continued on Pg. 3)

CHARLEVOIX'S beautiful yacht basin welcomes boaters from around the state. Water and electric power are included in the reasonable daily and weekly rates.

to several times that during the summer. Since before the turn of the century Charlevoix has been a mecca for vacationers from throughout the Midwest. Two private clubs--the Belvedere Club and the Chicago Club--are located on the shores of Round Lake and Lake Charlevoix within city limits. Each boasts dozens of elegant summer homes many of which have been in the same families for generations.

More recently, many excellent motels have erected in the city, offering excellent accommodations for the short-term vacationer and travelers. The city also has a number of fine restaurants which have become famous throughout the state.

CHARLEVOIX County also has become famous in recent years as center of Michigan's ski industry. Four superb ski areas are located in the central part of the county--Boyne Mountain, Thunder Mountain, Walloon Hills and Barn Mountain (formerly Avalanche), all of which afford excellent skiing usually from late November through March. Many skiers also make Charlevoix County their headquarters even when skiing at Boyne Highlands or Nubs Nob, just north of Petoskey.

Ski hills range from bunny slopes where the novice can try his wings to rugged grades which even the expert finds challenging.

IN THE 1960's, two major industrial developments have taken place in Charlevoix County. Consumers Power Co. has erected its first nuclear power plant at Big Rock Point on the Lake Michigan shore five miles northeast of Charlevoix. Medusa Portland Cement Co. of Cleveland expects to complete construction of its $25 million Charlevoix plant this summer. It is located on South Point, across the bay from the city of Charlevoix.

In addition, many light manufacturing industries have found it profitable to locate in Charlevoix County, providing year-round job opportunities for thousands of people.

So welcome to Charlevoix County. Whether you have come north for a day, a week, a summer or a lifetime, you'll find plenty to keep you busy.

VISITORS and natives alike are fascinated by the Pine River Channel bridge which raises several times a day to let ships pass in and out of Charlevoix Harbor. This view was taken west of the channel from the rear deck of the Beaver Islander.

Our Fascinating Bridge

CHARLEVOIX --- No visit to Charlevoix is complete without seeing the bascule bridge over Pine River Channel raise her steel and concrete arms to let a vessel pass in or out of Charlevoix Harbor.

Maintained by the State Highway Department, the bridge is manned 24 hours a day, 12 months a year by a team of three bridge tenders and a relief man.

When in place, the bridge carries U.S. 31 traffic north and south through the city of Charlevoix.

IT IS RAISED whenever a vessel to high for clearance must pass between Round Lake and Lake Michigan. Three blasts of a boat's whistle is the signal that a boat operator wants the bridge opened. The bridge tender responds in kind and sets in motion the gigantic mechanism which lifts the twin portals to let her pass.

THE FIRST STEP in the procedure is the turning on of warning lights and bells at the bridge approaches. Gates are dropped across the highway and the sidewalks and a road barrier raises as if by magic from the pavement.

When this is done, the tender manipulates levers which activate machinery under the street surface which move weights to raise the bridge.

On an average, it takes about three minutes to raise and lower the bridge to let a boat pass. However the time can vary, depending on the speed of the vessel or how many boats wish to pass through at one time. The bridge has been opened as long as 20 minutes to let a big lake freighter through.

TRAFFIC pileups sometimes occur on each side of the bridge, particularly during the busy summer season.

Indian Past Lives Again at Greensky Hill Church

BUILT OF native cedar logs, the Greensky Hill Indian Methodist Church appears today much as it did in 1860 when it was completed.

JAY OLIVER, a member of Greensky Hill Church, stands near ancient twisted maple trees which once marked the site of Indian ceremonials.

CHARLEVOIX - Lovers of Indian lore will be fascinated by a visit to Greensky Hill Methodist Church, located high on a bluff near Susan Lake, northeast of Charlevoix on the old Petoskey Road.

Built of hand-hewn logs, the church was completed in 1860 on the site of an ancient tribal meeting ground.

Nearly stand nine gigantic maple trees in a circle. Their lower limbs were bent outward with thongs when they were saplings as a symbol of peace among Indian tribes in the area.

SERVICES are conducted each Sunday during the summer at 9:30 a.m. by the Rev. Leona Winegarden, pastor of the Charlevoix Methodist Church. The services are conducted in English, with several hymns sung in the Ojibwa language.

The mission church was built by Peter Greensky, an Indian brave who received his Christian training at the Methodist settlement of Bay Mills in the Upper Peninsula. In 1838, Greensky moved to the Lower Peninsula to take part in a Protestant movement then underway in the Grand Traverse Bay area.

Later, Greensky became dissatisfied with the mission and decided to establish a church of his own where he and his followers could worship as they saw fit.

Twenty - seven families joined him on the trek north, through Lake Michigan, Pine River Channel and Round Lake into Pine Lake (now Lake Charlevoix). They came upon the Council Trees where their ancestors had once smoked the peace pipe and decided this would be the site of their church.

THE FIRST structure was a rude shelter of boughs covered with cedar bark. In 1850, work began on the present church. Although the logs were cut from the surrounding woods, the windows and other hardware had to be transported from Traverse City in canoes, and then carried by hand two miles overland from the Lake Charlevoix shore to the hilltop where the church stands.

The building is 28 by 32 feet and has eight windows. The logs are all notched at the ends to make a snug fit and the crevices have been filled with wood and mud.

THE TINY church has had its ups and downs over the years. Sometime back, a parcel of land including the famed Council trees was purchased by an adjoining farmer. However, the church recently has been able to purchase back some of the property it lost, inspite of a membership of less than 25.

Members also have built a meeting house on the grounds, where church socials and banquets are held. Last year, the old wood-burning stove in the church was replaced by an oil space heater.

Another recent project has been the planting of a new circle of Council Trees adjacent to the church.

Visitors to the area will find it interesting to visit the old Greensky Hill Indian cemetery overlooking Susan Lake, named for Peter Greensky's wife. The older graves, all facing East, are marked off with wooden fences and or rude wooden crosses.

Steelhead Trout Back, But Anglers Seek Bass

by Glen Sheppard

Though the return of steelhead trout to Lake Charlevoix and Little Traverse Bay is still the most exciting news on the sport fishing front, scrappy smallmouth bass remain the major target for most anglers.

This spring steelhead fishermen had fabulous luck on the Jordan, Boyne and Bear rivers and in Lake Charlevoix and Little Traverse Bay. Documented catches of fish weighing up to 13 pounds were made.

SUMMERTIME fishing for the savage-fighting steelhead is always less than good, however. So in July and August about the only trout caught in the lakes are taken by bass fishermen who just happen to get lucky.

The Lake Charlevoix shoreline is splattered with smallmouth hotspots. The most consistent producers are areas of the South Arm near Iron-ton.

UNDOUBTEDLY the most proven method for taking the plucky smallmouths (and an occasional steelhead) is to troll just off the shore. Troll slow with Mepps spinner, Jig A Do, Rapala, small Flatfish or Daredevil.

Sometimes you'll snag a surly pike as you work your lure around weedbeds.

If it's the kids you want to please, try dunking worms off docks or near weeds for rock bass and perch. (One of '3m is apt to nail a four-pound bass, though. So be prepared to blush.)

IF YOU hanker to try some of Walloon Lake's reknown angling you can rent a boat in the village, or launch your own at several public sites.

Walloon continues to produce some of the biggest bass in northern Lower Michigan.

STREAM fishermen will find the trout fishing slow on the lower end of the Jordan river, guide Ted Kotowich reports. But, he says, some nice catches of browns are coming from the headwaters.

The short section of the Boyne river that is still open to the public is also reported to be producing fine trout fishing.

IF YOUR fancy runs more to worm dunking, there are plenty of small creeks around that harbor trout. You can try Stover, Deer, Monroe, the Bear out of Walloon Lake, and several that feed into the Jordan.

Worm dunkers also have a good time off the Pine River breakwaters and the railroad bridge, where they can sit and soak up the charm of the Charlevoix harbor and luxury yachts.

If you feel more confident fishing small lakes there's no shortage of them in the Charlevoix-Ellsworth area.

THERE IS still a handful of virtually unexploited small lakes known by only a few fishermen. Pike weighing in the 20 pound class and bass that top five pounds come from them.

But to reveal their whereabouts in print would be a violation of an angler's most sacred oath. So dig out a map or buy a native fisherman a drink and find them yourself.

Here's a list, though, of a few of the smaller lakes that are better known and guaranteed to have fish in them: --Lake 26 (Lake Marlon), for pike, bass, panfish.

--Nowland Lake, for pike, IF YOU'RE looking for real fishing adventure journey to Beaver Island. Once in St. James you can rent a small boat to take you into the bays of Garden and Hog Islands.

These bays are among the nation's top-ranked small-mouth hotspots.

CHARLEVOIX'S annual Waterfront Fair for Artists and Craftsmen attracts thousands of people to northern Michigan each summer. This year's fair was held Aug. 12.

Artists Sell Wares at Annual Fair

CHARLEVOIX -- Artists from throughout Michigan and nearby states will converge on Charlevoix Aug. 12 for the 9th annual Waterfront Fair for Artists and Craftsmen. The fair was held in East Park, against a backdrop of Round Lake and the yacht basin.

In fact, many artists come to Charlevoix by boat to show their wares.

Exhibitors are allotted space throughout the park to display and sell their wares.

IN ADDITION to paintings of all kinds, wood carving, ceramics and sculpture were the bill of fare.

On the park stage, Mr. and

Mrs. Nate Cummings of Chicago usually show some of the paintings from their personal collection, which includes paintings by Picasso, Renoir and Degas, among others.

THE FAIR has become famous among Michigan painters, because many visitors have a penchant for buying. Last summer a sculpture student sold out his entire work. His profits allowed him to continue his studies at the University of Michigan.

The exhibit appeals to professionals too, with many well established artists numbered among the regular exhibitors.

THE FAIR also fills a genuine need in northern Michigan, where museums and art galleries are few and far between. Youngsters and adults are given an opportunity to see original works of art and to chat with their creators.

This year's fair is under the direction of Mrs. Kit Carson.

Beaver Land Boom Brings New Activity to Scenic Isle

ST. JAMES -- Beaver Island is undergoing its most dramatic change since King Strang and his Mormons settled there in the 1840's. The 54 - square mile island is the site of the largest land development project in the Midwest. Recreational Properties Inc., affiliated with American Central Land Co. of Lansing, is handling the 1,000-acre development called Port St. James along Font Lake and the northwest portion of the island along Donegal Bay.

Along with developing the land and building between 40 and 50 miles of roads to service the area, the corporation offers many extras to persons who buy lots. Among other things these persons find a swimming pool, a riding stable with eight horses and a golf course at their disposal. Hundreds of persons, including many from Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin, have already bought lots within the development.

THE FISHING around Charlevoix is great, witness this 5 lb., 14 oz. rainbow. It was caught in Lake Charlevoix this spring by Dave Juilleret.

Let's Take a Jaunt on Horseback

Horseback riding is an exciting way to spend a morning or afternoon while visiting Charlevoix County. There are several stables to serve you. Towsley's Circle T. Riding Stable is located one mile south of Boyne Falls on U.S. 31.

The Ernst Riding Stable is located in East Jordan.

MAPLE HILLS Bridle Path is on north Ranney Road near Eveline Orchards. Their phone number is 536-7122. The Walloon Hills Riding Club is located at Walloon Lake.

And American Central Land Co. has its own riding stable on Beaver Island.

MUCH OF the attraction to buyers lies in the seclusion the island offers. As an escape from commercialism, the island affords a slow, peaceful way of life. Although the development is geared to this seclusion, both Donegal Bay and Font Lake are only minutes away from both the airport and St. James Harbor. This seclusion is coupled with the excellent hunting and fishing areas to make the island a perfect vacation spot.

Miles of untouched forests where deer, wild turkeys, grouse and rabbits abound are equaled only by the clear, blue fishing waters where smallmouth bass, bluegills, and pike are pulled up by the thousands every year.

Add still another attraction -- the miles of natural sandy beaches.

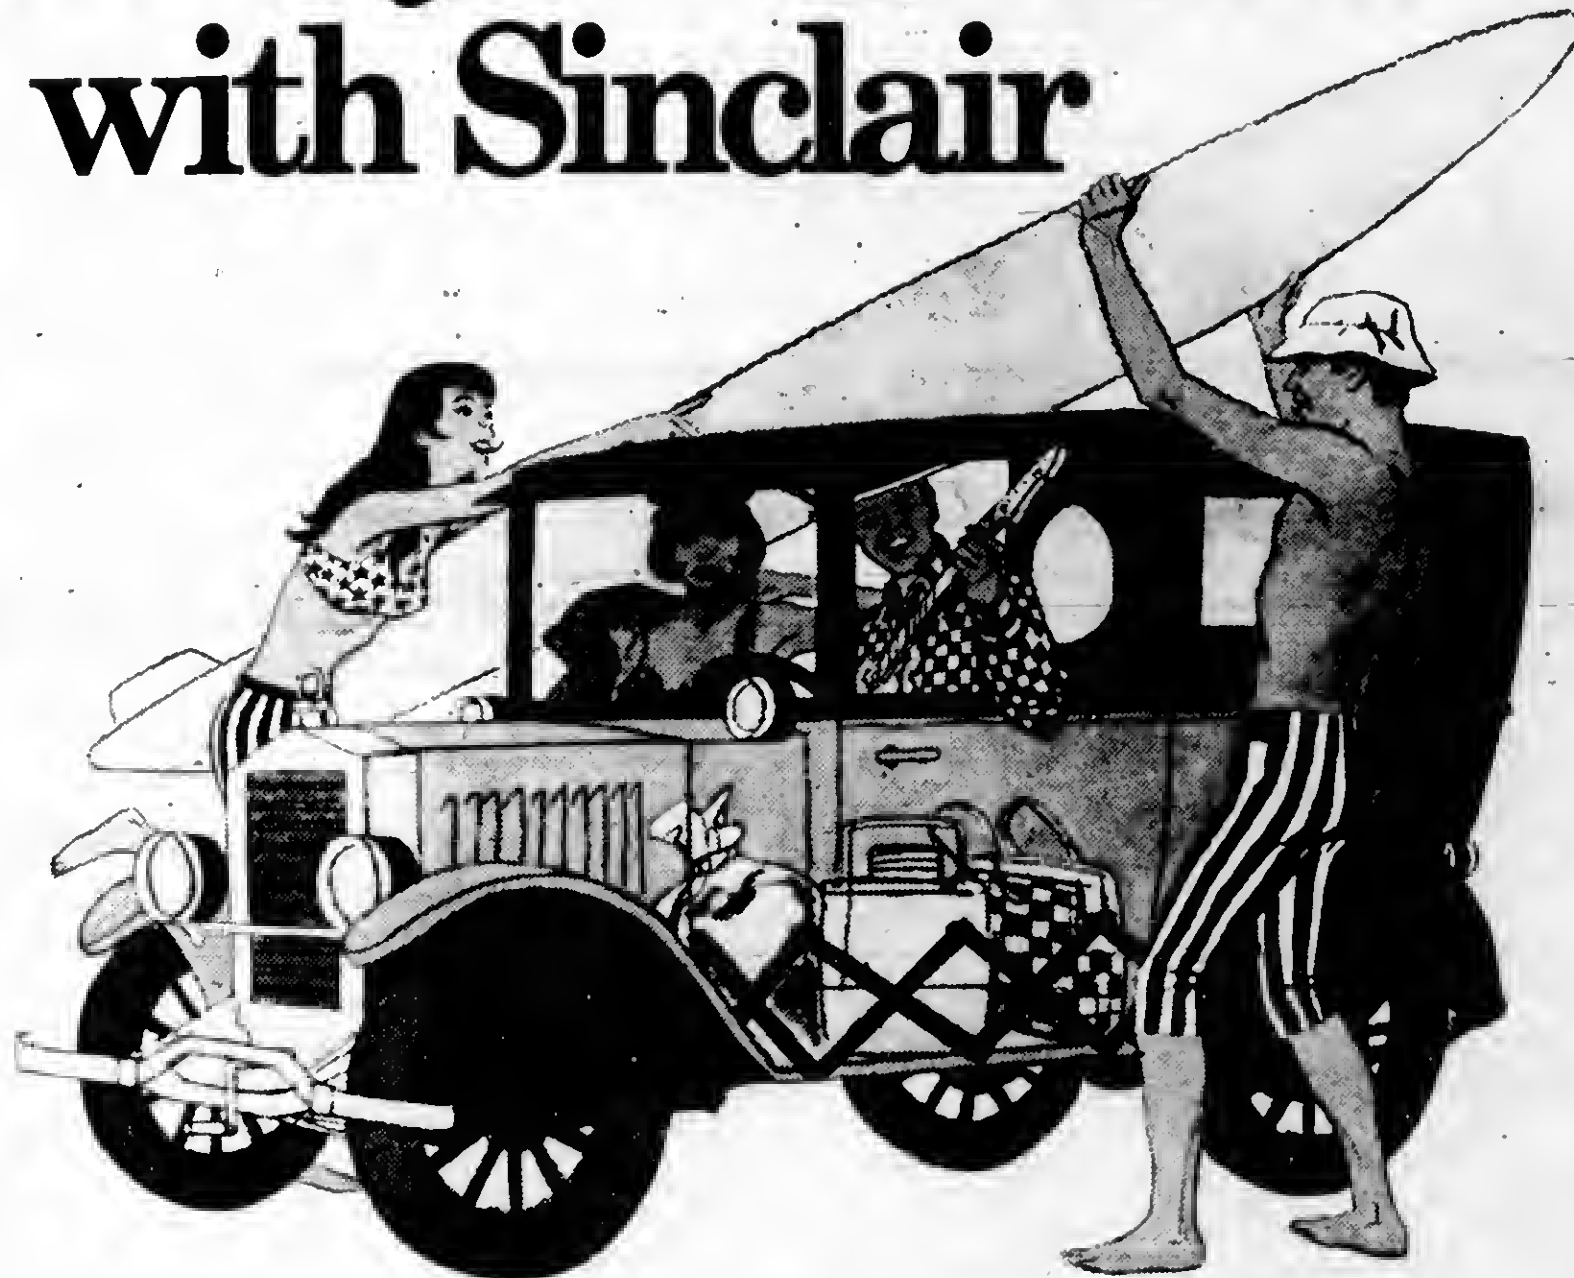

Beaver Island has a modern medical center, directed by a resident doctor.

Coast Guard Activity Keeps City Humming

CHARLEVOIX -- Charlevoix is the home of three U.S. Coast Guard activities in northern Michigan.

The Coast Guard Cutter Sundew, which is responsible for placing and maintaining all the buoys in northern Lake Michigan and Lake Huron, ties up at the city dock in Charlevoix.

Charlevoix also is the home of the Coast Guard's group headquarters in northern Michigan and is the site of the Charlevoix Coast Guard Station.

THE 180-FOOT Sundew has a crew of 45 men and five officers. Skipper is Lt. Cmdr. Jon Uthol.

In addition to buoy duties, the Sundew also breaks ice, takes part in search and rescue operations and enforces federal regulations governing maritime activities.

Throughout the summer, the Sundew will hold openhouse each Saturday, Sunday and holiday from 1 until 4 p.m. and from 6 until 8 p.m.

A TOTAL of 81 men presently are assigned to Group Charlevoix, including the 15 men at the Charlevoix Coast Guard Station and five men at the Beaver Island station.

The Group embraces 14 CG stations, including 11 light-houses (seven isolated) and three shore stations in northern Michigan. Group Commander is Lt. Dave Smith.

The Charlevoix Coast Guard station operates two boats, a 44-foot motor lifeboat and a 30-foot utility boat. The men on Beaver Island have a 40-foot utility boat.

Men assigned to the station take part in search and rescue operations, inspect pleasure boats and perform law enforcement functions.

Charlevoix has been a center for Coast Guard activities in northern Michigan since before the turn of the century.

LOCATED on the former Loeb estate two miles southeast of Charlevoix on M-66, Castle Van Haver's superb medieval architecture (left) takes the visitor on a fantastic journey into the past.

CHARLEVOIX -- A visit to Castle Van Haver is almost like stepping backward 1,300 years into the era of fabled King Arthur and his knights of the roundtable.

Located on a broad plain overlooking Lake Charlevoix, Castle Van Haver opened last summer and is one of Charlevoix's newest tourist attractions.

THE MAGNIFICENT stone building on the site were built in 1917 by the late Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Loeb and were used initially as the farm buildings on their sprawling dairy ranch.

SAFETY MAKES A HAPPY SHIP

COAST GUARD Cutter Sundew glides out Pine River Channel with buoys (on deck) to mark Lake Michigan shipping lanes. Most of the buoys are removed each fall to prevent ice damage.

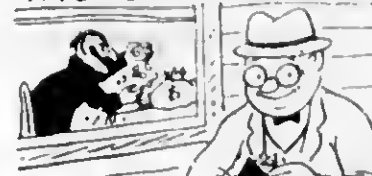

Take Good Care of Boating Gear

Boating accessories require only a minimum of care, but too often they don't even receive this. To add to the appearance of your rig and increase the life of accessories, the following steps.

Floor mats, seats and convertible tops should be washed periodically. This is true for both fresh and salt water craft. A mild soap solution-avoid harsh detergents-will remove dirt and smudge marks. This should be followed by a thorough rinsing with fresh water.

Rides are made in a Scout, a four-wheel drive vehicle made by International Harvester.

Beautiful Beaver Awaits You Island Steeped in Lore

ST. JAMES--If you're looking for something different in the way of a vacation refresh, why not try Beaver Island -- America's Emerald Isle?

WILD JUNIPER lines the shore of Font Lake, one of Beaver Island's seven inland lakes.

Shuffleboard Courts Open

Shuffleboard fans will be able to practice their sport during their Charlevoix County vacation.

Courts are located in East Park and at the Lake Michigan Beach in Charlevoix, at East Jordan's Tourist Park and at Veteran's Memorial Park in Boyne City.

This summer, Charlevoix Senior Citizens are taking up the sport, with matches every Wednesday afternoon at East

EJ Industry

Among East Jordan's industry is Mt. Clemens Metal Products which manufactures metal stampings, Circuit Controls, which produces electric switches and wiring harnesses, East Jordan Iron Works, which makes castings, and heavy and light machine shop finish products, and East Jordan Canning Company, which puts up vegetables and fruits.

Located northwest of Charlevoix in the middle of northern Lake Michigan, Beaver Island offers everything an island should--and then some.

PHYSICALLY, Beaver Island is as attractive a chunk of island real estate as you're likely to find in North America. Fourteen miles long and from three to six miles wide, the island is still heavily forested. Visitors are amazed at the growth of the giant hemlocks and birches which line the island's 75 miles of narrow, gravel roads.

The island may be reached either by water or air. The motorship Beaver Islander carries mail, freight, passengers and cars from Charlevoix to St. James, 32 miles distant, on a regular schedule from the middle of April until the end of December. Fifteen-minute air service is available either from the Charlevoix or Harbor Springs airports. The island airport has two runways, one of them 3,500 feet long.

OTHERS choose to visit the island in their private yachts, weather permitting. The island has ample dock facilities in a natural, sheltered harbor at St. James.

Transportation on the island is no problem if you bring your car. Otherwise, cars and motorbikes may be rented at St. James. Some vacationers prefer to enjoy the island scenery from a bicycle seat.

THE ONLY community of the island, St. James stretches along the shores of Paradise Bay for more than a mile. The village proper has two general stores, two bars, three restaurants and numerous motels, hotels, rental cottages, lodges and rooming houses. An excellent restaurant-bar is located one mile south of the village in what was formerly the Holy Cross parsonage.

LIKE MOST islands, Beaver Island has a mystery. Archeologists are still puzzled as to the origin and the fate of the first "mound builders" who made their home on Beaver Island. Their worship and burial mounds are still to be seen.

Later, the island was inhabited by Chippewa and Ottawa Indians, many of whom still make their home there.

Beautiful Beaver

band of Mormons led by James Jesse Strang moved to the island from Voree, Wisc., in order to practice their religion without interference. Strang, a rural New York lawyer, had himself crowned "King of the Earth", built a Mormon tabernacle and laid out the village of St. James, named after himself.

However King Strang proved to be a dictatorial ruler. He outlawed the use of tea, tobacco and liquor on the island, instructed the women to wear bloomers instead of long skirts and legalized polygamy.

The Irish mainlanders were aghast at his high-handed dictums and eventually Strang's own people turned against him. Following his assassination June 16, 1856, by one of his followers, the Irish moved in, bodily evicting some 2,000 of his followers.

Before long the island was populated entirely by Irish fishermen, whose descendants make up the bulk of the island population today. If you listen to a native Beaver Islander talk, you'll catch a trace of the brogue his ancestors brought over from the Auld Sod.

At one time, the wooded island was visited daily by Great Lakes steamers, since it was a convenient place to stop and pick up firewood for their boilers en route from Chicago to Detroit.

Although the fishing industry is not what it once was, at least one commercial fisherman still operates out of St. James bringing in excellent catches of whitefish.

HOWEVER, the main industry today is tourism. Americans by the thousands have found on Beaver Island the peace and solitude which have

Russian Nobleman Escaped to Beavers

ST. JAMES--Many Beaver Islanders have stories to tell about the late Dr. Fedore Protar, a Russian nobleman who found his Shangri-la on America's Emerald Isle.

The scion of a wealthy family, Dr. Protar was sent to Siberia by the Czarist government for his liberal ideas. He managed to escape from Russia in the guise of a priest, making his way to Germany where he spent several years.

IN THE LATTER half of the last century he emigrated to the United States, where he published a German language newspaper in Illinois.

He had no formal medical training, but was fascinated by the healing arts and studied medicine on his own.

ONCE he took a trip aboard a Lake Michigan steamer which visited Beaver Island. It was love at first sight.

He later wrote to friends that the island was "the breeding place of whitefish and Gatlagers."

Before long, Dr. Protar disposed of his newspaper interests, bought some farm equipment and moved to the island, never to leave again.

However he never farmed. Shortly after he arrived he found a farm family which could make better use of the equipment than he would and gave it to them. Instead, he became the island's only "doctor", treating his patients' aches and pains, stitching their wounds and setting all but vanished from other vacation retreats. Attractive summer cottages have sprung up along the Lake Michigan shore as well as on some of the islands seven inland lakes.

This summer, American Central Land Co. of Lansing has given the tourist industry a big push by subdividing several thousands of acres on the island for resort development.

THE 54-SQUARE mile island still teems with wildlife, including grouse, rabbits, squirrels, ducks, geese, deer, and wild turkeys and the hunting is superb.

Fishing in the Beavers is generally excellent. Three of the islands inland lakes yield game and panfish. The perch run in Paradise Bay each spring and fall is one of the finest on the Great Lakes. Bass and pike fishing in the waters off nearby Garden Island attract many fishermen by motor launch from St. James. Lake Genesareth on Beaver Island has a public fishing site, with a boat launching ramp.

their broken bones.

Although his pay was necessarily meager, Dr. Protar never seemed to want for money. Stories are still current on the island that he continued to receive an income from his family estate in Russia during his residency on Beaver Island.

DR. PROTAR's log home still stands, pretty much as it was at the time of his death in 1928. It is now owned by the Beaver Island Historical Society. Pat Benner, a close friend of Protar's, lives across the road, and will open the door if anyone wants to look around inside.

Nearby is Dr. Protar's tomb, erected by the grateful inhabitants of the island. It consists of a fieldstone enclosure around his grave and a bronze plaque bearing his likeness.

Behind the tomb is a huge boulder upon which Dr. Protar used to sit in a chair and read. It was close to the tracks of a lumber railroad which once ran the length of the island.

Dr. Protar also had another favorite "study" on the island, a clearing in the woods at the foot of Bonner's Bluff, a steep escarpment which drops off to the western shore of the island. The clearing actually was a tiny island in the middle of a flaring spring, reached by rustic bridges.

After his death, a well-meaning islander fenced it off as a memorial to the doctor, but the fence kept out browsing deer as well as intruders.

Hunting For Petoskey Stones

CHARLEVOIX -- Charlevoix's Lake Michigan beaches are a prime hunting ground for the elusive Petoskey stone--the state stone of Michigan.

PETOSKEY stones may look like this when you find them on the Lake Michigan shore.

Michigan was at the bottom of a tropical sea. Although it is named for the city of Petoskey, the stones are plentiful--if you have a sharp eye--many places along the northern Lake Michigan shore. Some excellent stones have been found at Bell's Bay, about five miles south of Charlevoix.

POLISHED, the stones make attractive pieces for jewelry and other decorations. Kits are available to hand-polish the stones.

Country Has Marinas Galore

Need boat equipment, supplies or repairs? Or would you like to rent a boat? There are plenty of marinas to serve you in Charlevoix County:

- CHARLEVOIX
Bellinger's Marine Service, Belvedere Ave.
Brow Marina Inc., 207 Belvedere Ave.
Charlevoix Marine Supply Co., 107 Belvedere Ave.
Fairport, 307 Belvedere Ave.
Hamilton Boat Yard, 231 Belvedere Ave.
Rabach Sales and Service, U.S. 31 N., canvas work and docks.
Stover Creek Marina, foot of Ferry Avenue.
Walker Marine Agency, 313 Belvedere Ave.
Ward's Boat Livery, foot of Antrim. Boat rental.
EAST JORDAN
East Jordan Marina, South End.
Swan Valley Marine, M-66 N.

IRONTON
Alray Cabins, boats and bait.
Scott's cabins and boats.
WALLOON LAKE
Harrington's Marina.
Master's Boat Works, water ski rental.
St's Marine Service, Village Resort.

When polished, the stones make beautiful earrings, cufflinks and brooches. Larger stones may be used as paperweights or door stops.
PETOSKEY stones are easiest to spot when they are wet, since moisture brings out the hexagonal (six-sided) pattern of the original coral. An uncut Petoskey stone may sometimes appear as an ordinary rock covered with tiny bumps.
Other stones, particularly those at the water's edge, clearly show the hex lines which are the mark of a true Petoskey specimen.

Mormons Put Up 1st Cabins at Boyne

Boyne City's history goes back to 1856 when John Miller, his wife and two sons along with John Dixon sailed across Pine Lake (now Lake Charlevoix) from Charlevoix to settle at North Boyne.

Miller, originally from Ireland, found some vacant cabins formerly occupied by the Mormons who were forced to leave and moved in with his family and Dixon.

MILLER CALLED the area "River Boyne" after a river in Ireland where a decisive battle was fought.

After that it was called Boyne Village until 1904 when it became Boyne City.

BOYNE CITY now has a population of about 3,000 persons with a summer increase of about 2,000. The city's major industries include Boyne Products, Inc., Robie Industrial Courter Products, Howe's Leather Company and Mill's Cabin Mills.

In 1961 a new high school and elementary school was built and the city has 12 churches.

Boyne City has seven city parks including Whiting Park where children's swimming classes are held mornings and afternoons, Young State Park, two miles northwest of the city, features a bathing beach with a life guard on duty, picnic facilities, camp sites, and a park store on its 536 acres.

THE CITY also has four marinas, a new steel bulkhead dock with accommodations for crafts up to 60 feet long, tennis courts, shuffleboard and playground equipment, a nine hole golf course and riding stables.

Wednesday evenings at 8 p.m. band concerts are held at Memorial Park with a dance following the concerts.

Medusa Dedication Tuesday

Residents Are Invited to Hear Gov. Romney

CHARLEVOIX -- Gov. George Romney will be main speaker Tuesday, Aug. 22, at the dedication of the $45 million dollar Medusa Portland Cement Co. plant on South Point.

All Charlevoix residents are invited to attend the ceremony.

The dedication will begin at 11:15 a.m. in front of the Medusa office building. Visitors are asked to enter the plant via the Belts Bay Road. Parking will be available near the dedication site.

Gov. George Romney

ROMNEY is scheduled to arrive in Charlevoix at 10:30 a.m. from his summer residence on Mackinac Island. He will tour Charlevoix with Mayor William Fochtman and Henry Sodegwick Jr., chairman of the firm's board of directors, before going to the plant site.

Master of ceremonies for the dedication will be Worth Loomis, vice president administration and secretary of the company. Sodegwick, Robert W. Fort, Medusa President, and Clarence Rabach, Charlevoix Township Supervisor, will join Romney, Loomis and Fochtman on the speakers' platform.

THE CEREMONY will start with a flag raising, presided over by an honor guard of men from the Radar Bomb Scoring Detachment at Bay Shore. The Charlevoix High School Band will be on hand to play. Following the dedication, visitors will be allowed to inspect plant facilities, including the mill, laboratories, the control and computer center, the burning floor, the kiln and the dust collection system.

Refreshments will be served to visitors following the dedication.

GOV. ROMNEY is scheduled to leave Charlevoix at 1:30 p.m. by air for Minneapolis, enroute to Salt Lake City, Utah, where he will attend the wedding of his son the following day.

The 12-man Medusa Board of Directors is flying north from Cleveland the day of the dedication, arriving at Pullman. They will hold a board meeting at the plant in the afternoon.

T. R. Reynolds of Medusa's main office in Cleveland is handling details of the dedication.

The gigantic cement plant, which was one of the largest kilns in the world, has been moving slowly into production during the past two weeks.

Site clearing for the plant began in July, 1965.

Vietnam GI's Find Link in Courier

DIAN, Vietnam -- Attention: Small World Department.

It took a copy of the Charlevoix Courier to make two men from the Charlevoix area realize that the world isn't so big after all.

PFC DAVID A. Goke, the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Goke of Bay Shore, was reading a copy of the Courier in the company orderly room the other day. He left it on his desk when he went to lunch.

When he returned, a warrant officer whom he had never seen before was busily reading the newspaper.

"ARE YOU from Charlevoix?" the officer asked.

"So am I," the WO Vincent Olach, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Olach of Division Street.

Although they are both from the Charlevoix area, the two men had never met before. They had a lot to talk about just the same.

Adult Ed. Program Planned

CHARLEVOIX -- Schools in Boyne City, Charlevoix and East Jordan are initiating a cooperative adult education program this fall, according to Zane Stein, director of vocational education for the Intermediate School District.

Major emphasis will be placed on the high school completion program. Adults who do not have a high school diploma and wish to earn one will be able to do so.

Adults will be given credit toward high school graduation for work experience and other types of education they may have received since leaving school.

Enrollment will be held at each of the participating schools the week of Sept. 5, although combined classes may be held in any one of the three schools if local enrollment is not large enough.

Courses will be offered in blue print reading, drafting, welding, basic electricity, small engine repair, business machines, shorthand, speed writing, salesmanship, typing, bookkeeping, accounting, English, U.S. history, government, foreign language, reading, sewing, cake decorating, conservation, woodworking, handicraft and landscaping.

Any adult wishing information on the program should contact the Boyne City, Charlevoix or East Jordan Public Schools or the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District Office.

Takes Leave

CHARLEVOIX -- Dr. Lawrence Grate has closed his office in the Charlevoix Clinic for an indefinite leave.

He says he may take into further training which would allow him to limit his practice to surgery and the treatment of traumatic injuries.

To Serve County

New Radio Station Possible by Spring

CHARLEVOIX -- There is a good chance that Charlevoix County may have a 5,000 watt radio voice by the spring of 1968.

New Broadcasting Corp. has filed application with the Federal Communications Commission in Washington, D. C., for a license to construct and operate a 5kw AM, daytime radio station for Charlevoix to serve Charlevoix county.

PLANS CALL for a 165 foot tower to be located just off Wickersham rd. in Marlon township, three miles south of Charlevoix. The transmitter will also be located at the tower site.

Broadcast studios and general offices will be situated in downtown Charlevoix. Remote live broadcasts from Boyne City and East Jordan are planned when the new station goes on the air.

Programming for the proposed station will be drawn up from an extensive survey made of listeners' needs and desires. A well balanced package of information and entertainment with emphasis on local interest is slated.

CORPORATION shareholders and officers are Thomas R. McDaniels, president, W. Kirk Schaller, vice-president, and W. Albert Schaller, secretary and treasurer.

McDaniels has lived in Charlevoix for the past four years. He is the general manager for the Charlevoix Courier. W. Albert Schaller is president of Northern Michigan Review and publisher of the Potosky News-Review. Kirk Schaller is Secretary of Northern Michigan Review and is on the advertising staff of the News-Review.

Radio broadcasting in Charlevoix County

Both men commented on the work that can be done through dedicated and united work. They commended the association for their interest in keeping waterways beautiful.

About 50 persons attended the meeting. A second meeting was set for Aug. 28 in the Eltsworth Community Hall at 8 p.m.

Registration

CHARLEVOIX -- Parents of youngsters who did not attend the Elementary School last spring are reminded that registration will take place at the school Aug. 17 from 9 a.m. until noon and from 1 p.m. until 3 p.m.

CHARLEVOIX'S sidewalk sale Saturday was an unqualified success, according to participants. Merchants wheeled out hundreds of bargains for their sidewalk customers.

TWO GREAT LIBERATORS OF MANKIND

Since the dawn of history until nearly half of our present century had passed THE WHEEL was probably the most outstanding of all inventions. Strangely enough man failed to exploit this wonderful invention to anything approaching its full possibilities. He remained chained to his earth. He was content with the cart, the wagon, the coach and the chariot. Then with the 19th century he began to explore and to grow and from his work came our present overnight-to-anywhere age.

As with the wheel so it is with the Church, the Church which freed man from being chained in mind and spirit. Most of us have received but a small fraction of the help that it is possible to get from the Church. There is infinitely more to be had for everyone who will explore and work out greater benefaction from it.

Camp Charlevoix Corrall Chatter

CAMP CHARLEVOIX NEWS
The seventh week of this season started off with a dark, wet, rainy morning, and also found the Greys winning the camp competition by ten points, a walk-a-way for them. However, we had quiz programs in all four sections, and the Greens won in every section, adding four points to their total. They won two points in Augurp, bringing them up to within only four points of the Greys. It was a great day for the Greens and never before in memory can we recall a team getting six points all in one day. The Greys were completely befuddled and couldn't understand this onslaught by the Greens.

On Tuesday, we had the pleasure of having one of our former counselors spend the day with us. Rev. Chandler Benton, assistant pastor at Jefferson Avenue Presbyterian Church in Detroit and a counselor here 15 years ago, returned to spend the day with the boys and men.

In the afternoon, the canoe department, Rusty Smith, Dewey Sekowski, and Larry Wescott took the following boys on a two day canoe trip down the Jordan River. These boys were John Teesdale, John Park, Woody Boydell, Ken Malbatt, Robb Howell, Jeff Young, Steve Amberg, Kevin Geer, Cliff Oberlin, Lee Norwood, Greg Skau, Jimmy Eberts, Tom Cramer and Jim Webb.

About five o'clock, John Bagley, counselor in Cabin one (our smallest boys) had his boys leave camp on a "Hobo Hike". They packed their supper in large red handkerchiefs, which were tied to poles. With these poles over their shoulders they took off with John leading them. He carried a pointed hat, carried a large burlap bag over his shoulder, and with a large cane led the boys up the road.

In the evening, the Junior Greens won another point which brought them to within three points of the leading Greys. Things were getting tense as the score got closer. The intermediate section met down along the shore of the lake, and our guest of the day, Rev. Chandler Benton, spoke to the group in a very informal way, answering questions and trying to make you to know the depth to the questions the boys asked. At the close of the service he had the boys make a circle and spoke on "Light", giving each boy a lighted candle. After prayer, the boys walked slowly and silently along the shore back to their cabins.

On Tuesday morning, the sailing trip was all ready to leave and the sailors were joyful as there was a good breeze which would take them down the lake in no time. The men on the trip were all from the Sailing Department, Jon Howard, John Deane, John Richardson, Doug Laine and Tom Case. The boys on this trip were: Hank Dow, Bob Phillips, Henry Whiting, Andy Case, Paul Kelly, Mike Rees, Chuck Herrington, Dave Herrington, Scott Reid, Greg Rouse, David Washburn, Ross Dicken, Steve Storms, Brian Jagersall, Jim Hargay, Jeff Rouse, Mark Bromley, Kirk Kirilin, Kim Kuehn, and David Rhane.

Not to be outdone by the bigger boys, Cabin 1 took off for a two night trip, and they were sure excited. John Bagley, the counselor, took them down to the Jordan River in his van, and he asked one of our Senior Campers to go along, Dave Smith. The little fellows were: Jay Bandera, Don Clark, Jim Ruffin, Cam Simmons, Brad Baylitt, Steve Edmunds, and Steve Kanakis.

Is this any way to treat your recreation areas?

Keep your home beautiful — keep America beautiful

You and your family spend a lot of time in America's parks, forests and recreation areas. You live there — they're part of your home. Why litter your home? Why litter your America? Litter is ugly and unhealthy and dangerous. Cleaning it up costs millions in taxes you help pay. Every litter bit hurts you.

Litter doesn't throw itself away; litter doesn't just happen. People cause it — and only people can prevent it. "People" means you. Keep America Beautiful.

Courier Camera Visits the Art Fair

THOUSANDS of persons turned out Saturday for the 9th annual Waterfront Fair for Artists and Craftsman in East Park. Some 220 exhibitors set up shop in the park and police say that for the first time the fair attracted more visitors than Charlevoix's popular Venetian Festival, held annually in late July.

AT LEAST one European artist had an exhibit in the fair. She was Mrs. Lillemor Hansen of Norway.

ONE OF most popular spots at the fair was the glass blowing shelter of David I. Myers Jr. of Lake Skegemog, Mich. Crowds surrounded Myers' lakefront booth during the day-long fair.

PRODUCTS of the hand weaver's loom were shown by Mrs. Jan Jackson of Rochester, Mich. Mrs. Jackson had a selection of shawls and baby blankets on display.

CHAIRMAN of this year's Waterfront Fair was Mrs. Kit Carson. She and her co-workers were responsible for signing up exhibitors and finding room for them in East Park.

CHARCOAL PORTRAITS of fair visitors were drawn by Florence Kaufman of Grosse Ile. Other artists did caricatures and oil portraits.

DENNIS POWELL's oil paintings on velvet caught the eye of many fair visitors. Powell lives in Detroit.

Lake Construction won their second straight title, and in doing so eliminated the Air Force from second round contention. Their 5-4 narrow win established them as the only team with even a chance to catch league leader American.

Moist, moist has become remaining with an unbeaten record this far. There were heroes aplenty for the Construction gang. Stew Cunningham left off the seventh inning with a pinch-hit single. Gary Plum walked. The next two men were retired and it looked like the Service men would hang on to their narrow 4-3 lead and win. Steve Smith had two strikes on him when he blasted a long triple off the leftfielder's glove to score two and put LC in the lead. The Air Force came back in their seventh with the bases loaded when pitcher Terry Blissett made a clutch out at home for out number two. Levi McClellan made the third out on a deep fly to center. Sonny Wright took the loss, allowing 6 hits, while Blissett gave up four.

WILSON-MAYHEW and County State Bank hooked up in a slugfest contest before the Bank boys emerged victorious 15-9. Four home runs were hit in the spirited contest, in which a player was ejected for misconduct, and then later suspended for the remainder of the season. Tom Drenth, Joe Bartle, and Gary Stutzman had winner's home runs while Glen Mayhew had a two-run homer for the losers. Stutzman had four hits to pace the attack.

The Dairy Queens won the Women's city championship in their second straight win, defeating the style-slinging Edwards 7-0. The two teams had ended the regular season tied for first place. The 10-2-4 picked up four first inning runs and were never headed. Ellen Arvella headed up a strong hitting attack with three singles. Connie Smith allowed the losers only three hits, all singles.

WOMENS LEAGUE
The Sundew outscored the Medicine Chest 11-9. The winners scored in every inning then stopped the Medicine Chest from scoring in final inning, escaping from a base-loaded situation.

Hamiltons picked up a good win defeating Novaks 7-4. Shirley V. Partridge of 205 Potoskey Ave., Charlevoix, is serving at the U.S. Coast Guard Station, Sabine Pass, Texas.

Sharing: An Out for Ellsworth

Superintendent John Jurgenson of Ellsworth announced last week that Ellsworth and Central Lake schools plan a "share system" this fall.

Staff members of the two schools will be allowed to teach in both schools and students may take classes in either district if it's not offered in their home school.

Ellsworth students may find it possible to take such classes as band, vocal music and art along with more academic subjects while benefitting from a guidance service.

ELLSWORTH'S school board must be commended on its handling of school business at its last meeting.

All business was discussed openly and freely without the use of closed doors which faced visitors two weeks before. After the board meeting, many of its members willingly offered information and answered any questions asked.

It was refreshing to learn the board also believes that public business is public business.

It is hoped the board plans to continue operating in the open.

The Right Man in the Right Job

ment with a single aim: To help Charlevoix and Charlevoixians grow and prosper.

YET THE FACT remains that competition in northern Michigan in recent years to attract tourists and industry has been formidable.

One has only to run through back issues of the Courier to discover how many conventions, formerly hosted by the city, have moved elsewhere. Many of them are presently headquartered in the sprawling ski lodges throughout the area which have made an all-out effort to attract off-season business.

Yet so far as we can see, Charlevoix still has more to offer than any community in the north.

Although Charlevoix's success in attracting industry is certainly enviable, there is still more to be done, particularly in the field of light manufacturing plants which will give a broader base to our economy.

Clockwise A Tale of Two Cities

By Bob Clock

We took a trip back to Canada a couple of weekends ago to attend the school picnic in my mother's old hometown. She was born in Oxenden, Ont., and unless you were born there, or live within a ten mile radius, chances are you've never heard of it.

Today Oxenden has a population of from 35 to 40 persons at most, but more than 300 men, women and children showed up for the old school picnic, and that doesn't include dozens of babies in arms and 100 young to sign up. Fortunately, you don't have to really attend the school to take part in the festivities.

OXENDEN is one of those old lumbering towns which couldn't quite make the transition to the modern age. It lies on the south shore of Colby Bay, one of those long, deep inlets cutting into the Bruce Peninsula from Georgian Bay. The bay is about 12 miles long and is flanked on its length with high limestone escarpments, rising 300 feet above the water in some places. The shores are still heavily forested with giant cedars.

Where Colby Bay meets Georgian Bay, the headlands drop off sharply in steps toward the open water. At the mouth of the bay are three small islands -- Hay, White Cloud and Griffith. When viewed from almost any vantage point along the high rock, the cool blue-green vista looks as inviting as an artist's sketch for a beer ad.

The headlands on the north shore of the bay are the home of the Cape Croker Golf Course, certainly one of the most strikingly beautiful places of real estate in North America, combining the high plateau of the American West with the vast waters of the Great Lakes.

WHEN OXENDEN was first settled about 100 years ago, my pioneer ancestors had a firm belief that it would one day be a thriving center of trade and commerce. My great Grandfather Millard was so confident that the Oxenden would boom that he built a five-story hotel on the main corner, which he ran in addition to his lumber mill.

From the stories my great aunts and uncles have told me, the hotel was quite a place, with a pub and a "billiard room" for ladies. But the hotel never really got going. The millman used to stop in for a drink every day and a group of pleasure racing enthusiasts made it their headquarters. The family lived on the first two stories, but the upper stories were never really finished, much less occupied.

One stormy night, the hotel was struck by lightning and burned to the ground. One of the few objects to survive the downed heat was a crockery inkwell which has been handed down to me.

There also were endless summer days fishing for perch off the big government dock or swimming in the crystal waters of the bay or one of the mill ponds.

UNLIKE MOST towns, Oxenden still hasn't felt the shock waves of the population explosion. In fact, it gets a little smaller every year. At one time the village had two grist mills, a lumber mill, a blacksmith shop and two grocery stores, one of them housing the post office, an Orange Hall and a church.

Today the lumber mill and one of the grist mills are gone. The other grist mill is still standing, but it has been converted into a teenage nightclub specializing in soft drinks, fried chicken sandwiches and french fries drenched in white vinegar.

Bitly Walpole's blacksmith shop, which was a going concern when I was a boy, is also gone. It fell into disrepair after Bitly died and someone mercifully tore it down.

Only one grocery store is doing business and the post office was discontinued this year. The church still stands and is used occasionally, but the Orange Hall is long gone.

Fortunately, the changes have taken place so gradually that you scarcely notice them. For the most part, the village has remained the same old Oxenden I remember as a boy. Warton, meanwhile, has become a real boom town. Although it still wears the turn-of-the-century look, the streets are crowded with puffy tourists in sunglasses and walking shorts, the shops are well stocked and the town has a carnival atmosphere from morning till the pubs close at midnight.

However, like Oxenden, some of the old landmarks are beginning to disappear. I got quite a surprise last week when I looked down the street toward the old livery stable where Aunt Mary used to leave her horse and rig while we went shopping. The stable with its warm, friendly, horse smell is gone. In its place is a spanking new business called "Percy's Car Wash."

Maybe I'm just an old sentimentalist, but I hope no one ever builds a car wash in Oxenden.

Reader Takes Issue With Warren Report

To the Editor:

After being exposed to the latest reexamination of the Warren Commission Report, the Columbia Broadcasting System inquiry, I became apparent that all information, intelligent people accept the conclusions of the report as convincing. Since only the glib, ignorant majority suspect a conspiracy in the murder of President Kennedy I decided to question, in depth, the most suitable looking character that I could find.

Upon entering the nearest bar I spotted a flabby looking derelict gazing dully at the television set. In an effort to establish rapport and gauge the mentality of my specimen I queried, "What nation is led by a couple of asses?"

After he offered several slanders as alternative responses I supplied the answer with the authority of a television commentator. He gulped half a glass of output and repeated, "Assassination."

I nodded affirmatively. Here was the perfect example of the typical glib, misinformed public.

"Did you see the Columbia Broadcasting System Inquiry into the Warren Commission Report?" I asked bluntly.

"Yes."

"Did you agree with their conclusions?"

"No."

"Why not?"

"In the second broadcast that young doctor from the Parkland Hospital said that he saw two wounds on the body of President Kennedy, one small one in the front of the neck, and a large one in the posterior of the head. After federal authorities removed the body, over the strenuous protests of officials, the doctors from the Bethesda Naval Hospital said that the autopsy showed that there were four external wounds on the body.

The additional wounds included one in the back of the neck, a small wound in the back of the head on the right side, and a large wound on the right side, or top, of the head."

"The program clearly stated that the wound in the back of the neck was overlooked because the President was lying on his back," I protested.

"That excuse cannot account for mistaking a small wound in the back of the head for a large one, and not seeing a massive wound in the side of the head at all, can it?" he countered.

"You are going to have to provide me with more proof than your word," I demanded heatedly.

With that exchange he produced a dog-eared pocket edition of the Warren Report from his coat pocket.

"Commission Exhibit No. 392 says: 'The first physician to see the President was Dr. James H. Hoge, a resident in general surgery.'"

"Two external wounds, one in the lower third of the anterior neck, the other in the occipital region of the skull, were noted. Through the head wound, blood and brain were extruding." "The occipital region is the back part of the skull," Dr. Clark said. "I clearly observed the head wound, described a large gaping wound in the right rear part of the head, with substantial damage and exposure of brain tissue, and a considerable loss of blood. Dr. Clark did not see any other hole or wound on the President's head."

"The New York Herald Tribune on November 23, 1963, reported the Dr. Perry televised news conference as follows: 'Dr. Malcolm Perry, 31, attending surgeon at Parkland Hospital who attended the President, said he saw two wounds -- one below the Adam's apple, the other at the back of the head.'"

"Didn't some of these doctors later admit that the small wound could have been concealed by blood?" I demanded.

"Yes, but the doctors who conducted the autopsy always refer to the wound in the back of the head as the small wound. They refer to the massive wound as being in the side (occipital region), or the top (vertex region)."

"Wouldn't the X-rays and photographs from the autopsy help to clarify the issue?"

"Perhaps, but the Associated Press reports that they still remain inaccessible for 71 years, and the Zapruder film of the assassination are also unavailable to the public."

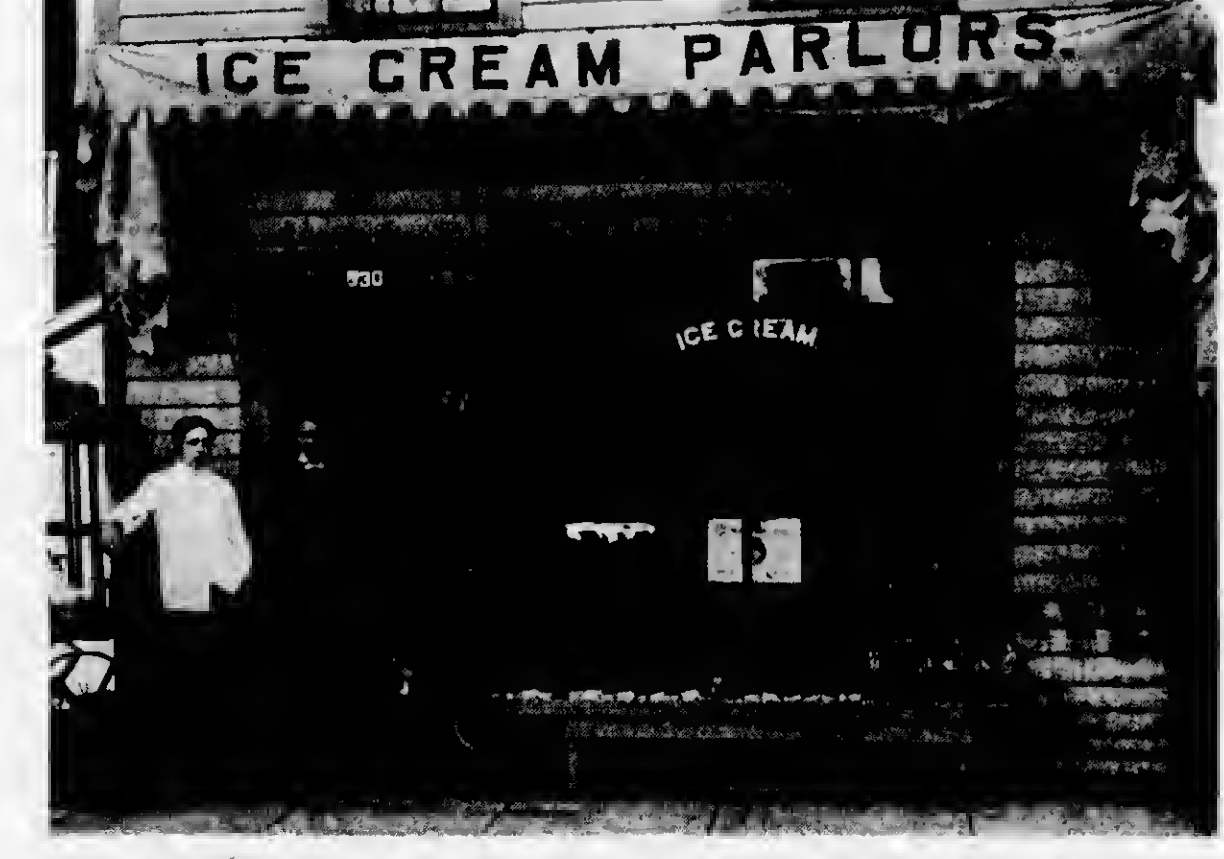

"The Columbia Broadcasting System Inquiry already made those criticisms," I reminded him.

"That broadcast didn't even begin to touch the original news conference of the Parkland Hospital doctors," he reminded me.

"Withholding much of the material that you mention does protect the Kennedy family from constant tasteless reminders of that painful event, doesn't it?"

"That was the same reason that Ruby supposedly gave for shooting Oswald, but that sentiment, in deference to the Oswald family feelings, doesn't prevent television networks from repeatedly showing the Oswald murder, does it?"

"Your attitude is inexcusable," I exploded.

He recoiled, drained his glass, dropped his Warren Report into his pocket, and staggered out into the night.

East Jordan to Add Special Ed. Room

EAST JORDAN -- Superintendent Max Damoth said last week elementary special education students will have their own room here next year.

Last year three elementary students went to Charlevoix along with six trainable students and six junior high students for special education classes.

He said only three students were sent because that was all Charlevoix had room for, but added the elementary program will be expanded here this year to include all students who should be in the program.

Although a teacher hasn't been hired for the class yet, Damoth is considering an applicant from Taylor, Mich.

DAMOTH ALSO said the Goodwill Center is almost ready for classes Sept. 5 and playground facilities have been added there.

Three elementary classes will be moved from the school to the remodeled center because of crowded facilities, he said he didn't know yet which classes would be assigned there.

Although the school has hired ten teachers for the fall, Damoth said there are positions open in the high school math, science and English departments along with some elementary vacancies.

TEACHERS hired include Mrs. Paul Fell, a 1967 graduate of Peru (Nebraska) State College, who will teach home economics; Paul Fell, a 1967 graduate of Peru State College, who will teach art; Douglas McMurphy, a Central Michigan University graduate and former teacher at West Branch, who will teach junior high math; Edward Wozniak, a Northern Michigan University graduate, who will teach history and geography; Duane "Tuck" Thompson, a 1949 East Jordan High School alumnus, who will teach American history and government and coach football; Alden Kastar, who will teach English; and John Maxwell, who will teach commercial classes.

Elementary teachers include Mrs. Duane Thompson, a Central Michigan University graduate, who formerly taught music at Tappan, O.; Mrs. Ostrom Cummings, a Central Michigan University graduate from Livonia, who formerly taught in Frankfort, and Mrs. Joyce Jaroma, an Ohio State University graduate, who taught in Boyne City last year.

Bulow Host

BOYNE FALLS -- Fenton Bulow, Charlevoix County Clerk, was host at the annual meeting of the Michigan Association of County Clerks here July 16 through 19. Lee Sneathen Jr., chairman of the County Board of Supervisors, welcomed the group.

Fisherman Hit Gill Net Ban

CHARLEVOIX -- A commercial fisherman here believes members of the State Conservation Department must be "right out of their minds" with their latest proposal to halt gill netting in Lake Michigan.

The move was proposed because large numbers of lake trout and coho salmon reportedly die after being caught in gill nets set for whitefish.

John Cross Sr., of John Cross Fisheries, said such a move would wipe out his 55-year-old business.

"For years I've brought in the most spawn and the best spawn for the trout hatcheries, and now it looks as though everyone in the Conservation Department is going crazy."

The fishery, presently operated by his son Jack, is valued at between $400,000 and $500,000 in boats, property and equipment, Cross said.

He added that pound and trap nets, which apparently would still be permissible if the ban on gill nets is approved, are more injurious to fish than gill nets, since they are pulled in so rapidly.

The senior Cross said he didn't think other states adjoining Lake Michigan would go along with the ban, and that Michigan would simply be handing the fishing business to out-of-staters and Canadians.

At East Jordan

Detroit Wins Job as Park Caretaker

EAST JORDAN -- Council members here approved hiring a new caretaker for the Tourist Park.

Clement Morris, 51, of Detroit, will begin his duties as caretaker Nov. 1. Morris has a wife and grown children and was previously a plant supervisor.

Members of the Tourist Park Committee said Morris intended to move to the area sometime this year whether he got the job or not.

Chosen from a number of applicants, Morris will be placed on probation for six months to a year.

IN OTHER ACTION, the council decided to form a governmental body with Mancelona, Bellaire and nine other townships in an effort to "save the Jordan River."

Mayor Betty Robertson gave her reserved approval to the decision, however, saying she hopes farmers will be included in the governmental body.

"Let it be known," she said, "that I stand behind the farmers. If this organization intends to infringe upon property rights of farmers, I'm against it. I hope farmers, and not just sportsmen, will have a say in this."

Gill Net Ban

The ban was proposed to protect new plantings of lake trout and salmon for sportsmen.

Wayne Tob, director of fish operations for the state, has called the gill nets "lethal" to trout and salmon.

Conservation Department Commissioner Gus Scholle of Detroit said he would go along with the ban, so long as state or federal reimbursement would be forthcoming to fishermen for their nets.

Jake White, Charlevoix's only other commercial fisherman, said the ban would probably put him out of business also.

Public hearings on the issue will be held before any action is taken.

'Topper' Carey Is Taking Part in Isle Exercise

MOLOKAI, Hawaii -- Army PFC. Charles "Topper" L. Carey Jr., 21, whose parents live at 406 Michigan Ave., Charlevoix, Mich., is participating in "Exercise Coral Sands II," a joint-service amphibious assault on the island of Molokai, Hawaii, Aug. 1-10.

Stationed at Schofield Barracks, Hawaii, he is one of more than 6,000 soldiers and sailors participating in the mock operation.

A MEMBER of the Army Landing Force, he will land on the "enemy-held" beach to seize and destroy several enemy missile bases.

Chest Starts Summer Drive

CHARLEVOIX -- Two Community Chest drives presently are under way in Charlevoix, according to Don Anders, 1967 chairman.

A canvas of summer residents presently is being conducted by Archie Livingston and Pat Hawley.

At the same time, summer merchants are being solicited by Anders, William Peck, Thomas LaBlance, Dr. John Lignell, Ralph Doan and Bob Clock.

A GOAL of $14,670 has been set for the 1967 campaign, which will reach its peak the last two weeks of September with local solicitations.

Of the total, $12,027 will go to city and county agencies, $1,228 to state agencies and $443 to national agencies. The balance will help meet campaign expenses, according to Mrs. Don Anders, executive secretary of the Charlevoix Chest.

Let's Have a Picnic

PICNICKING is a favorite pastime in the many roadside parks around Charlevoix. Here a vacationing family stops at the G. Donald Kennedy park located five miles northeast of Charlevoix off U.S. 31. Picnickers can enjoy a panoramic view of Lake Michigan and Little Traverse Bay while they roast hot dogs in the open air. The shoreline is also a treasure trove of Petoskey stones.

VISITORS and natives alike are fascinated by the Pine River Channel bridge which raises several times a day to let ships pass in and out of Charlevoix Harbor. This view was taken west of the channel from the rear deck of the Beaver Islander.

Our Fascinating Bridge

CHARLEVOIX --- No visit to Charlevoix is complete without seeing the bascule bridge over Pine River Channel raise her steel and concrete arms to let a vessel pass in or out of Charlevoix Harbor.

Maintained by the State Highway Department, the bridge is manned 24 hours a day, 12 months a year by a team of three bridge tenders and a relief man.

When in place, the bridge carries U.S. 31 traffic north and south through the city of Charlevoix.

IT IS RAISED whenever a vessel to high for clearance must pass between Round Lake and Lake Michigan. Three blasts of a boat's whistle is the signal that a boat operator wants the bridge opened. The bridge tender responds in kind and sets in motion the gigantic mechanism which lifts the twin portals to let her pass.

THE FIRST STEP in the procedure is the turning on of warning lights and bells at the bridge approaches. Gates are dropped across the highway and the sidewalks and a road barrier raises as if by magic from the pavement.

When this is done, the tender manipulates levers which activate machinery under the street surface which move weights to raise the bridge.

On an average, it takes about three minutes to raise and lower the bridge to let a boat pass. However the time can vary, depending on the speed of the vessel or how many boats wish to pass through at one time. The bridge has been opened as long as 20 minutes to let a big lake freighter through.

TRAFFIC pileups sometimes occur on each side of the bridge, particularly during the busy summer season.

This is why the State Highway Department recently reiterated its instructions to the tender not to open the bridge if the only object on a boat too high for passage is a collapsible radio antenna.

Sometimes in the past, operators of "puddle jumpers" have whistled for the bridge to open, just to let their passengers see the bridge in motion. Fortunately for motorists, the Highway Department has turned thumbs down on such shenanigans.

In summer there is sufficient channel traffic to let everyone see the bridge in motion, even if he is in Charlevoix only for an hour or two.

Indian Past Lives Again at Greensky Hill Church

BUILT OF native cedar logs, the Greensky Hill Indian Methodist Church appears today much as it did in 1860 when it was completed.

JAY OLIVER, a member of Greensky Hill Church, stands near ancient twisted maple trees which once marked the site of Indian ceremonials.

CHARLEVOIX - Lovers of Indian lore will be fascinated by a visit to Greensky Hill Methodist Church, located high on a bluff near Susan Lake, northeast of Charlevoix on the old Petoskey Road.

Built of hand-hewn logs, the church was completed in 1860 on the site of an ancient tribal meeting ground.

Nearby stand nine gigantic maple trees in a circle. Their lower limbs were bent outward with thongs when they were saplings as a symbol of peace among Indian tribes in the area.

SERVICES are conducted each Sunday during the summer at 9:30 a.m. by the Rev. Leona Winegarden, pastor of the Charlevoix Methodist Church. The services are conducted in English, with several hymns sung in the Ojibwa language.

The mission church was built by Peter Greensky, an Indian brave who received his Christian training at the Methodist settlement of Bay Mills in the Upper Peninsula. In 1838, Greensky moved to the Lower Peninsula to take part in a Protestant movement then underway in the Grand Traverse Bay area.

Later, Greensky became dissatisfied with the mission and decided to establish a church of his own where he and his followers could worship as they saw fit.

Twenty-seven families joined him on the trek north, through Lake Michigan, Pine River Channel and Round Lake into Pine Lake (now Lake Charlevoix). They came upon the Council Trees where their ancestors had once smoked the peace pipe and decided this would be the site of their church.

Steelhead Trout Back, But Anglers Seek Bass

by Glen Sheppard

Though the return of steelhead trout to Lake Charlevoix and Little Traverse Bay is still the most exciting news on the sport fishing front, scrappy smallmouth bass remain the major target for most anglers.

This spring steelhead fishermen had fabulous luck on the Jordan, Boyne and Bear rivers and in Lake Charlevoix and Little Traverse Bay. Documented catches of fish weighing up to 13 pounds were made.

SUMMERTIME fishing for the savage-fighting steelies is always less than good, however. So in July and August about the only trout caught in the lakes are taken by bass fishermen who just happen to get lucky.

The Lake Charlevoix shoreline is splattered with smallmouth hotspots. The most consistent producers are areas of the South Arm near Iron-ton.

UNDOUBTEDLY the most proven method for taking the plucky smallmouths (and an occasional steelhead) is to troll just off the shore. Troll slow with Mepps spinner, Jig A Do, Rapala, small Flatfish or Daredevil.

Sometimes you'll snag a surly pike as you work your lure around weedbeds.

If it's the kids you want to please, try dunking worms off docks or near weeds for rock bass and perch. (One of '3m is apt to nail a four-pound bass, though. So be prepared to blush.)

IF YOU hanker to try some of Walloon Lake's reknown angling you can rent a boat in the village, or launch your own at several public sites.

Walloon continues to produce some of the biggest bass in northern Lower Michigan. STREAM fishermen will find the trout fishing slow on the lower end of the Jordan river, guide Ted Kotowich reports. But, he says, some nice catches of browns are coming from the headwaters.

The short section of the Boyne river that is still open to the public is also reported to be producing fine trout fishing.

IF YOUR fancy runs more to worm dunking, there are plenty of small creeks around that harbor trout. You can try Stover, Deer, Monroe, the Bear out of Walloon Lake, and several that feed into the Jordan.

Worm dunkers also have a good time off the Pine River breakwaters and the railroad bridge, where they can sit and soak up the charm of the Charlevoix harbor and luxury yachts.

If you feel more confident fishing small lakes there's no shortage of them in the Charlevoix-Ellsworth area.

THERE IS still a handful of virtually unexploited small lakes known by only a few fishermen. Pike weighing in the 20 pound class and bass that top five pounds come from them.

But to reveal their whereabouts in print would be a violation of an angler's most sacred oath. So dig out a map or buy a native fisherman a drink and find them yourself.

Here's a list, though, of a few of the smaller lakes that are better known and guaranteed to have fish in them: --Lake 26 (Lake Marlon), for pike, bass, panfish.

--Nowland Lake, for pike,

IF YOU'RE looking for real of Garden and Hog Islands. These bays are among the nation's top-ranked smallmouth hotspots.

East Jordan Has Lot to Offer

EAST JORDAN--Located at the tip of the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix, East Jordan offers tourists a multitude of recreational activities and personal services.

Fishing and camera enthusiasts alike find Sportsman's Park a favorite haunt. Besides offering anglers a chance to catch perch, bass and trout while relaxing on the Sportsman's Bridge, camera bugs are free to "shoot" any of the wildlife at the park including swans, deer and birds. A picnic area is also available.

ABOUT A MILE from the park on M-88 is the Tourist Park which offers a bathing beach, shuffleboard courts, a picnic area and facilities for nearly 100 campers and trailers. The city maintains an excellent dock for cruisers and small craft, and provides an airport two miles southeast of town.

Tennis courts are located at the school.

A canoe trip down the Jordan River through the scenic Jordan Valley offers both relaxation in beautiful surroundings and excellent fishing.

AT THE HEADWATERS of the Jordan River, a federal fish hatchery which is restocking the Great Lakes with lake trout is open to the public.

Ninety three per cent of the people in Charlevoix own their own homes.

Two banks serve Charlevoix, the Charlevoix County State Bank and the Charlevoix State Savings Bank.

Charlevoix has a school enrollment of about 1,300 students, with a faculty of 52. It's million-dollar Junior-Senior High School opened in 1961.

East Jordan has many fine services including a public library, eight churches, an elementary and high school, Grandview Medical Care Facility, marinas, restaurants, stores, cottages, motels, and hotel.

Special events include the Snowmobile Rally and Races in February, the Jordan Valley Festival and Lake Charlevoix Outboard Marathon over the Fourth of July, and the Portside Art Fair in early August.

CHARLEVOIX'S annual Waterfront Fair for Artists and Craftsmen attracts thousands of people to northern Michigan each summer. This year's fair was held Aug. 12.

Artists Sell Wares at Annual Fair

CHARLEVOIX -- Artists from throughout Michigan and nearby states will converge on Charlevoix Aug. 12 for the 9th annual Waterfront Fair for Artists and Craftsmen. The fair was held in East Park, against a backdrop of Round Lake and the yacht basin.

In fact, many artists come to Charlevoix by boat to show their wares.

Exhibitors are allotted space throughout the park to display and sell their wares.

IN ADDITION to paintings of all kinds, wood carving, ceramics and sculpture were the bill of fare.

On the park stage, Mr. and

Mrs. Nate Cummings of Chicago usually show some of the paintings from their personal collection, which includes paintings by Picasso, Renoir and Degas, among others.

THE FAIR has become famous among Michigan painters, because many visitors have a penchant for buying. Last summer a sculpture student sold out his entire work. His profits allowed him to continue his studies at the University of Michigan.

The exhibit appeals to professionals too, with many well established artists numbered among the regular exhibitors.

THE FAIR also fills a genuine need in northern Michigan, where museums and art galleries are few and far between. Youngsters and adults are given an opportunity to see original works of art and to chat with their creators.

This year's fair is under the direction of Mrs. Kit Carson.

Coast Guard Activity Keeps City Humming

CHARLEVOIX -- Charlevoix is the home of three U.S. Coast Guard activities in northern Michigan.

The Coast Guard Cutter Sundew, which is responsible for placing and maintaining all the buoys in northern Lake Michigan and Lake Huron, ties up at the city dock in Charlevoix.

Charlevoix also is the home of the Coast Guard's group headquarters in northern Michigan and is the site of the Charlevoix Coast Guard Station.

THE 180-FOOT Sundew has a crew of 45 men and five officers. Skipper is Lt. Cmdr. Jon Ulthol.

In addition to buoy duties, the Sundew also breaks ice, takes part in search and rescue operations and enforces federal regulations governing maritime activities.

Throughout the summer, the Sundew will hold openhouse each Saturday, Sunday and holiday from 1 until 4 p.m. and from 6 until 8 p.m.

A TOTAL of 81 men presently are assigned to Group Charlevoix, including the 15 men at the Charlevoix Coast Guard Station and five men at the Beaver Island station.

The Group embraces 14 CG stations, including 11 light-houses (seven isolated) and three shore stations in northern Michigan. Group Commander is Lt. Dave Smith. The Charlevoix Coast Guard station operates two boats, a 44-foot motor lifeboat and a 30-foot utility boat. The men on Beaver Island have a 40-foot utility boat.

Men assigned to the station take part in search and rescue operations, inspect pleasure boats and perform law enforcement functions.

Charlevoix has been a center for Coast Guard activities in northern Michigan since before the turn of the century.

3 Day Camps in Operation

Three day camps for area youngsters are now in operation in Charlevoix County.

Two of them--the Charlevoix Play Camp operated by Del Terrill, and Novak's Play Camp--are located in Charlevoix. Walloon Day Camp is located on Walloon Lake.

Mormons Put Up 1st Cabins at Boyne

Boyne City's history goes back to 1856 when John Miller, his wife and two sons along with John Dixon sailed across Pine Lake (now Lake Charlevoix) from Charlevoix to settle at North Boyne.

Miller, originally from Ireland, found some vacant cabins formerly occupied by the Mormons who were forced to leave and moved in with his family and Dixon.

MILLER CALLED the area "River Boyne" after a river in Ireland where a decisive battle was fought.

LOCATED on the former Loeb estate two miles southeast of Charlevoix on M-66, Castle Van Haver's superb medieval architecture (left) takes the visitor on a fantastic journey into the past.

Ruins Beckon Visitors to Castle Van Haver

CHARLEVOIX -- A visit to Castle Van Haver is almost like stepping backward 1,300 years into the era of fabled King Arthur and his knights of the roundtable.

Located on a broad plain overlooking Lake Charlevoix, Castle Van Haver opened last summer and is one of Charlevoix's newest tourist attractions.

THE MAGNIFICENT stone building on the site were built in 1917 by the late Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Loeb and were used initially as the farm buildings on their sprawling dairy ranch.

WEEKDAYS and Sundays, the boat leaves St. James at 7 a.m. and 2:45 p.m. Departure time from Charlevoix is 10 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

COAST GUARD Cutter Sundew glides out Pine River Channel with buoys (on deck) to mark Lake Michigan shipping lanes. Most of the buoys are removed each fall to prevent ice damage.

Take Good Care of Boating Gear

Boating accessories require only a minimum of care, but too often they don't even receive this. To add to the appearance of your rig and increase the life of accessories, the following steps.

Floor mats, seats and convertible tops should be washed periodically. This is true for both fresh and salt water craft. A mild soap solution—avoid harsh detergents—will remove dirt and smudge marks. This should be followed by a thorough rinsing with fresh water.

Hunting For Petoskey Stones

CHARLEVOIX -- Charlevoix's Lake Michigan beaches are a prime hunting ground for the elusive Petoskey stone—the state stone of Michigan. Formed millions of years ago, the stones actually are petrified "colony corals" which lived when northern Michigan was at the bottom of a tropical sea. Although it is named for the city of Petoskey, the stones are plentiful—if you have a sharp eye—many places along the northern Lake Michigan shore. Some excellent stones have been found at Bella Bay, about five miles south of Charlevoix.

PETOSKEY stones may look like this when you find them on the Lake Michigan shore.

POLISHED, the stones make attractive pieces for jewelry and other decorations. Kits are available to hand-polish the stones.

When polished, the stones make beautiful earrings, cufflinks and brooches. Larger stones may be used as paperweights or door stops.

PETOSKEY stones are easiest to spot when they are wet, since moisture brings out the hexagonal (six-sided) pattern of the original coral. An uncut Petoskey stone may sometimes appear as an ordinary rock covered with tiny bumps.

Other stones, particularly those at the water's edge, clearly show the hex lines which are the mark of a true Petoskey specimen.

Beautiful Beaver Awaits You Island Steeped in Lore

ST. JAMES--If you're looking for something different in the way of a vacation retreat, why not try Beaver Island -- America's Emerald Isle?

Located northwest of Charlevoix in the middle of northern Lake Michigan, Beaver Island offers everything an island should--and then some.

PHYSICALLY, Beaver Island is as attractive a chunk of island real estate as you're likely to find in North America. Fourteen miles long and from three to six miles wide, the island is still heavily forested. Visitors are amazed at the growth of the giant hemlocks and birches which line the island's 75 miles of narrow, gravel roads.

The island may be reached either by water or air. The motorship Beaver Islander carries mail, freight, passengers and cars from Charlevoix to St. James, 32 miles distant, on a regular schedule from the middle of April until the end of December. Fifteen-minute air service is available either from the Charlevoix or Harbor Springs airports. The island airport has two runways, one of them 3,500 feet long.

OTHERS choose to visit the island in their private yachts, weather permitting. The island has ample dock facilities in a natural, sheltered harbor at St. James.

Transportation on the island is no problem if you bring your car. Otherwise, cars and motorcycles may be rented at St. James. Some vacationers prefer to enjoy the island scenery from a bicycle seat.

THE ONLY community of the island, St. James stretches along the shores of Paradise Bay for more than a mile. The village proper has two general stores, two bars, three restaurants and numerous motels, hotels, rental cottages, lodges and rooming houses. An excellent restaurant-bar is located one mile south of the village in what was formerly the Holy Cross parsonage.

LIKE MOST islands, Beaver Island has a mystery. Archaeologists are still puzzled as to the origin and the fate of the first "mound builders" who made their home on Beaver Island. Their worship and burial mounds are still to be seen.

Later, the island was inhabited by Chippewa and Ottawa Indians, many of whom still make their home there.

Beautiful Beaver

band of Mormons led by James Jesse Strang moved to the island from Vore, Wisc., in order to practice their religion without interference. Strang, a rural New York lawyer, had himself crowned "King of the Earth", built a Mormon tabernacle and laid out the village of St. James, named after himself.

However King Strang proved to be a dictatorial ruler. He outlawed the use of tea, tobacco and liquor on the island, instructed the women to wear bloomers instead of long skirts and legalized polygamy.

The Irish mainlanders were aghast at his high-handed dictums and eventually Strang's own people turned against him. Following his assassination June 16, 1856, by one of his followers, the Irish moved in, bodily evicting some 2,000 of his followers.

Before long the island was populated entirely by Irish fishermen, whose descendants make up the bulk of the island population today. If you listen to a native Beaver Islander talk, you'll catch a trace of the brogue his ancestors brought over from the Auld Sod.

At one time, the wooded island was visited daily by Great Lakes steamers, since it was a convenient place to stop and pick up firewood for their boilers en route from Chicago to Detroit.

Although the fishing industry is not what it once was, at least one commercial fisherman still operates out of St. James bringing in excellent catches of whitefish.

HOWEVER, the main industry today is tourism. Americans by the thousands have found on Beaver Island the peace and solitude which have

Russian Nobleman Escaped to Beavers

ST. JAMES--Many Beaver Islanders have stories to tell about the late Dr. Feodore Protar, a Russian nobleman who found his Shangri-la on America's Emerald Isle.

The son of a wealthy family, Dr. Protar was sent to Siberia by the Czarist government for his liberal ideas. He managed to escape from Russia in the guise of a priest, making his way to Germany where he spent several years.

IN THE LATTER half of the last century he emigrated to the United States, where he published a German language newspaper in Illinois.

He had no formal medical training, but was fascinated by the healing arts and studied medicine on his own.

ONCE he took a trip aboard a Lake Michigan steamer which visited Beaver Island. It was love at first sight. He later wrote to friends that the island was "the breeding place of whitefish and Galaghers."

Before long, Dr. Protar disposed of his newspaper interests, bought some farm equipment and moved to the island, never to leave again.

However he never farmed. Shortly after he arrived he found a farm family which could make better use of the equipment than he would and gave it to them. Instead, he became the island's only "doctor", treating his patients' aches and pains, stitching their wounds and setting all but vanished from other vacation retreats. Attractive summer cottages have sprung up along the Lake Michigan shore as well as on some of the islands seven inland lakes.

This summer, American Central Land Co. of Lansing has given the tourist industry a big push by subdividing several thousands of acres on the island for resort development.

THE 54-SQUARE mile island still teems with wildlife, including grouse, rabbits, squirrels, ducks, geese, deer, and wild turkeys and the hunting is superb.

Fishing in the Beavers is generally excellent. Three of the islands inland lakes yield game and panfish. The perch run in Paradise Bay each spring and fall is one of the finest on the Great Lakes. Bass and pike fishing in the waters off nearby Garden Island attract many fishermen by motor launch from St. James. Lake Genesareth on Beaver Island has a public fishing site, with a boat launching ramp.

their broken bones. Although his pay was necessarily meager, Dr. Protar never seemed to want for money. Stories are still current on the island that he continued to receive an income from his family estate in Russia during his residency on Beaver Island.

DR. PROTAR's log home still stands, pretty much as it was at the time of his death in 1926. It is now owned by the Beaver Island Historical Society. Pat Bonner, a close friend of Protar's, lives across the road, and will open the door if anyone wants to look around inside.

Nearby is Dr. Protar's tomb, erected by the grateful inhabitants of the island. It consists of a fieldstone enclosure around his grave and a bronze plaque bearing his likeness.

Behind the tomb is a huge boulder upon which Dr. Protar used to sit in a chair and read. It was close to the tracks of a lumber railroad which once ran the length of the island.

Dr. Protar also had another favorite "study" on the island, a clearing in the woods at the foot of Bonner's Bluff, a steep escarpment which drops off to the western shore of the island. The clearing actually was a tiny island in the middle of a flowing spring, reached by rustic bridges.

After his death, a well-meaning islander fenced it off as a memorial to the doctor, but the fence kept out browsing deer as well as intruders.

A-Plant Tours Popular

CHARLEVOIX--One of the prime tourist attractions in the Charlevoix area is Consumer's Power Co.'s Big Rock Point nuclear power plant. Situated five miles northeast of Charlevoix via U.S. 31 on the Lake Michigan, the plant is one of the first in the world to generate electricity by means of nuclear fission.

SINCE the information center at the plant opened in 1961, Consumers has played host to more than 442,000 persons, 62,900 of whom visited the site in 1966 alone. Chuck England, director of the Information Center at the plant, says visitors are welcome from 8 a.m. through 5 p.m. seven days a week during the summer.

ALTHOUGH tours of the atomic reactor itself are not practicable, visitors are welcome to visit many cutaway displays of plant operations and sit in on a lecture-motion picture presentation of how the plant converts atomic energy into electricity for home and industrial use.

The plant uses heat from uranium fuel packs to make steam, which in turn operates a giant turbine to create electricity. The power generated is fed into Consumers network of power lines across Michigan, and is utilized far beyond the immediate Charlevoix area.

THE CITY of Charlevoix is unique, since it draws on power supplied not only by the ultra-modern Big Rock plant, but also from an old hydro-electric plant at Bel-Aire.

England emphasizes that there is absolutely no difference in the electricity generated at the Big Rock Point plant and that of other generating facilities. The only difference is the source of heat.

A FAMILY VACATIONLAND

Life is great in Port St. James on scenic Beaver Island. For fishing, hunting, picnicking, exploring, shooting pictures or delving into the romance of the past, there's just no place like Port St. James. There is swimming, hiking, horseback riding, and an inexhaustible supply of subjects for the camera fan such as scenic spots, wild life, and the quaintness of "Old Ireland" found in no other place in America.

FISHING

Go fishing for big Lake Michigan perch and bass in spring and fall, and enjoy ice-fishing fun in winter. Beaver Island's inland lakes are teeming with smallmouth bass, blue gills and pike. And these fish from the crystal clear waters of Lake Michigan are a gourmet's delight.

HUNTING

Beaver Island is a hunter's paradise with over 1,000 deer inviting archers and riflemen. Ruffed grouse and duck offer sport for the small game hunter. For those hardy individuals who like the chase, there is the excitement of fox, coyote, and rabbit hunting with dogs during the winter months.

BROOK TROUT-GOLF-MUSHROOMS

Fox Lake, one of the most beautiful lakes on the island, provides good trout fishing and produces speckled beauties up to 14 inches in length.

For the golfer there's an intriguing nine-hole golf course that can be more challenging than it appears.

The island, too, is a newly discovered paradise for mushroom hunters. There are hundreds of acres of ideal mushroom country and gathering these delicacies is becoming increasingly popular with our guests on the island.

Medusa Dedication Attracts Thousands

CHARLEVOIX --- Construction of the Medusa Cement Plant here was hailed as a progressive step for northern Michigan by Gov. George Romney and Medusa officials at dedication ceremonies Tuesday morning.

An estimated crowd of 2,000 Charlevoixans turned out for the dedication ceremony and a tour of the plant. Lunch was served the visitors.

Gov. Romney flew to Charlevoix Tuesday morning from Pontiac to take part in the dedication. He was welcomed at Charlevoix by local government officials, members of Medusa management and GOP representatives. Following a brief tour through the city he was taken to the speakers' platform, set up in front of the Medusa office building at South Point.

The Governor was introduced by Worth Loomis, Medusa vice president-administrator, as a possible candidate for the presidency.

"I hear something every time you go somewhere," Romney quipped as he took the microphone. Romney has long been considered a prime GOP candidate in 1968. Romney, while gathering he could well understand the fears of some Charlevoixans when Medusa announced plans to build a cement plant in Charlevoix, making an oblique reference to the smoke problems at the Penn-Dixie plant near Petoskey.

Others, he said, were worried about the esthetics of a cement plant in what is primarily a resort area. He assured the visitors that Medusa has made every effort to make the plant as dust free as possible, spending $2 million on air pollution control alone—one-tenth of the plant's cost.

THE GOVERNOR told the story of the young married couple whose parakeet knew only two words, "Let's neck." The minister had a parakeet whose vocabulary was limited to "Let's pray."

One day they decided to place the two parakeets in a single cage. In hopes the pastor's bird would have an uplifting effect on its partner.

The experiment was short lived. "Let's neck," said the young couple's parakeet.

"That's what I've been praying for," answered the pastor's parakeet.

One for Draft, 33 for Exams in September

CHARLEVOIX --- Only one Charlevoix County man will be drafted in September, but 33 will take pre-induction physical examinations, according to Mrs. Ronald Balch, secretary of the Charlevoix County Selective Service office.

Mrs. Balch said she recently received a copy of the new standards from Col. Arthur A. Holmes, state director of Selective Service.

Mrs. Balch said students must make written request for deferment and obtain college certification of status at the beginning of each school year. Class standing or college test scores will no longer be used as a criteria for student deferment, she added.

Individuals deferred as students will no longer be eligible for later deferment as fathers. They also may be liable for induction later along with any specific age group called for induction by the Defense Department.

GRADUATE STUDENT deferment requirements have been tightened, Mrs. Balch said.

After Oct. 1, only graduate students in the health sciences or in other critical fields designated by the director of Selective Service may be deferred.

Students entering graduate school for the first time by October may be deferred for one year. Students starting their second or later year of graduate study by October may be deferred one year to obtain a master's degree or up to a total of five years of graduate study to earn their doctorates.

All student classifications will be reconsidered by October, Mrs. Balch said. Deferments will be denied to students who do not submit written requests.

DOZENS of Charlevoix's Senior Citizens turned out last Tuesday morning for a day-long excursion to Beaver Island aboard the motorship Beaver Islander.

West State Is Zoned for Offices

CHARLEVOIX --- The west side of State Street from Antrim to Park was zoned for office use Monday night by the City Council.

The action was requested by the Charlevoix State Savings Bank which plans to build a drive-in facility at the corner of Clinton and State on the site of the old library.

For some reason the west side of State Street was not included when the city was zoned more than 20 years ago.

A PARCEL owned by Mrs. George Priest on Clinton Street was included in the bank's request, but was denied the new zoning classification by the Council because of objections raised by adjacent property owners.

Part of the Priest property presently is zoned R-2, with the remaining 18 feet on the east unzoned. Technically, it's "Agricultural."

THE COUNCIL ALSO: --Heard a report submitted by Hospital Administrator Anne Baumgartner that hospital rates will be increased Sept. 1 to meet rising costs. A private room will cost $34.50 a day, semi-private, $29.50; isolation, $32; pediatrics, $28.50; ward, $28.50; nursery, $15; nursery after mother leave, $16; baby isolation, $16.50; and new born in pediatrics, $28.50.

--Received a quit claim deed from the federal government for the fish hatchery property on Pine River Channel.

--Learned that the Sandusky's holding tank will be installed in October while the ship is in drydock.

--Advised for bids on workman's compensation and fleet insurance.

--Discussed purchase of the Baptist Church property next door to the City Hall. The last offer by the church was $25,000.

--Turned over to the Assessment Board the problem of assessing property owners in and adjacent to Hampton Village. Mrs. Edward Vogler objected to City Attorney John Michael's role in the Hampton Village project and Alderman Del Terrill voted against turning the matter over to the Assessment Board. Board members Mrs. Lawrence Fink, Dr. Walter Hoffmann and Ken Staley will be paid $15 a meeting.

--Expressed its interest in water safety at the public beaches.

--Heard a report by Superintendent James Taylor that letters have been sent to three property owners in connection with the city's anti-blight ordinance. Hal Fortrie has been asked to do something with his Colonial Club property. Frank Oleksy has been asked to clean up his Newman Street property and Mrs. M. Lewis has been asked to remove a bus from her Wood Street property.

--Approved bills totaling $32,674.77.

GOV. GEORGE ROMNEY addresses visitors at the Medusa Cement Plant dedication Tuesday. Monday's all-day rain gave way to bright skies and clear weather for the occasion. After the ceremony, visitors toured the plant and were offered refreshments.

Jordan Won't Lease Room to Rifle Club

EAST JORDAN --- City Council Tuesday night denied a request by the Rifle Club to lease the basement of the Community Building as a rifle range and meeting place.

City Attorney Robert Klever told the council he thought a lease to the club would be unfair to city taxpayers since the taxpayers would be supporting the city-owned building yet would be unable to use it.

HE SAID, "The taxpayers would be paying for the building and its maintenance, but would be excluded from using it. I don't think it's right for the city to lease a public building to a private club."

Earlier this year the council considered leasing the property to the club for $1 a year.

ATTORNEY Robert Klever gave his approval to the content and purpose of the new building code presented at the last council meeting. He said some of the legal language would have to be changed.

In other action the council: --Changed the status of the Hillcrest plat from A-1 to R-2.

--Heard a report from County Supervisor Kit Carson saying the Grandview Sewer was completed. In good condition and almost paid for. The council moved to accept the project.

American Mold won two games during the week to post a perfect 5-0 second round record. They also won the first round, and as a result, repeat as the 1967 City Fastball champions. County State Bank gave them a real scare before falling 5-4. Larry Edwards' first inning triple got the Bank boys off to a 3-0 lead. Mold countered with three of their own in the second, paced by Bob Ritt's home run. A first inning run gave Mold a 4-3 lead and it stood that way until the Bank seventh. Then Bruce Krozen singled and, when Gary Craken doubled, the game was tied going into the top of the seventh. Two errors put Mold runners on base and the winning run scored on Ken Balch's long fly ball to right.

AGAINST the Air Force Mold scored early then bunched on for a 5-2 win. Ken Balch and Ken Wogan had the big hits for the winners, collecting two hits each, including a Wojan homer. Both Sonny Wright, losing pitcher, and Nate Boss allowed but four hits, with Mold combining theirs all in the first three innings. Boss had a perfect game after five innings. The Servicemen started going in the late innings, but Mold got them out with the tying run at bat in the seventh.

Young Lake Construction clinched at least a tie for second place with their third win against one loss, by beating Melusa 9-5. Stew Cunningham had three hits and three runs, while Steve Facula had two, a double and triple.

SONNY WRIGHT pitched a neat one hit shutout at Wilson-Mayhew for a 2-0 win. Sampley, Vagstad and Wicks continued to produce the winners' two runs. Glen Mayhew had the only hit for the losers.

CAN HE SEE?

What the future may bring is as much a mystery to the crystal gazer as it is to you. He can't see, he can only guess.

It is to be hoped that your share of good fortune will be great; but it is expected that there will be troubled times, too. For those troublous days of your years you need to have faith, simple faith in God, which is so sustaining and can be the rich possession of all. It isn't acquired, however, by consulting seers or fortune tellers. It is a spiritual possession that grows, and a help toward cultivating it is through participation in the services, activities and work of some church.

With the hope that it will, in some measure, foster and help sustain that which is good in family and community life, this feature is sponsored by the business firms and organizations, whose names appear in the adjoining columns.

Jews Fought for Lives Against Arabs: Rabbi

CHARLEVOIX — Israel won the latest round of hostilities in the Middle East not so much because of the superiority of her fighting machine but because she fought "with her back to the wall," Rabbi Samuel Karpf of Chicago's Sinai congregation believes.

Rabbi Karpf and his family spent several weeks this summer at the Messmore cottages on Lake Charlevoix and the rabbi was invited to give his views on the Arab-Israel situation before the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club. Rabbi Karpf said that if Israel had lost the war, he has no doubt that the Arabs would have made good on their long-standing threat to exterminate the Jewish people. Ever since its formation in 1948, Israel has been under a constant bombardment of threats by the Arab countries to push the Jews into the sea.

He likened the situation to a case of criminal assault, which is almost as great a crime in the eyes of the law as assault and battery.

RABBI KARPf traced the persecution of the Jewish people from the days of Abraham through modern times. He said in the Middle Ages, Spain appeared to be the promised land for the Jews. For 300 years, Jews and Christians lived side by side in harmony. Then came the Spanish Inquisition.

In 1492—the year Columbus discovered America—the Jews in Spain were given an ultimatum: Either convert to Christianity or leave the country.

HE SAID that as late as the 1800's, Russian czars were using Jews as scapegoats for all their problems and that Joseph Stalin's anti-semitism is no secret.

For a while, Germany appeared to be a mecca for Judaism. Jews had lived at peace in what is now Germany since the days of Christ.

Then came Adolf Hitler and the systematic annihilation of six million Jews in the gas chambers.

Israel's military prowess is remarkable, Rabbi Karpf believes since she has only two and a half million people, compared to seven million in the Arab world.

RABBI KARPf admitted that the Arab refugee problem is serious and needs settling. He said the Arabs left the land which is now Israel on the urging of Arab leaders, who promised they could return to the land once the Jews were driven out.

Thousands of refugees still are living in concentration camps along the borders, awaiting the expulsion of the Jews.

RABBI KARPf has several suggestions for bringing permanent peace to the Arab-Israeli world, the most important of which is an end to the arms race—an embargo on arms by both the United States and Russia to the Near East.

Furthermore, he says the refugee problem must be settled and there must be recognition in the Arab world of Israel's right to exist.

He said these goals must come to pass before Israel's ancient dream of turning arms into plowshares is realized.

Mark Crosses had a family reunion at their home on Belvedere Avenue Aug. 13.

Attending were Mr. and Mrs. Richard Selissen of Two Harbors, Minn., and Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Sanford and children, formerly of Jackson, Mich. Mrs. Sanford has spent several months in Charlevoix.

Capt. Mark Cross Sr. of Port Huron, a skipper on foreign ships playing the Great Lakes, also was home for the occasion.

THE SELISSENS picked up their two children who had spent the summer with their grandmother. The Sanfords are on their way to Providence, R.I., where Sanford has been reassigned by the Navy.

Also home for the reunion were Mr. and Mrs. Mark Cross Jr., students at Grand Valley college near Allendale. They have spent the summer in Charlevoix.

New EJ Caretakers 'In Love' with Area

EAST JORDAN --- Clement Morris and his wife, June, are an enthusiastic couple from northwest Detroit who find Northern Michigan people "the friendliest in the world."

The Morris' were hired Aug. 12 from a number of applicants for the job following the death of former caretaker Theo Scott in early July.

THE MORRIS' decided last April to move to Northern Michigan since their three children, Brad, Steven, and Barbara, are grown and they wanted to move to the area.

"When the Tourist Park job opened," Mrs. Morris said, "we thought it was a golden opportunity to make the move. As it turned out it's about the best thing that's happened to us."

Camp Charlevoix Corral Chatter

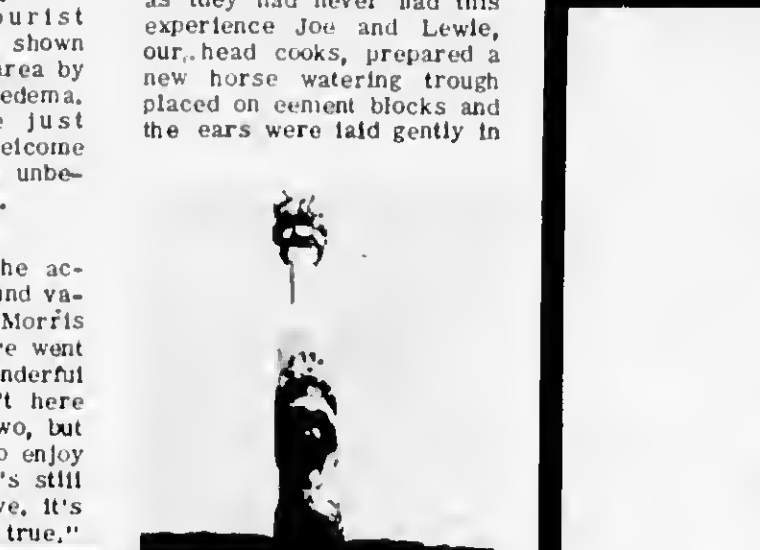

The eighth week of camp, our final week, started off with boys anxious to make accomplishments in their chosen activities so that the star will be added to their certificate.

The Greens were a little "blue" on Monday and right after breakfast the Green-Grey committee plus the losing Green Captains met to set up the Green-Grey banquet on Tuesday night.

The cowboys were busy setting up the rodeo program, and Rodney Doy was busy getting the Indian dancers started on their dances. It is always a pleasure to hear the beat of the tom-tom all morning and all afternoon, as the boys rehearse the dances with today. We always know that the season is drawing to a close when we hear that steady beat of the tom-tom.

Barry Thorne, a very talented counselor, chaired the word "GREY 1967" onto the log in the wall of the clubhouse and it was carried until during the banquet. At six o'clock the boys were ready for the Green-Grey banquet we have ever had. The captains of each side gave their speeches and the high - light was when the Greys sang their name on the log.

WEDNESDAY was a busy day with boys trying to finish their activities. Rodney was busy getting the Indian Dancers ready, and the cowboys busy getting their riders ready. Wednesday night was the last cabin night for the boys and the winners of the cabin clean - up competition were taken into the movies. The winning cabins were: Barry Thorne's boys of Cabin 1.

Our church dinners are having a chill supper this Saturday evening. Serving will be from 7 to 7:30. Movies and slides from Expo '67 will be the evening's entertainment.

Visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Deane last week were Mr. and Mrs. Ed Hammond and three sons of Deane, Ohio. Mr. Hammond was raised in our community and attended our local school.

Mary Jane Cuthbert of Lansing is spending this week with her grandmother, Mrs. Grace Cuthbert.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Meyers returned home Sunday after to pick up their sons, and there were many congratulations to our fine cowboys who turned out some very fine riders among the boys. And our congratulations to the boys who rode, as they did a very fine job.

AT 9 O'CLOCK that night, Rodney Doy led on the fine Indian ceremony and as we had a fine crowd here, it was most impressive. The dancers did a fine job with the Belt Dance, put on by 18 senior boys. The parents remarked on what a beautiful ceremony we had, and it was great having most of our people here in this fine college here.

Saturday morning was a busy one with parents coming

George Cook Recalls Grounding of 'Illinois'

CHARLEVOIX -- At least one Charlevoixan has vivid memories of the grounding of the steamer Illinois south of the pierhead 60 years ago next week.

He is George Cook, 81, of Charlevoix Township, one of the passengers. Cook recalls the incident as it happened last week.

COOK SAYS he was working as a hand on the Ed Whelan farm (presently Lee Sneathen's) in Hayes Township at the time.

It was lovely Sunday morning, and since he had never been aboard one of the big steamers, he decided to take a day-long cruise aboard the Illinois.

He pedaled his bicycle into Charlevoix, left it at Fred Meyers' place and boarded the ship along with hundreds of other Charlevoixans.

Cook says the vessel stopped at Petoskey, Harbor Springs and points north.

ON THE RETURN trip the vessel was nearing the Charlevoix pierhead when a northbound schooner rounded South Point. The skipper of the Illinois tried to make the channel before the schooner, but at the last minute saw it would be impossible. He had two choices: turn the schooner broadside or run aground. He chose the latter.

Unfortunately, a gale had sprung up, and Cook and 600 other passengers were stranded aboard the grounded ship. There was no food except two bags of apples, which were soon gone.

Several tugs came out to assist, but to no avail.

AS EVENING wore on, the Coast Guard rigged up a breeches buoy from the ship to the south pierhead and started moving the passengers one by one.

"I'll never forget one woman they took," Cook recalls. "She must have weighed 180 or 190 pounds. As soon as she got in the chair, she slid down until her legs touched the water. She let out a whoop you could hear all over town."

SINCE it was women and children first, Cook remained aboard the Illinois all night. In the morning he was removed by a Coast Guard cutter, assisted by his cousin, Bert Clark, a Coast Guardsman.

George Cook

"I guess one cousin can help another," he quoted Clark as saying. Once ashore, Cook picked up his bicycle and headed back to Hayes Township, reaching the farm just in time for breakfast. Cook, who is a caretaker at the Belvedere Club, later signed on as a deckhand aboard the Missouri and worked for a while at the paper mill in Petoskey. He and his wife live on Petoskey Avenue, just north of Charlevoix. (See picture on page 13.)

Petoskey Stone Hunt

PETOSKEY STONES, the state stone of Michigan, are a plentiful commodity on the beaches around Charlevoix. And hunting for them furnished many a relaxing afternoon for visitors to the area. The stones actually are "colony corals" many millions of years old. Polished, they make attractive jewelry.

Beautiful Charlevoix County Has Something for Everyone

CHARLEVOIX -- There's something for everyone in Charlevoix County.

Located 270 miles northwest of Detroit, 350 miles northeast of Chicago, 54 miles southwest of Mackinaw City, 181 miles north of Grand Rapids, Charlevoix County lies on the east shore of Lake Michigan in the highlands of Michigan's lower peninsula. It may be reached by U.S. highway 31, which runs through the heart of the city of Charlevoix, by U.S. highway 131, which cuts through the western part of the county, or by State routes 32 and 66 which enter the county from the southeast, merging in the city of East Jordan and continuing along the south shore of Lake Charlevoix into the county seat at Charlevoix.

Historically, Charlevoix County was organized in 1869. It was named for the Jesuit missionary Pierre de Charlevoix, one of the first French explorers to visit and write about northern Lake Michigan.

IN THE SCENERY department alone, Charlevoix County rates second to none in the state. The land rises rapidly from the Lake Michigan shore, with the second highest elevation in Michigan--Mt. Pisgah--lying just south of Thumb Lake in the western part of the county.

This is the rugged wilderness area where elk have been reintroduced to Michigan and are thriving.

THE EASTERN half of the county is dominated by Lake Charlevoix, a 13-mile long body of water with the city of Charlevoix at its eastern extremity and Boyne City at the western end. The city of East Jordan lies at the end of the lake's South Arm, a narrow, picturesque body of water with many beautiful summer homes along its shores.

Other Lake Charlevoix communities include Ironton, where auto ferry service is offered across the South Arm, Horton Bay, famed for its Ernest Hemingway lore, and Advance, home of Top of Michigan Rural Electric plant.

SEPARATED from Lake Michigan by Round Lake (within the city of Charlevoix) and the upper and lower Pine River Channels, Lake Charlevoix is a mecca for boating enthusiasts. There is usually a fair breeze for sailing, without the high seas which sometimes make Lake Michigan precarious for small craft.

Fisherman also find Lake Charlevoix much to their liking. Scrappy rainbow trout are to be found in increasing numbers in her crystal waters, and excellent small mouth bass catches are reported regularly. (Two years ago, an eight-pounder was taken near the C&O railroad bridge just off Charlevoix.)

The village of Ironton is noted for its perch runs, and although the number of perch in the lake is down substantially from what it was a few years ago, there are still some good size yellow-bellies taken summer and winter near Ironton.

During July and August, swimming is perhaps the most popular outdoor sport in the county. Dozens of fine swimming areas are located throughout the county, with three supervised beaches in the city of Charlevoix alone. An increasing number of surfers have found that the windswept Lake Michigan shore is an excellent place to practice their sport.

In addition, there are many fine public and private camping areas in the county, including Young State Park on the Boyne City Road between Charlevoix and Boyne City, Whiting Park on the south shore of the lake and Bells Bay state campground on the Lake Michigan shore four miles south of Charlevoix.

The federal government recently has earmarked $109,850 for the development of 170 new campsites at Young State Park, the money to be matched by the state.

Young State Park offers modern sanitary and shower facilities, and electricity is available. Visitors to Whiting Park and Bells Bay "rough it."

THE CITY of Charlevoix has a year-round population of 2,751, but the figure swells (Continued on Pg. 3)

CHARLEVOIX'S beautiful yacht basin welcomes boaters from around the state. Water and electric power are included in the reasonable daily and weekly rates.

to several times that during the summer. Since before the turn of the century Charlevoix has been a mecca for vacationers from throughout the Midwest. Two private clubs--the Belvedere Club and the Chicago Club--are located on the shores of Round Lake and Lake Charlevoix within city limits. Each boasts dozens of elegant summer homes many of which have been in the same families for generations.

More recently, many excellent motels have erected in the city, offering excellent accommodations for the short-term vacationer and travelers. The city also has a number of fine restaurants which have become famous throughout the state.

CHARLEVOIX County also has become famous in recent years as center of Michigan's ski industry. Four superb ski areas are located in the central part of the county--Boyne Mountain, Thunder Mountain, Walloon Hills and Barn Mountain (formerly Avalanche), all of which afford excellent skiing usually from late November through March. Many skiers also make Charlevoix County their headquarters even when skiing at Boyne Highlands or Nubs Nob, just north of Petoskey.

Ski hills range from bunny slopes where the novice can try his wings to rugged grades which even the expert finds challenging.

IN THE 1960's, two major industrial developments have taken place in Charlevoix County. Consumers Power Co. has erected its first nuclear power plant at Big Rock Point on the Lake Michigan shore five miles northeast of Charlevoix. Medusa Portland Cement Co. of Cleveland expects to complete construction of its $25 million Charlevoix plant this summer. It is located on South Point, across the bay from the city of Charlevoix.

In addition, many light manufacturing industries have found it profitable to locate in Charlevoix County, providing year-round job opportunities for thousands of people.

So welcome to Charlevoix County. Whether you have come north for a day, a week, a summer or a lifetime, you'll find plenty to keep you busy.

VISITORS and natives alike are fascinated by the Pine River Channel bridge which raises several times a day to let ships pass in and out of Charlevoix Harbor. This view was taken west of the channel from the rear deck of the Beaver Islander.

Our Fascinating Bridge

CHARLEVOIX --- No visit to Charlevoix is complete without seeing the bascule bridge over Pine River Channel raise her steel and concrete arms to let a vessel pass in or out of Charlevoix Harbor.

Maintained by the State Highway Department, the bridge is manned 24 hours a day, 12 months a year by a team of three bridge tenders and a relief man.

When in place, the bridge carries U.S. 31 traffic north and south through the city of Charlevoix.

IT IS RAISED whenever a vessel to high for clearance must pass between Round Lake and Lake Michigan. Three blasts of a boat's whistle is the signal that a boat operator wants the bridge opened. The bridge tender responds in kind and sets in motion the gigantic mechanism which lifts the twin portals to let her pass.

THE FIRST STEP in the procedure is the turning on of warning lights and bells at the bridge approaches. Gates are dropped across the highway and the sidewalks and a road barrier raises as if by magic from the pavement.

When this is done, the tender manipulates levers which activate machinery under the street surface which move weights to raise the bridge.

On an average, it takes about three minutes to raise and lower the bridge to let a boat pass. However, the time can vary, depending on the speed of the vessel or how many boats wish to pass through at one time. The bridge has been opened as long as 20 minutes to let a big lake freighter through.

TRAFFIC pileups sometimes occur on each side of the bridge, particularly during the busy summer season.

This is why the State Highway Department recently reiterated its instructions to the tender not to open the bridge if the only object on a boat too high for passage is a collapsible radio antenna. Sometimes in the past, operators of "puddle jumpers" have whistled for the bridge to open, just to let their passengers see the bridge in motion. Fortunately for motorists, the Highway Department has turned thumbs down on such shenanigans. In summer there is sufficient channel traffic to let everyone see the bridge in motion, even if he is in Charlevoix only for an hour or two.

Indian Past Lives Again at Greensky Hill Church

BUILT OF native cedar logs, the Greensky Hill Indian Methodist Church appears today much as it did in 1860 when it was completed.

JAY OLIVER, a member of Greensky Hill Church, stands near ancient twisted maple trees which once marked the site of Indian ceremonials.

CHARLEVOIX - Lovers of Indian lore will be fascinated by a visit to Greensky Hill Methodist Church, located high on a bluff near Susan Lake, northeast of Charlevoix on the old Petoskey Road.

Built of hand-hewn logs, the church was completed in 1860 on the site of an ancient tribal meeting ground.

Nearby stand nine gigantic maple trees in a circle. Their lower limbs were bent outward with thongs when they were saplings as a symbol of peace among Indian tribes in the area.

SERVICES are conducted each Sunday during the summer at 9:30 a.m. by the Rev. Leona Winegarden, pastor of the Charlevoix Methodist Church. The services are conducted in English, with several hymns sung in the Ojibwa language.

The mission church was built by Peter Greensky, an Indian brave who received his Christian training at the Methodist settlement of Bay Mills in the Upper Peninsula.

In 1839, Greensky moved to the Lower Peninsula to take part in a Protestant movement then underway in the Grand Traverse Bay area. Later, Greensky became dissatisfied with the mission and decided to establish a church of his own where he and his followers could worship as they saw fit.

THE FIRST structure was a rude shelter of boughs covered with cedar bark. In 1850, work began on the present church. Although the logs were cut from the surrounding woods, the windows and other hardware had to be transported from Traverse City in canoes, and then carried by hand two miles overland from the Lake Charlevoix shore to the hilltop where the church stands.

The building is 26 by 32 feet and has eight windows. The logs are all notched at the ends to make a snug fit and the crevices have been filled with wood and mud. THE TINY church has had its ups and downs over the years. Sometime back, a parcel of land including the famed Council trees was purchased by an adjoining farmer. However, the church recently has been able to purchase back some of the property it lost, inspite of a membership of less than 25.

Members also have built a meeting house on the grounds, where church socials and banquets are held. Last year, the old wood-burning stove in the church was replaced by an oil space heater.

Another recent project has been the planting of a new circle of Council Trees adjacent to the church.

Visitors to the area will find it interesting to visit the old Greensky Hill Indian cemetery overlooking Susan Lake, named for Peter Greensky's wife. The older graves, all facing East, are marked off with wooden fences and or rude wooden crosses.

Steelhead Trout Back, But Anglers Seek Bass

by Glen Sheppard

Though the return of steelhead trout to Lake Charlevoix and Little Traverse Bay is still the most exciting news on the sport fishing front, scrappy smallmouth bass remain the major target for most anglers.

This spring steelhead fishermen had fabulous luck on the Jordan, Boyne and Bear rivers and in Lake Charlevoix and Little Traverse Bay. Documented catches of fish weighing up to 13 pounds were made.

SUMMERTIME fishing for the savage-fighting steelies is always less than good, however. So in July and August about the only trout caught in the lakes are taken by bass fishermen who just happen to get lucky.

The Lake Charlevoix shoreline is splattered with smallmouth hotspots. The most consistent producers are areas of the South Arm near Iron-ton.

UNDOUBTEDLY the most proven method for taking the plucky smallmouths (and an occasional steelhead) is to troll just off the shore. Troll slow with Mepps spinner, Jig A Do, Rapala, small Flatfish or Daredevil.

Sometimes you'll snag a surly pike as you work your lure around weedbeds.

If it's the kids you want to please, try dunking worms off docks or near weeds for rock bass and perch. (One of '3m is apt to nail a four-pound bass, though. So be prepared to blush.)

IF YOU hanker to try some of Walloon Lake's reknown angling you can rent a boat in the village, or launch your own at several public sites.

Walloon continues to produce some of the biggest bass in northern Lower Michigan.

STREAM fishermen will find the trout fishing slow on the lower end of the Jordan river, guide Ted Kotowich reports. But, he says, some nice catches of browns are coming from the headwaters.

The short section of the Boyne river that is still open to the public is also reported to be producing fine trout fishing.

IF YOUR fancy runs more to worm dunking, there are plenty of small creeks around that harbor trout. You can try Stover, Deer, Monroe, the Bear out of Walloon Lake, and several that feed into the Jordan.

Worm dunkers also have a good time off the Pine River breakwaters and the railroad bridge, where they can sit and soak up the charm of the Charlevoix harbor and luxury yachts.

If you feel more confident fishing small lakes there's no shortage of them in the Charlevoix-Ellsworth area.

THERE IS still a handful of virtually unexploited small lakes known by only a few fishermen. Pike weighing in the 20 pound class and bass that top five pounds come from them.

But to reveal their whereabouts in print would be a violation of an angler's most sacred oath. So dig out a map or buy a native fisherman a drink and find them yourself.

Here's a list, though, of a few of the smaller lakes that are better known and guaranteed to have fish in them: --Lake 26 (Lake Marlon), for pike, bass, panfish.

--Nowland Lake, for pike, IF YOU'RE looking for real fishing adventure journey to Beaver Island. Once in St. James you can rent a small boat to take you into the bays of Garden and Hog Islands. These bays are among the nation's top-ranked smallmouth hotspots.

East Jordan Has Lot to Offer

EAST JORDAN--Located at the tip of the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix, East Jordan offers tourists a multitude of recreational activities and personal services.

Fishing and camera enthusiasts alike find Sportsman's park a favorite haunt. Besides offering anglers a chance to catch perch, bass and trout while relaxing on the Sportsman's Bridge, camera bugs are free to "shoot" any of the wildlife at the park including swans, deer and birds. A picnic area is also available.

ABOUT A MILE from the park on M-66 is the Tourist Park which offers a bathing beach, shuffleboard courts, a picnic area and facilities for nearly 100 campers and trailers. The city maintains an excellent dock for cruisers and small craft, and provides an airport two miles southeast of town.

Tennis courts are located at the school. A canoe trip down the Jordan River through the scenic Jordan Valley offers both relaxation in beautiful surroundings and excellent fishing.

AT THE HEADWATERS of the Jordan River, a federal fish hatchery which is restocking the Great Lakes with lake trout is open to the public.

Ninety three per cent of the people in Charlevoix own their own homes.

Two banks serve Charlevoix, the Charlevoix County State Bank and the Charlevoix State Savings Bank.

Charlevoix has a school enrollment of about 1,300 students, with a faculty of 52. It's million-dollar Junior-Senior High School opened in 1961.

East Jordan has many fine services including a public library, eight churches, an elementary and high school, Grandview Medical Care Facility, marinas, restaurants, stores, cottages, motels, and hotel. Special events include the Snowmobile Rally and Races in February, the Jordan Valley Festival and Lake Charlevoix Outboard Marathon over the Fourth of July, and the Portside Art Fair in early August.

CHARLEVOIX'S annual Waterfront Fair for Artists and Craftsman attracts thousands of people to northern Michigan each summer. This year's fair was held Aug. 12.

Artists Sell Wares at Annual Fair

CHARLEVOIX -- Artists from throughout Michigan and nearby states will converge on Charlevoix Aug. 12 for the 9th annual Waterfront Fair for Artists and Craftsman. The fair was held in East Park, against a backdrop of Round Lake and the yacht basin.

In fact, many artists come to Charlevoix by boat to show their wares.

Exhibitors are allotted space throughout the park to display and sell their wares. IN ADDITION to paintings of all kinds, wood carving, ceramics and sculpture were the bill of fare.

On the park stage, Mr. and Mrs. Nate Cummings of Chicago usually show some of the paintings from their personal collection, which includes paintings by Piccasso, Renoir and Degas, among others.

THE FAIR has become famous among Michigan painters, because many visitors have a penchant for buying. Last summer a sculpture student sold out his entire work. His profits allowed him to continue his studies at the University of Michigan.

The exhibit appeals to professionals too, with many well established artists numbered among the regular exhibitors.

THE FAIR also fills a genuine need in northern Michigan, where museums and art galleries are few and far between. Youngsters and adults are given an opportunity to see original works of art and to chat with their creators.

This year's fair is under the direction of Mrs. Kit Carson.

Camp, Picnic Grounds

Plenty of campgrounds are located in the Charlevoix area.

The largest is Young's State Park located on Lake Charlevoix off the Boyne City Road. Across the lake is Whiting Park, located on the fronton Ferry Road near Advance.

SOUTH of Charlevoix is Bell's Bay park where about 20 rustic campsites are located along the Lake Michigan shore. The campground offers "box toilets," but no electricity is available.

The East Jordan Harbor Trailer and Tourist Park is located on the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix at East Jordan.

Other private campgrounds also are open during the summer.

BOYNE CITY'S Chamber of Commerce is located in this rustic log cabin. Beside the cabin is a billboard advertising Boyne City's Annual Mushroom Festival which draws thousands of persons in early May.

Mormons Put Up 1st Cabins at Boyne

Boyne City's history goes back to 1856 when John Miller, his wife and two sons along with John Dixon sailed across Pine Lake (now Lake Charlevoix) from Charlevoix to settle at North Boyne.

Miller, originally from Ireland, found some vacant cabins formerly occupied by the Mormons who were forced to leave and moved in with his family and Dixon.

MILLER CALLED the area "River Boyne" after a river in Ireland where a decisive battle was fought.

After that it was called Boyne Village until 1904 when it became Boyne City.

BOYNE CITY now has a population of about 3,000 persons with a summer increase of about 2,000. The city's major industries include Boyne Products, Inc., Roble Industrial Courier Products, Howe's Leather Company and Mill's Cabin Mills.

In 1961 a new high school and elementary school was built and the city has 12 churches.

Boyne City has seven city parks including Whiting Park where children's swimming classes are held mornings and afternoons. Young State Park, two miles northwest of the city, features a bathing beach with a life guard on duty, picnic facilities, camp sites, and a park store on its 536 acres.

THE CITY also has four marinas, a new steel bulkhead dock with accommodations for crafts up to 60 feet long, tennis courts, shuffleboard and playground equipment, a nine hole golf course and riding stables.

Wednesday evenings at 8 p.m. band concerts are held at Memorial Park with a dance following the concerts.

Hunting For Petoskey Stones

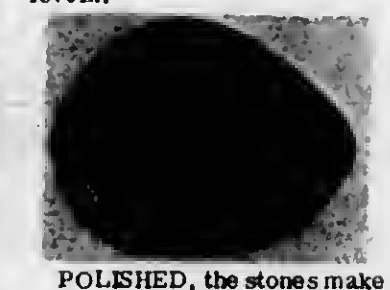

CHARLEVOIX -- Charlevoix's Lake Michigan beaches are a prime hunting ground for the elusive Petoskey stone--the state stone of Michigan. Formed millions of years ago, the stones actually are petrified "colony corals" which lived when northern Michigan was at the bottom of a tropical sea.

Although it is named for the city of Petoskey, the stones are plentiful--if you have a sharp eye--many places along the northern Lake Michigan shore. Some excellent stones have been found at Bells Bay, about five miles south of Charlevoix.

PETOSKEY stones may look like this when you find them on the Lake Michigan shore.

POLISHED, the stones make attractive pieces for jewelry and other decorations. Kits are available to hand-polish the stones.

When polished, the stones make beautiful earrings, cufflinks and brooches. Larger stones may be used as paperweights or door stops.

PETOSKEY stones are easiest to spot when they are wet, since moisture brings out the hexagonal (six-sided) pattern of the original coral. An uncut Petoskey stone may sometimes appear as an ordinary rock covered with tiny bumps.

Other stones, particularly those at the water's edge, clearly show the hex lines which are the mark of a true Petoskey specimen.

Beautiful Beaver Awaits You Island Steeped in Lore

ST. JAMES--If you're looking for something different in the way of a vacation retreat, why not try Beaver Island -- America's Emerald Isle?

Located northwest of Charlevoix in the middle of northern Lake Michigan, Beaver Island offers everything an island should--and then some.

PHYSICALLY, Beaver Island is as attractive a chunk of island real estate as you're likely to find in North America. Fourteen miles long and from three to six miles wide, the island is still heavily forested. Visitors are amazed at the growth of the giant hemlocks and birches which line the island's 75 miles of narrow, gravel roads.

The island may be reached either by water or air. The motorship Beaver Island carries mail, freight, passengers and cars from Charlevoix to St. James, 32 miles distant, on a regular schedule from the middle of April until the end of December. Fifteen-minute air service is available either from the Charlevoix or Harbor Springs airports. The island airport has two runways, one of them 3,500 feet long.

OTHERS choose to visit the island in their private yachts, weather permitting. The island has ample dock facilities in a natural, sheltered harbor at St. James.

Transportation on the island is no problem if you bring your car. Otherwise, cars and motorcycles may be rented at St. James. Some vacationers prefer to enjoy the island scenery from a bicycle seat.

THE ONLY community of the island, St. James stretches along the shores of Paradise Bay for more than a mile. The village proper has two general stores, two bars, three restaurants and numerous motels, hotels, rental cottages, lodges and rooming houses. An excellent restaurant-bar is located one mile south of the village in what was formerly the Holy Cross parsonage.

LIKE MOST islands, Beaver Island has a mystery. Archaeologists are still puzzled as to the origin and the fate of the first "round builders" who made their home on Beaver Island. Their worship and burial mounds are still to be seen.

Later, the island was inhabited by Chippewa and Ottawa Indians, many of whom still make their home there.

IN THE LATE 1840's, a (Continued on Pg. 18)

WILD JUNIPER lines the shore of Font Lake, one of Beaver Island's seven inland lakes.

Shuffleboard Courts Open

Shuffleboard fans will be able to practice their sport during their Charlevoix County vacation.

Courts are located in East Park and at the Lake Michigan Beach in Charlevoix, at East Jordan's Tourist Park and at Veteran's Memorial Park in Boyne City.

This summer, Charlevoix Senior Citizens are taking up the sport, with matches every Wednesday afternoon at East

Park.

EJ Industry

Among East Jordan's industry is Mt. Clemens Metal Products which manufactures metal stampings, Circuit Controls, which produces electric switches and wiring harnesses, East Jordan Iron Works, which makes castings, and heavy and light machine shop finish products, and East Jordan Canning Company, which puts up vegetables and fruits.

band of Mormons led by James Jesse Strang moved to the island from Voree, Wis., in order to practice their religion without interference. Strang, a rural New York lawyer, had himself crowned "King of the Earth", built a Mormon tabernacle and laid out the village of St. James, named after himself.

However King Strang proved to be a dictatorial ruler. He outlawed the use of tea, tobacco and liquor on the island. Instructed the women to wear bloomers instead of long skirts and legalized polygamy.

The Irish mainlanders were aghast at his high-handed dictums and eventually Strang's own people turned against him. Following his assassination June 16, 1856, by one of his followers, the Irish moved in, bodily evicting some 2,000 of his followers.

Before long the island was populated entirely by Irish fishermen, whose descendants make up the bulk of the island population today. If you listen to a native Beaver Islander talk, you'll catch a trace of the brogue his ancestors brought over from the Auld Sod.

At one time, the wooded island was visited daily by Great Lakes steamers, since it was a convenient place to stop and pick up firewood for their boilers en route from Chicago to Detroit.

Although the fishing industry is not what it once was, at least one commercial fisherman still operates out of St. James bringing in excellent catches of whitefish.

HOWEVER, the main industry today is tourism. Americans by the thousands have found on Beaver Island the peace and solitude which have

Russian Nobleman Escaped to Beavers

ST. JAMES--Many Beaver Islanders have stories to tell about the late Dr. Feodore Protar, a Russian nobleman who found his Shangri-la on America's Emerald Isle.

The son of a wealthy family, Dr. Protar was sent to Siberia by the Czarist government for his liberal ideas. He managed to escape from Russia in the guise of a priest, making his way to Germany where he spent several years. IN THE LATTER half of the last century he emigrated to the United States, where he published a German language newspaper in Illinois.

He had no formal medical training, but was fascinated by the healing arts and studied medicine on his own.

ONCE he took a trip aboard a Lake Michigan steamer which visited Beaver Island. It was love at first sight. He later wrote to friends that the island was "the breeding place of whitefish and Galaghers."

Before long, Dr. Protar disposed of his newspaper interests, bought some farm equipment and moved to the island, never to leave again.

However he never farmed. Shortly after he arrived he found a farm family which could make better use of the equipment than he would and gave it to them. Instead, he became the island's only "doctor", treating his patients' aches and pains, stitching their wounds and setting all but vanished from other vacation retreats. Attractive summer cottages have sprung up along the Lake Michigan shore as well as on some of the islands seven inland lakes.

This summer, American Central Land Co. of Lansing has given the tourist industry a big push by subdividing several thousands of acres on the island for resort development.

THE 64-SQUARE mile island still teems with wildlife, including grouse, rabbits, squirrels, ducks, geese, deer, and wild turkeys and the hunting is superb.

Fishing in the Beavers is generally excellent. Three of the islands inland lakes yield game and panfish. The perch run in Paradise Bay each spring and fall is one of the finest on the Great Lakes. Bass and pike fishing in the waters off nearby Garden Island attract many fishermen by motor launch from St. James. Lake Genesareth on Beaver Island has a public fishing site, with a boat launching ramp.

their broken bones.

Although his pay was necessarily meager, Dr. Protar never seemed to want for money. Stories are still current on the island that he continued to receive an income from his family estate in Russia during his residency on Beaver Island.

DR. PROTAR's log home still stands, pretty much as it was at the time of his death in 1926. It is now owned by the Beaver Island Historical Society. Pat Bonner, a close friend of Protar's, lives across the road, and will open the door if anyone wants to look around inside.

Nearby is Dr. Protar's tomb, erected by the grateful inhabitants of the island. It consists of a fieldstone enclosure around his grave and a bronze plaque bearing his likeness.

Behind the tomb is a huge boulder upon which Dr. Protar used to sit in a chair and read. It was close to the tracks of a lumber railroad which once ran the length of the island.

Dr. Protar also had another favorite "study" on the island, a clearing in the woods at the foot of Bonner's Bluff, a steep escarpment which drops off to the western shore of the island. The clearing actually was a tiny island in the middle of a flowing spring, reached by rustic bridges.

After his death, a well-meaning islander fenced it off as a memorial to the doctor, but the fence kept out browsing deer as well as intruders.

Port St. James on Beaver Island

Trails through beautiful, natural, unspoiled forests make hiking or horseback riding a real joy.

Swimming is just one of the happy ways to have fun at Port St. James.

Join the happy people who are visiting this exciting new island development.

A FAMILY VACATIONLAND

Life is great in Port St. James on scenic Beaver Island. For fishing, hunting, picnicking, exploring, shooting pictures or delving into the romance of the past, there's just no place like Port St. James. There is swimming, hiking, horseback riding, and an inexhaustible supply of subjects for the camera: fun such as scenic spots, wild life, and the quaintness of "Old Ireland" found in no other place in America.

Go fishing for big Lake Michigan perch and bass in spring and fall, and enjoy ice-fishing fun in winter. Beaver Island's inland lakes are teeming with smallmouth bass, blue gills and pike. And these fish from the crystal clear waters of Lake Michigan are a gourmet's delight.

Beaver Island is a hunter's paradise with over 1,000 deer inviting archers and riflemen. Ruffed grouse and duck offer sport for the small game hunter. For those hardy individuals who like the chase, there is the excitement of fox, coyote, and rabbit hunting with dogs during the winter months.

Fox Lake, one of the most beautiful lakes on the island, provides good trout fishing and produces speckled beauties up to 14 inches in length.

For the golfer there's an intriguing nine-hole golf course that can be more challenging than it appears.

The island, too, is a newly discovered paradise for mushroom hunters. There are hundreds of acres of ideal mushroom country and gathering these delicacies is becoming increasingly popular with our guests on the island.

Schools Working Out Co-op Class Details

ELLSWORTH --- Students here will be taking advanced math and chemistry in Central Lake this fall, according to Superintendent John Jurgenson.

The two school boards approved the pilot program for the coming year Monday evening. Plans are for Ellsworth students to take the two classes in Central Lake in exchange for Central Lake students taking French in Ellsworth.

Ellsworth is also getting Central Lake's school buses in shape for the fall in return for counseling service at Ellsworth three hours a day. The counselor will be available to both elementary and high school students.

Ellsworth is also planning to send a junior high teacher to Central Lake for one hour a day.

JURGENSON said a survey will be taken the first day of school to determine if Ellsworth students are interested in taking other courses through the exchange program.

He said, "We could have band and chorus here if there's enough interest. Central Lake also has an auto shop and a fine arts program we might be able to work into a schedule."

Transportation problems seemed to be worked out, according to the superintendent.

He said, "Central Lake will hold its classes 30 minutes earlier than Ellsworth."

150 Lots OK'd on Beaver Isle

CHARLEVOIX --- The Charlevoix County Health Department reports that approximately 150 lots in three plans have been approved for sale this summer on Beaver Island. The property is owned by American Central Land Co.

Seventeen of the lots are on Donagan Bay on the western shore of the island. 102 lots are located on the northern shore in the Papewen area and the remainder are in the Port Lake area in the north central part of the island.

To be approved by the Health Department, the lots have to meet certain minimum standards, according to sanitarian Dean Mikulski. Each lot must be at least four feet above ground water, with ample room for an isolated well and sewage disposal.

In all of 1966, only 25 criminal cases were handled by the court.

Gill Net Hearing Sept. 27

CHARLEVOIX --- The Conservation Department has scheduled a hearing in Charlevoix Sept. 27 to listen to arguments for and against its proposed ban on gill netting in Lakes Michigan and Superior.

The hearing will be held in the High School study hall at 8 p.m.

THE BAN on gill netting has been proposed by the Conservation Department to protect recent plantings of lake trout and coho salmon, with an eye toward improving sports fishing in Michigan waters.

Commercial fishermen are almost universally opposed to the proposed restriction, claiming it will put them out of business.

IT WAS not known at press time who will represent the Conservation Department at the meeting.

Other hearings on the proposed ban will be held between Sept. 25 and 29 in Ontonagon, Escanaba, Newberry, Manistee, Muskegon, Benton Harbor, Alpena, Bay City and Detroit.

Arraign Nine in Jail Break

CHARLEVOIX --- Three prisoners pleaded guilty to a charge of attempting to break from the Charlevoix County Jail when they were arraigned before Circuit Judge Charles Brown last week.

Six others pleaded not guilty to the same charge, two of them asking for a jury trial and the services of an attorney.

PLEADING guilty were Dana Leslie Shaler, Alex Cornstalk Jr., and John Edward Gregware. They were referred to the probation department.

Pleading not guilty were Earl Sylvester Gregware, Melvin George Napont, Walter W. Cook, Alfred Frank Gregware, Junior Ernest Pringle and Elmer Allen Keshick.

Keshick and Pringle asked for attorneys and jury trials.

The men are charged with attempting to break from the county jail Aug. 4 by cutting the bars on a window with a hacksaw blade. The attempt was uncovered by Sheriff Philo Sumner.

He said, "We could have band and chorus here if there's enough interest. Central Lake also has an auto shop and a fine arts program we might be able to work into a schedule."

Plan to Ban Gill Nets Angers Fishermen

CHARLEVOIX --- Opposition is mounting among commercial fishermen in northern Michigan against a proposal to limit gill netting in the Great Lakes.

The proposal has been made by the Conservation Department's fish division. Public hearings will be held before the ban is decided upon.

THE BAN has been suggested because many newly planted coho salmon and lake trout are being caught in the whitefish nets set by commercial fishermen.

The fish cannot be taken commercially for sale in Lake Michigan, yet getting caught in a gill net is a virtual death sentence for most of them.

THE CONSERVATION Department is anxious over the survival of the trout and coho, not only to improve sport fishing in Michigan waters but to take care of the alewife population which has grown fantastically in recent years.

The alewives -- a favorite food for both coho and trout -- die off by the billions after they spawn, creating a health and odor problem along miles of Michigan's Great Lakes shoreline.

THIS YEAR in Charlevoix, dead alewives were removed by the truckload from the Lake Michigan beach to make the area suitable for swimming.

In Petoskey, so many alewives washed ashore in July and August that the public beach on Little Traverse Bay was closed.

The Michigan State Chamber of Commerce recently figured that the alewife -- processed for fertilizer and feed -- has a value of one or two cents a pound.

Mediator Due Here Tonight

CHARLEVOIX --- A state mediator will meet with members of the Charlevoix Board of Education and representatives of the Teachers Club tonight in an attempt to arbitrate a $93,000 difference between what the teachers are asking and what the board is willing to give in the way of economic benefits during the 1967-'68 school year.

Agreement to call in a mediator was reached at a deadlocked meeting of the two negotiating teams Monday morning and was reported to the board at a special meeting Monday night.

Darrell Dinwiddie heads up the board's bargaining committee; Leonard Staley is chief negotiator for the teachers.

"WE ARE STILL apart from the teachers request for all economic issues in an aggregate amount of $93,000," Dinwiddie told the board. "Since we are talking about 25 teachers, you can easily figure the size of the problem. In terms of millage, it is the equivalent of 3 1/2 mills."

Following an informational meeting with Charlevoix teachers Monday night, Staley said he hopes state mediator Jerry Ford will be able to bring the two parties closer together.

If the mediation fails, the Board of Education and the teachers may resort to Department of Labor "fact finding." However neither arbitration procedure is binding on the board.

Staley would not comment on what course the teachers might take if the mediation efforts fail to make headway.

ALTHOUGH all the bargaining sessions have been closed to the public, it is understood that the teachers' initial demand was for a starting salary of $7,000 for teachers with bachelor degrees, as recommended by the Michigan Education Association. The teachers reportedly have come down considerably from their original demand.

Dinwiddie said the board has offered the teachers an average income increase for the 1967-'68 school year of 3.26 percent. A second year teacher would receive an increase of 11.8 percent, while one on the 14th step of the salary scale would receive an increase of 6.38 percent.

"It is the feeling of the committee that the offered increases are adequate, generous and within the paying ability of the district," Dinwiddie said.

IN ADDITION to the salary requests, Dinwiddie said the teachers' unresolved issues in the proposed 36-page contract presented by the teachers.

He charged that if the contract had been accepted as presented, the district would have no need for a school board or administrators, "as the practical effect would be that the control of the school would have passed to the teachers' union."

"On non-economic matters your negotiating committee has been working very hard."

WE MUST SEEK THE TRUTH

Constantly in search of the TRUTH the scientist takes nothing for granted. Each "hearsay", each theory, is tested and tried and accepted or discarded on the condition that it proves true or false. The true scientist never jumps to conclusions, consequently you will never hear him proclaiming the self-sufficiency of man—that man needs no spiritual power.

The Church is also a center for the search and dispensation of truth in things other than the material, the things one cannot discern by the physical senses. If each of us would be free we must know the truth and if each of us is active in the work of the church that fits our needs "We Shall Know the Truth and the Truth Shall Make Us Free."

With the hope that it will, in some measure, foster and help sustain that which is good in family and community life, this feature is sponsored by the business firms and organizations whose names appear in the adjoining columns.

TO PROTECT recently planted coho salmon (above) and the lake trout, the state Conservation Department has recommended banning gill nets from the Great Lakes. Most commercial fishermen, including those in Charlevoix, say it would put them out of business.

Proposed Gill Net Ban Draws Fire of Fisheries

Naturally, the state wants to get the best return on the money it has invested in rearing and planting lake trout and coho.

It sees a threat in the commercial gill netters who reportedly are hauling in an increasing number of sports fish. Thus the ban on gill nets has been suggested.

UNDERSTANDABLY the commercial fishermen are up in arms, as would any group of businessmen who see such a direct threat to their livelihoods. Charlevoix's John Cross Sr. and Jake White say such a ban would put them out of business. Both are commercial fishermen.

Cross says that the Conservation Department made a mistake when it planted lake trout in the whitefish beds in northern Lake Michigan. Under such conditions, netting the trout is unavoidable, he maintains.

He also says that if Michigan is the only governmental body to outlaw gill nets, the state will be handling the commercial fishing business over to other states and Canada. Northern restaurant owners have expressed concern over where they will get one of the staples on their menus—whitefish. "If commercial fishermen are limited to the use of pound nets alone,"

"These were some of the problems discussed at a recent meeting of fishermen and lawmakers at Escanaba. Wayne Tody of Lansing, head of the Conservation Department's fish division, came in for particular criticism by the commercial fishermen.

"Tody hates a gill net, he hates commercial fishermen, and if he could he'd put a bounty on us," veteran commercial fisherman George W. Falk of Skanee on Lake Superior is quoted as saying by the Escanaba Daily Press. Falk, a member of the Great Lakes Fisheries Advisory Committee (federal) and the Lake Superior Fisherman's Association, was one of the most vocal of the 25 fishermen attending the meeting.

LAWMAKERS attending were State Sen. Thomas F. Schweigert (R-Petoskey), State Rep. Charles Varnum (D-Manistique), and State Rep. Dominic Jacobetti (D-Negaunee). All three were sympathetic toward the fishermen and promised joint committee hearings before any legislation is passed effecting the state's commercial fishermen. "We should be able to sit down around a table and talk this out," said Schweigert. "I don't think anyone wants to outlaw either the sports or commercial fishing. They are certainly compatible."

VARNUM AGREED that "The Great Lakes are big enough for both commercial and sports fishing" and said that from what he understood of the state's fisheries program "you men are going to be put out of business unless the plans are altered."

"We can't afford that in northern Michigan. We need jobs, we need work, and we need people like you to produce those fish for our tables," he added.

Rep. Jacobetti was critical of the state's policy of limiting the number of commercial fishing permits on Lake Superior, where fishermen say the lake trout are abundant they are eating up the coho the state is planting for sports fishermen.

LAKE SUPERIOR fishermen are limited to the number of lake trout they can take, whereas their counterparts on the Canadian side of the lake are not restricted.

If Michigan is truly interested in protecting the coho, the state would allow Michigan fishermen to take more of them—not less. Falk told the meeting, he said many trout taken recently have had five or six young cohos in their bellies.

ROY JENSEN, executive secretary of Michigan Fish Producers, said further restrictions on commercial fishing in Michigan will only mean "slow death" for the industry.

"If the state is planning to put us out of business they should say so and get the torture over with—and let us die a slow death," Jensensaid. "They should also make arrangements to pay us for our equipment—our docks, our boats and nets and other facilities. That would be the fair thing to do."

Such a proposal already has been made by Gus Scholle of Detroit, a Conservation Department commissioner.

JENSEN POINTED out that commercial fishermen have been helpful and cooperative with the Conservation Department through the years and that they will continue to work for the benefit of the public in harvesting food fish if they are given a chance.

He said the Conservation Department is spending public money on its fish projects and added that any program should help produce food for the people as well as for sport. He said he was against any action which would make the Great Lakes a "fish pond" for hook-and-liners.

land to preserve all management and control prerogatives which should be exercised by the people through their elected representatives. On the non-economic matters, we have been working very hard to preserve the fiscal integrity of the district," Divisio told his colleagues.

THIS MARKS the second year in a row that a state mediator has been called in to help resolve economic differences between the board and the teachers.

After mediation last year conducted by Robert G. Mason, the teachers won a $400 increase in starting salaries, with greater increases for experienced teachers. The beginning salary for a B.A. teacher was increased from $4,000 to $5,300 and the beginning salary of an M.A. teacher from $5,200 to $5,600. The increases totaled $27,052, with an additional $17,867 for new teachers.

The teachers also won a $10 a year health insurance benefit in last year's round of negotiations.

THE SCHOOL BOARD also:

- Voted to proceed with the sale of the former library at Clinton and State streets

EJ Settles, Details Secret

EAST JORDAN --- Negotiating teams representing the school board and teachers have reached a salary agreement for the coming year, according to Superintendent Max Danoch. However details of the agreement will not be made public until both teachers and board members give their approval.

Negotiations began last spring for the two groups and continued through the summer without a settlement. The State Mediation Board was called in two weeks ago and brought about a settlement late Friday night.

Danoch said he couldn't reveal the terms of the agreement until both the teachers and administration give their final approval. He said the teams are expected to contact their respective groups soon, possibly within the week.

Last year B.A. teachers received a starting salary of $5,200 with 15 increments of $200 to a maximum of $7,600. Starting salary for teacher with a master's degree was $5,000 with 12 increments of $211 to a maximum of $8,135.

Sells Boat With One Ad

Boats are moving faster than August winds.

Charles England reports he sold his boat with only one classified ad in the Courier.

If you have a boat to sell, now is the time to do it and the Courier classified page is the place to do it.

SIMPLY DIAL 547-6558 and ask for Milida.

On the other hand, if you're in the market for a good used boat, check the classified page. You might find just the ticket for boating fun.

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY'S LARGEST NEWSPAPER

A Special Supplement Devoted to Medusa Portland Cement Co.'s New $25 Million Charlevoix Plant

Romney Dedicates Nation's Newest Cement Plant

On August 22 Gov. George Romney shattered a champagne bottle on the cement block corner of the Medusa Portland Cement Co.'s administration building at its new plant in Charlevoix to dedicate "The nation's most advanced cement plant."

The sprawling $25 million plant on South Point, just outside Charlevoix's scenic Lake Michigan harbor, opened a new era for Charlevoix, bringing it its first heavy industry.

The plant is scheduled to produce three-quarter million tons of gray cement annually. It is said to have the finest air pollution control equipment in any cement plant in the world.

The highly automated plant has two interconnected computers in a control control building which will oversee operations from the quarry to storage of the finished cement. It is described as a "push-button plant."

Expected to go into full operation within days after its dedication, construction of the plant started in the fall of 1965. Medusa, however, has owned most of the property where the plant and quarry are located since 1919.

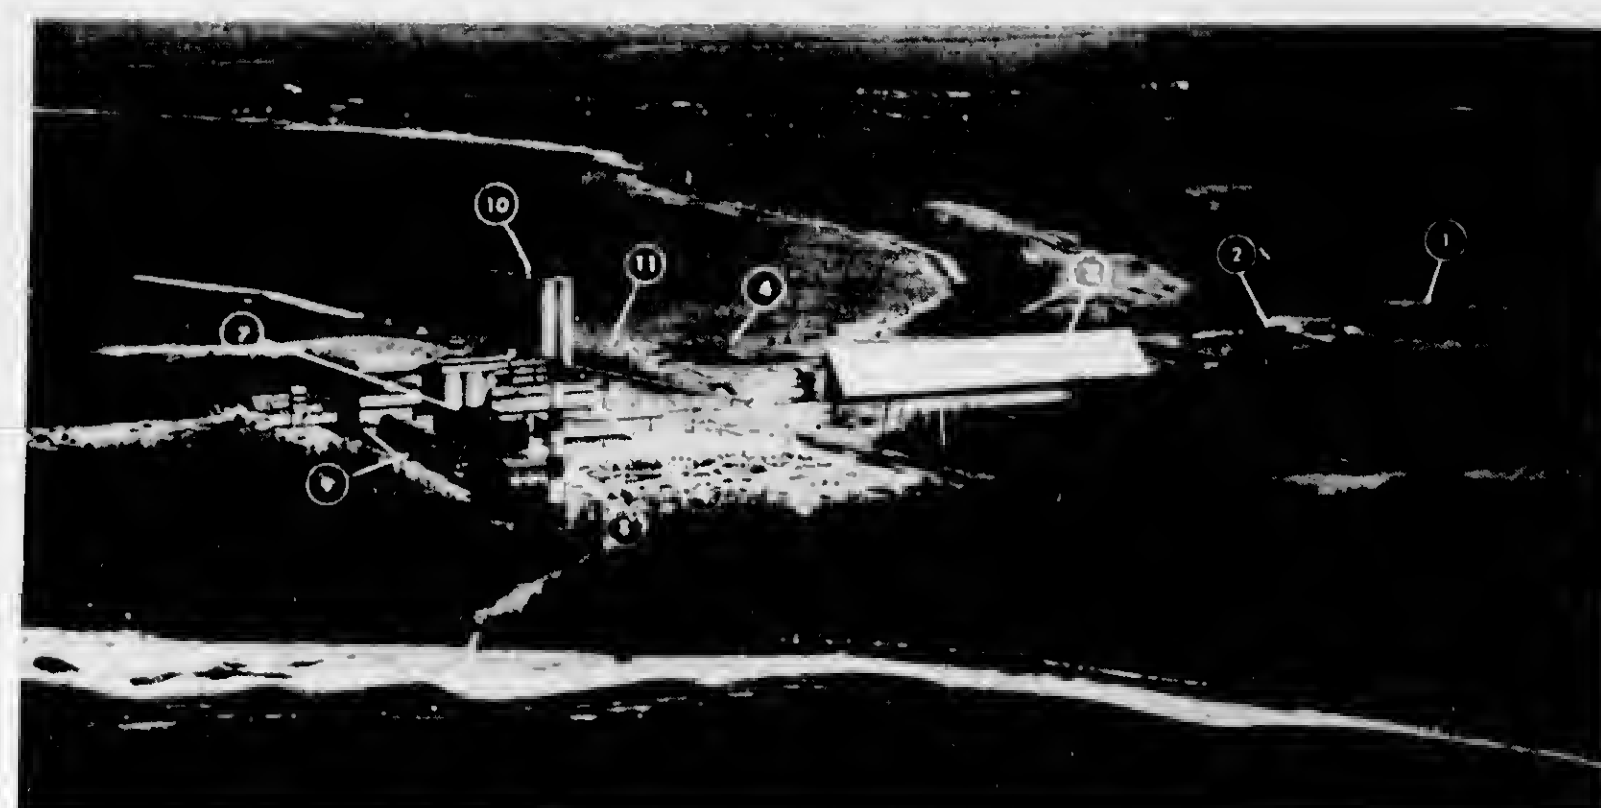

The approximately 900 acres the company owns surrounding the plant, is estimated to have enough limestone to sustain operations for up to 100 years.

Approximately 90 men are employed at the plant, which will have an estimated annual payroll of $700,000.

ON THE DEDICATION platform behind Gov. George Romney at ceremonies opening the Charlevoix Medusa Portland Cement Co. plant are, from left, Charlevoix County Board of Supervisors Chairman Lee Sneathen Jr., United Cement, Lime and Gypsum Workers International Union Local 480 President Henry D. Borths, Medusa President Robert W. Fort, Rev. Hugh C. White Jr., Charlevoix Township Supervisor Clarence Rabach, Charlevoix Mayor William Fochtman, Medusa Board Chairman Ellery Sedgwick Jr., and Medusa Vice President Worth Loomis.

Here's How Medusa Makes its Cement

Medusa's $25 million-plus Charlevoix plant was conceived, designed and constructed to be the industry's leader in all respects.

It will produce four million barrels (three-quarter million tons) of gray cement a year by means of the most sophisticated technology available in the cement industry.

The product is portland cement, the key ingredient in concrete. Twice as much concrete is said to be used in the United States each year as all other structural materials combined—including wood, steel, brick, tile, aluminum and building glass.

The making of portland cement at the Charlevoix plant begins in the quarry, located on the property. Limestone is blasted from its age-old resting place in the quarry and trucked to the primary crusher.

There the quarried rock is dumped into a gyratory crusher, where a steel cone in the center of the crusher presses it against the outside steel walls, reducing it to particles no bigger than a softball.

The crushed material then moves by belt conveyor to the secondary crusher, where it is further reduced in size and passed through the screen station. Fragments of rock larger than 1½ inches across can't pass through the screen and are returned for more crushing.

The two crushers process nearly 700 tons of limestone a day—1.75 million tons of rock a year!

The crushed limestone and shale are then carried to the covered raw material storage building by belt conveyor and dumped in piles.

The 150-foot wide storage building is an A-frame structure, longer than two football fields. It also houses shale, sand, iron ore and gypsum—basic cement ingredients. All raw materials are blended together in the proper proportions and carried by conveyor to the raw materials grinding department.

There the material is fed into a rod-pul mill—a 12-foot diameter, 49-foot long steel drum. It has two compartments, one containing loose, heavy metal rods and another containing steel balls. The drum rotates and tumbles the rods and balls, which grind the rock to a fine consistency.

Water is added during the grinding to produce a thin mud, called slurry. The slurry, about a third of which is water, is discharged from the rod mill and pumped to either of two large tanks for blending and storage.

These processes have only one purpose: to prepare and combine the raw materials for "burning" in the giant kiln—the key process in making cement. The kiln is 18½ feet in diameter at each end, 17 feet in the center and 580 feet long. It's longer than a 45-story building is tall. The kiln is made of steel and lined with firebrick. It rotates at the rate of about one turn a minute, riding on six pairs of huge rollers spaced along its length. It slopes gradually from its intake to discharge ends.

The slurry is fed into the high end of the kiln. As the kiln revolves, the raw materials roll and slide toward the lower end, gradually becoming exposed to more and more heat.

During its four-hour trip through the kiln, the slurry is first dried, then heated and finally chemically combined to produce cement "clinker." The temperature in the kiln approaches 3,000 degrees Fahrenheit—nearly one-third the temperature of the sun's surface. Fine powdered coal is used to produce this tremendous heat.

The clinker that comes out of the kiln appears in the form of round, hard, marble-sized balls, harder than the rock from which they are formed.

The carbon dioxide and other gaseous by products from the kiln operation are processed through an electrostatic precipitator before they are released through the 220-foot smoke stack.

The precipitator, 60 by 77 feet wide and 64 feet high, removes dust and harmful elements from the gases at an efficiency that has been estimated at more than 99 percent. The precipitator and allied equipment is said to have cost $1.2 million.

After the marble-sized clinker comes out of the kiln and is cooled, a small amount of gypsum is added to regulate the amount of time it takes concrete to harden.

Then the clinker goes into a 13-foot wide by 41-foot long clinker grinding mill and is ground to a powder finer than flour or face powder; so fine that it will pass through a sieve with 40,000 openings to the inch—a sieve that will hold water.

This powder is the finished product—Medusa cement from Charlevoix.

The cement is stored in the 12 mammoth storage silos which loom above the horizon beside the boat slip. The silos are 180-foot high and will hold 250,000 barrels of cement.

The entire manufacturing process is carefully regulated to make certain the product meets Medusa's rigid standards. Chemical tests are continually run to assure this high quality.

The cement from the silos is then loaded aboard the company's ship—the S. S. Medusa Challenger—which can unload 8,000 barrels an hour—the fastest on the Great Lakes and more than twice the average unloading rate.

THE A-FRAME BUILDING, is for raw materials storage. The conveyor carries limestone, shale, sand, iron ore and gypsum -- the basic ingredients of cement -- to the grinding building, where it is thoroughly ground and mixed with water in rotating drums.

Medusa Chief Tells

Why Charlevoix Picked

(NOTE: Ellery Sedgwick Jr., Medusa board chairman, wrote this article for the Summer 1965 company magazine.)

By ELLERY SEDGWICK, JR.

AMONG THE MANY QUESTIONS that arise in connection with a project the size of our proposed Charlevoix Plant are two that I think deserve special attention:

—Why, in the face of over-capacity and intense competition in the cement industry, is Medusa spending nearly $25 million to build a new large plant, and,

—What will this plant do to the quiet, pleasant resort community of Charlevoix?

Both are good questions and both can be answered in an affirmative fashion.

In the first place, competition in the industry, rather than serving as a deterrent to the Charlevoix Plant, actually is one of the prime factors behind the decision to proceed. As we point out elsewhere in this issue, we were faced with many unalterable economic facts in connection with our Manitowish Plant, which would require almost complete rebuilding if it were to remain competitive over the long pull.

We explored every avenue in an attempt to remain in the Manitowish area, but there was no feasible way to do so. The more we studied the situation the more apparent it became that any new manufacturing plant we built would have to be located very near its major source of raw materials. Further, a new plant would require more acreage than was available in Manitowish.

So, the examination of sites narrowed to the eastern shore of Lake Michigan in general and then to Charlevoix in particular. It is there that all the desirable economic factors come together—including an ample supply of raw materials and a site for a loading dock.

In short, it is in Charlevoix that we can achieve maximum efficiency in our plant and maximum usefulness of people in serving all the important markets around Lake Michigan.

In connection with the second question, it is perfectly natural that there would be a certain amount of apprehension among Charlevoix residents regarding the effect of a large cement plant on their community.

We sincerely believe that these apprehensions are unfounded. The very efficiencies that make a plant competitive also contribute to its cleanliness and its appearance in general. The cement plant of today bears no resemblance to the plants of the past, which, it must be admitted, were something less than clean and attractive.

From the beginning of our studies we have given consideration to our relations with the community of Charlevoix and have built into our plans many technological innovations aimed at good neighborliness.

We will retain a substantial number of trees on the site and will provide an attractive landscaping program for the premises. We will install the latest and best pollution control equipment, including a dust recovery system that will have an efficiency of well over 99 percent.

Few of us welcome change, particularly when the effects are difficult to foresee, but I want to assure our new neighbors that we will be good corporate citizens and are determined to be an asset to the community.

We expect that the new plant will not only be good for the economy of the Charlevoix area but also will be a major factor for Medusa as we grow with the nation we are helping to build.

Medusa Bought Plant Site From Pioneer Families in 1936

The State of Michigan gave up its claim to the South Point property where the new $25 million Medusa Portland Cement plant is located 101 years ago. After a search of his files, Charlevoix county Register of Deeds Grover Genett finds the State sold the property to Walter C. Bacon and Reuben Goodrich on June 21, 1866.

Six years later, on Oct. 5, 1872, Bacon sold his half interest to Anos Fox, H. O. Rose and A. Butters.

The next summer, July 23, 1873, Goodrich sold his half interest to Fox, Rose and Butters.

Butters sold his interest to Ellis Fox on Sept. 15, 1896. She sold her interest to Llewellyn S. See in July of 1902. And one year later George H. VanPelt bought an interest.

During the next few years interest in the property was involved in numerous fractional divisions among heirs of the Nichols, See and Carnsey families.

In 1926 the many heirs of the three pioneer families agreed to have Charles H. Latimer sell the property.

On July 29, 1929 he sold it to the Newway Portland Cement Co.

Medusa bought the property on Dec.

24, 1936.

Genett did not attempt to trace the ownership history of the hundreds of other acres Medusa owns near South Point. His research was concerned only with the property on which the plant is primarily located.

Medusa bought its first interest in the nearly 1,800 acres it owns around South Point in 1919 from the old Charlevoix Rock Products Co., which was located west of the plant site, near Birch Hills.

Computer and Push-Buttons Control Plant's Operation

Medusa's Charlevoix plant houses the cement industry's most advanced computer system, the first in the industry to use direct digital control.

The computer and supporting electronic instrumentation controls the plant's complete operation—from the quarry to the storage of the finished cement in silos for shipment.

All of this is done in a control room, where dials, lights, needles and buzzers tell operators what's going on throughout the massive complex on South Point.

The PCP-58 multiple computer was installed by the Foxboro Company of Foxboro, Massachusetts.

Two computers and supporting electronic instrumentation control raw material blending, raw mill, kiln, cooler and finish mills of the four-million-barrel plant. An X-ray analyzer controls raw materials blending.

"The computers are set up in a 'master' and 'slave' arrangement, so to speak," explains George F. MacDonald, Medusa electrical engineer who worked closely with Foxboro on the project.

"The 'slave' contains the direct digital control programs. Once each second, scans about 150 signals and adjusts the approximately 50 valves, motors and dampers controlling the plant.

"The 'master' computer supervises the process and calculates operating set points used by the 'slave.' Furthermore, should the 'slave' fail temporarily, the 'master' will stop its own specific operations to take over the direct digital control without interruption.

"Each computer has a core memory of 12,000 words. A disc memory is also included with a capacity of 400,000 words for storage of programs and data which are not in continuous use."

The system results in better control, economy and protection, MacDonald says, by closely regulating temperatures, pressures, material feed rates, liquid flow rates, slurry density, equipment speeds and other important variables in the kiln and grinding operations.

"Information documented by the computers enables us to analyze situations which were impossible to study previously because a continuous record of accurate data was not obtainable," according to MacDonald.

Primitive People Found Forerunner of Cement

IT ALL PROBABLY BEGAN in the dim recesses of pre-historic times, during the period when nomadic hunters were learning how to till the soil and were beginning to settle down in permanent habitations.

Maybe it came about when some householder, piling stones on top of one another to make a wall, neglected to clean all the mud off his stones and later noted that the dried mud had become a crude bonding agent. Whether he was hailed as the Edison of the day, or merely as a sloppy fellow, the use of mortar between blocks of stone predates recorded history and has been used in one form or another by virtually every civilization.

C. F. Clausen, former director of the Portland Cement Association's manufacturing Process Department said, "It is commonly assumed that lime was first burned accidentally when a chunk of limestone got into a fire in a cave of prehistoric man, was accidentally made wet, slaked to a putty, and to everybody's surprise turned hard again after some time."

The Assyrians and Babylonians mortared their masonry with clay and the Egyptians cemented together the huge blocks of stone that form the pyramids, using lime and gypsum as the mortar material. The Greeks, and later the Romans, made refinements both in the product and the technique of applying it, but progress over the centuries came at a painfully slow pace.

Says Mr. Clausen, "Perhaps more than 9,000 years ago the burning of lime in crude pot kilns became an art. There is some evidence that clay was added to lime mortar to make it 'hydraulic' as far back as 2500 B.C.; it is known that the Phoenicians in 700 B.C., and the Roman historian, Vitruvius, describes the use of Roman cement or hard-burned lime in the year 50 B.C."

However, it wasn't until the middle 1700's that the foundation of the modern cement industry began to take shape. Britain had established herself as the ruler of the seas and it was in connection with maritime matters that the forerunner of modern cement was developed. The Eddystone Rocks, off the coast of Cornwall, were a serious navigational peril and a series of wooden lighthouses had been erected on the site to warn ship captains of impending danger. However, the wooden structures could not withstand the ceaseless pounding of the sea.

Finally in 1756, the exasperated Admiralty commissioned John Smeaton to study the problem. This early engineer observed that the rocks were submerged at high tide; therefore, to build a masonry structure it would be necessary to produce a cement that would set under water. Smeaton knew that the Romans had made such a cement by mixing volcanic ash with lime. Working from this base, he discovered that limestone containing a relatively high clay content brought the desired results. The famed Eddystone Lighthouse that Smeaton built more than 200 years ago survived for 126 years before it was replaced by a higher tower.

Among historians who have studied the cement

Medusa Pioneered Many New Industry Processes

Industry there remains unanswered the question of who actually invented portland cement. Joseph Aspdin of England is generally recognized as the father of portland cement, and is often given credit for so naming it. However, others were apparently engaged in similar research at about the same time. Aspdin patented his product in 1824 and other English and European manufacturers soon entered the field.

On this side of the Atlantic, Americans of that period were using so-called natural cement, which unlike portland cement, is not uniform and does not require precise manufacturing techniques. Rock formations from which natural cement could be produced were first discovered in 1818 by Canas White, engineer on the Erie Canal.

Although natural cement proved suitable for some heavy construction such as locks and dams, it failed to approach the quality of portland cement, which was first imported to this country in 1868.

Shortly thereafter, David O. Saylor began manufacturing portland cement at a plant in Coplay, Pennsylvania. The early history of the industry here shows consumer skepticism of the quality of American-made cement. The notion that the European product was superior persisted until 1890 when a newly enacted tariff boosted foreign prices considerably higher than domestic rates.

One of the first companies to follow Saylor's was the Wampum Cement and Lime Company, Limited, manufacturer of Shinn Brothers Portland Cement, later known as Centennial Portland Cement. When Medusa purchased the Wampum property in 1929, it was named the Crescent Portland Cement Company and had been in business continuously since 1874. Wampum, where Medusa has rebuilt its plant in recent years, is therefore the site of one of the nation's oldest cement manufacturing operations.

The past for Medusa actually dates to 1892. In that year, the three Newberry brothers, who were well-qualified for the cement business, founded the Sandusky Cement Company using Medusa as the trade name. Two were scientists, while the third was a lawyer. Spencer Newberry, the oldest, was a professor of inorganic chemistry at Cornell University. William was assistant professor under Spencer, while Arthur was the attorney.

They located their plant at Bay Bridge, Ohio, a good source for needed raw materials. In 1893, shipments totalled 5,327 barrels. Three years later, annual production had reached nearly 72,000 barrels. Research by Spencer and William Newberry resulted in the first practical arithmetical formula for proportioning the constituents of a sound commercial portland cement, thus advancing the work of French chemist Le Chatelier.

As an example of recent technological breakthroughs, two key developments in the last year stand out. Medusa has recently become a major domestic manufacturer of colored mortar.

Medusa is also participating in exciting new developments in the field of expansive cement as a partner in the Chemically Prestressed Concrete Corporation. Shrinkage, a problem which has always been present in concrete, is now being offset by the addition of a compound which expands as the concrete hardens and sets. Research at Medusa facilities promises new innovations in the future.

Today, the industry with its different types of products, ranks as one of the most powerful factors in our economy. As in olden days it is used chiefly as a building material, although an ancient builder would be confounded by today's product and its varied uses. After many centuries, the true potential of this strong, architecturally flexible material is coming to be realized.

Schools to Get Up to $200,000 a Year from Medusa

Medusa's plant is slated to become the largest single contributor of school taxes in the Charlevoix School District. Based on statements from the company, the plant cost more than $20 million, Medusa will pay more than $300,000 in local property taxes. Of this, approximately two-thirds will go to the schools.

As required by state law, property is taxed at 50 percent of its estimated true cash value. Meaning Medusa should go on the tax roll for approximately $12.5 million. This full amount, however, will not go on the tax roll until next year.

The only other area taxpayer anywhere near this valuation is Big Rock nuclear plant, with an assessed taxable valuation of $7.2 million. (Big Rock's valuation may go up next year.)

Probably the next biggest school district taxpayer is the Belvedere Club, which has an assessed valuation of $625,450.

American Mold has a taxable valuation of $33,000. Medusa has been paying school and other property taxes here since 1913, when its predecessor, Newberry Portland Cement Co., purchased the old Charlevoix Rock Products Co.

From 1922 to 1964, Medusa files reveal, the company paid $87,392 in taxes. During this period it had no employees living in the area to use the services and schools. Its taxes helped pay for, in addition, the company's records show it paid Charlevoix township nearly $5,000 for upkeep of the South Pt. Point Rd. from 1932 to 1964.

Interestingly, the company's property taxes were higher from 1922 to 1931 than they were in 1964, though the same basic property was involved.

In 1922 Medusa paid $2,607 in property taxes. In 1929 it paid $3,795.

But in 1964, before development of the plant started, the company paid $3,378 in property taxes.

Taxes on the property hit their all-time low in 1950, when the total bill was only $778.

LOOKING DOWN THE kiln at Medusa's South Point plant you see the electrostatic precipitator on the far left. In the center are the slurry tanks, where the raw materials and water are mixed before entering the kiln where they are cooked into clinker.

New Plant Boon to Navigation for Boats

The high-rising smokestacks at Medusa's South Point plant have proven unexpected bonus to boaters. The 230 foot high smokestack and 300 foot high silos can be seen from as far as 30 miles out in Lake Michigan, and provide the first daytime and nighttime beacon seen by boaters coming into Charlevoix.

Union Organized

The approximately 70 hourly workers at the Medusa plant are members of the United Cement, Lime and Gypsum Workers International Union. The union and the company have already negotiated a first contract, office manager, Clement J. Wagner reports. Henry D. Burris is president of the Charlevoix Local 580, which represents Charlevoix plant employees. According to Wagner, the Charlevoix contract is comparable to agreements the union has at other cement plants.

from Beaver Island and other points. This can also be spotted from Fort St. Ignace, Lake Charlevoix, helping to pinpoint the direction of Charlevoix at night.

During the day the great bulk of the silos is generally seen by boaters in Lake Michigan before the stack, though the stack is 600 feet higher.

Both the stack and silos are well lighted, making excellent night navigation aids. By picking up the stack lights from Big Rock Point nuclear plant and Medusa, a boater can easily find his way in the night.

90 Men Will Make $700,000

James V. Dalley, manager of Medusa's new plant, reports approximately 90 persons are on the payroll.

According to Dalley the annual payroll will be around $700,000. Of the 90 employees, 40 came from the company's plant at Manitowac. The rest were hired from the area.

Dalley said Medusa had more than 1,400 applications for jobs at the Charlevoix plant. More than a 1,000 of them came from the area. He said no seasonal layoffs are now anticipated.

Fish Hideout?

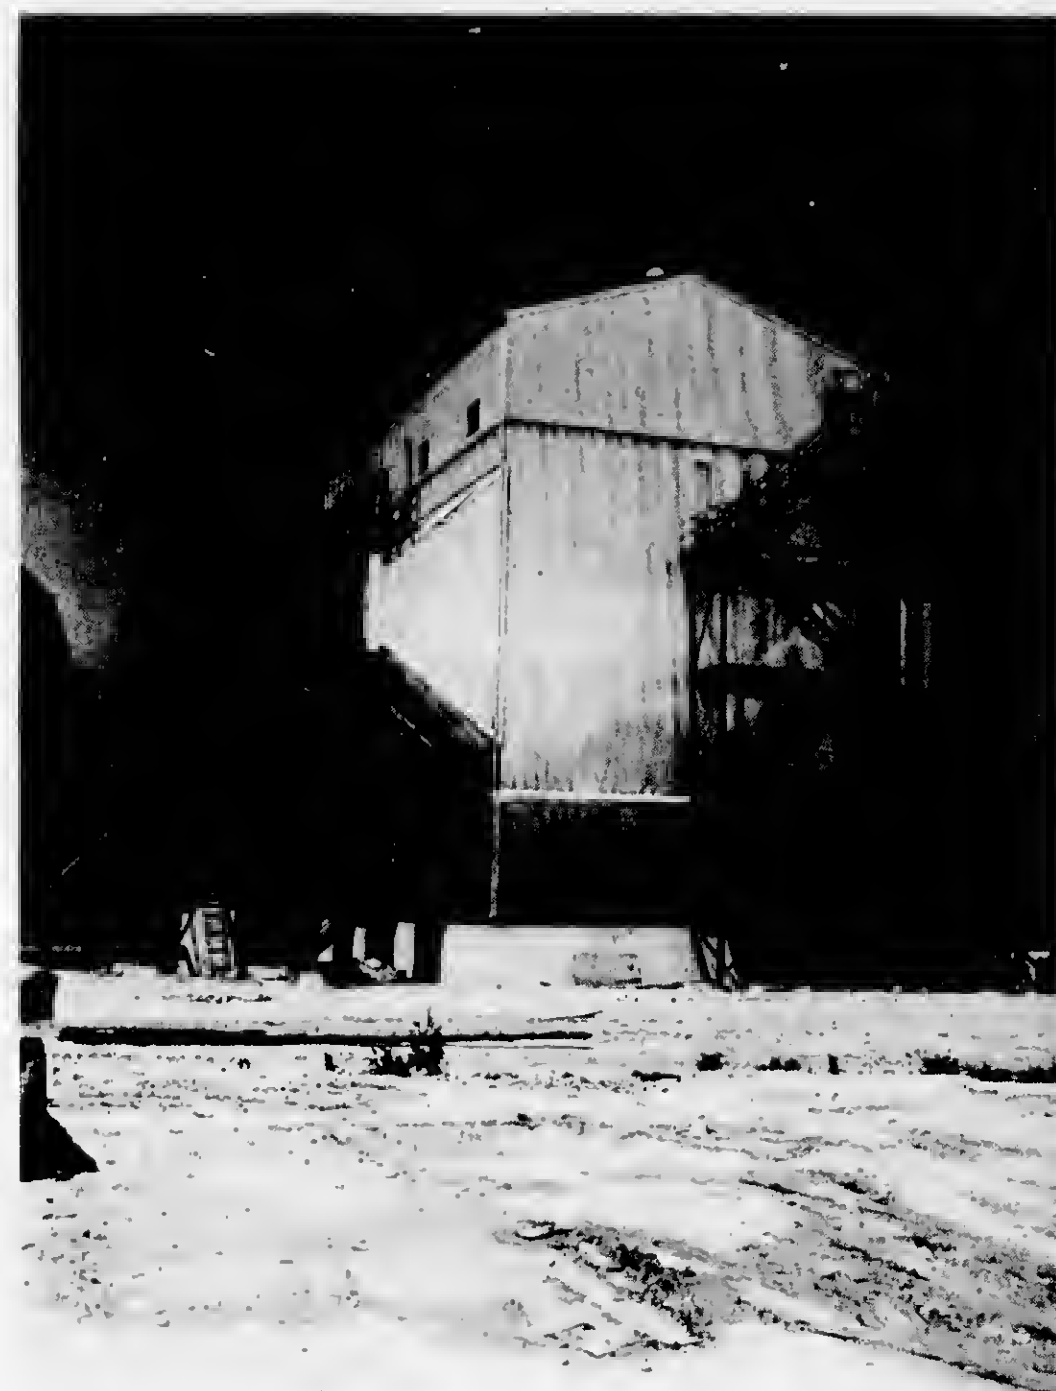

There has been considerable speculation that the deeply dredged slip at the Medusa cement plant will develop into a first class fishing hole.

Though no confirmation has yet come from local fishermen, many have predicted fishing near the end of the slip will produce bass and rock bass.

THOUGH A TEE-TOTALER himself, Gov. George Romney seems to have enjoyed smashing the bottle of champagne to dedicate Medusa's Charlevoix plant. He's still holding the limp remains of the bottle as he cracks a big grin here.

$1.2 Million To Control Air Pollution

COMMUNITY insistence that Medusa's plant leave Charlevoix's air unpolluted resulted in installation of this $1.2 million unit.

The silver colored center unit is the electrostatic precipitator. The black units are the dust collectors that gather impurities.

There are reported to be another 24 dust collectors throughout the plant.

Company officials have promised Charlevoixians that this equipment will eliminate more than 99 percent of potential air pollution.

New Ship to Carry Cement From Charlevoix

"The most efficient and modern cement carrier afloat," is how Medusa described its ship, the Medusa Challenger, when Irene W. Sedwick, daughter of board chairman Henry Sedwick Jr., christened the carrier on June 27 in Cleveland.

The Challenger was constructed by Medusa to carry cement from its new Charlevoix plant to Milwaukee, Manitowish and Detroit.

The 550-foot Challenger, completely modernized at the Manitowish shipbuilding, Inc., yard in Manitowish, has the most contemporary ideas in marine engineering built into her hull, the company reports.

A crew of 26 men, most of them former crewmen on Penn-Elk's Galster. The skipper of the big carrier is Morgan Hesch.

This Challenger reportedly will make about 14 miles per hour, loaded, and up to 18, empty.

A 40-foot air slide conveyor boom feeds cement into a hopper on the pier, from which it is loaded mechanically into storage silos. The entire system is enclosed and protected by dust collectors.

The Challenger is able to load a capacity cargo of 67,000 barrels in about three hours, and discharge it in just over eight. That's enough cement to build a two-lane concrete highway over ten miles long, or to manufacture 6,700,000 concrete blocks. The ship will make more than 100 trips a season and haul 6,000,000 barrels of cement annually in her eight holds.

The Challenger's propeller is 14'3" high and weighs 13,000 lbs.—more than six automobiles. Her other new installations include a bow thruster for safer, quicker steering in compact areas; hopper air slides in the cargo hold; oil-fired boilers; a conveyor belt in the tunnel; a vertical bucket elevator; and a boom air slide on the star deck.

The Challenger's stack is a dark blue, with a band of white in the middle; it carries a band of Medusa, the company insignia. Her hull is a lighter blue and her trim is white.

The ship that now bears the Medusa flag was built 60 years ago in Detroit by the Great Lakes Engineering Works. She was originally christened the Wm. P. Snyder, later renamed the Ellen Hoyt II, and became the Alex D. Chisholm in the early 1950s. The 12,000-ton ore carrier was previously used to ship limestone, iron ore and coal on the Great Lakes.

When Medusa bought the vessel from the Interlake Steamship Company, she was in excellent condition, having been in active service until two years before the purchase. In 1950 she had been repowered and new boilers were installed, lengthening her life.

The Challenger passed her sea trials in April and has been hauling cement from Petoskey, Mich., since May, as she will continue to do until the Charlevoix plant opens.

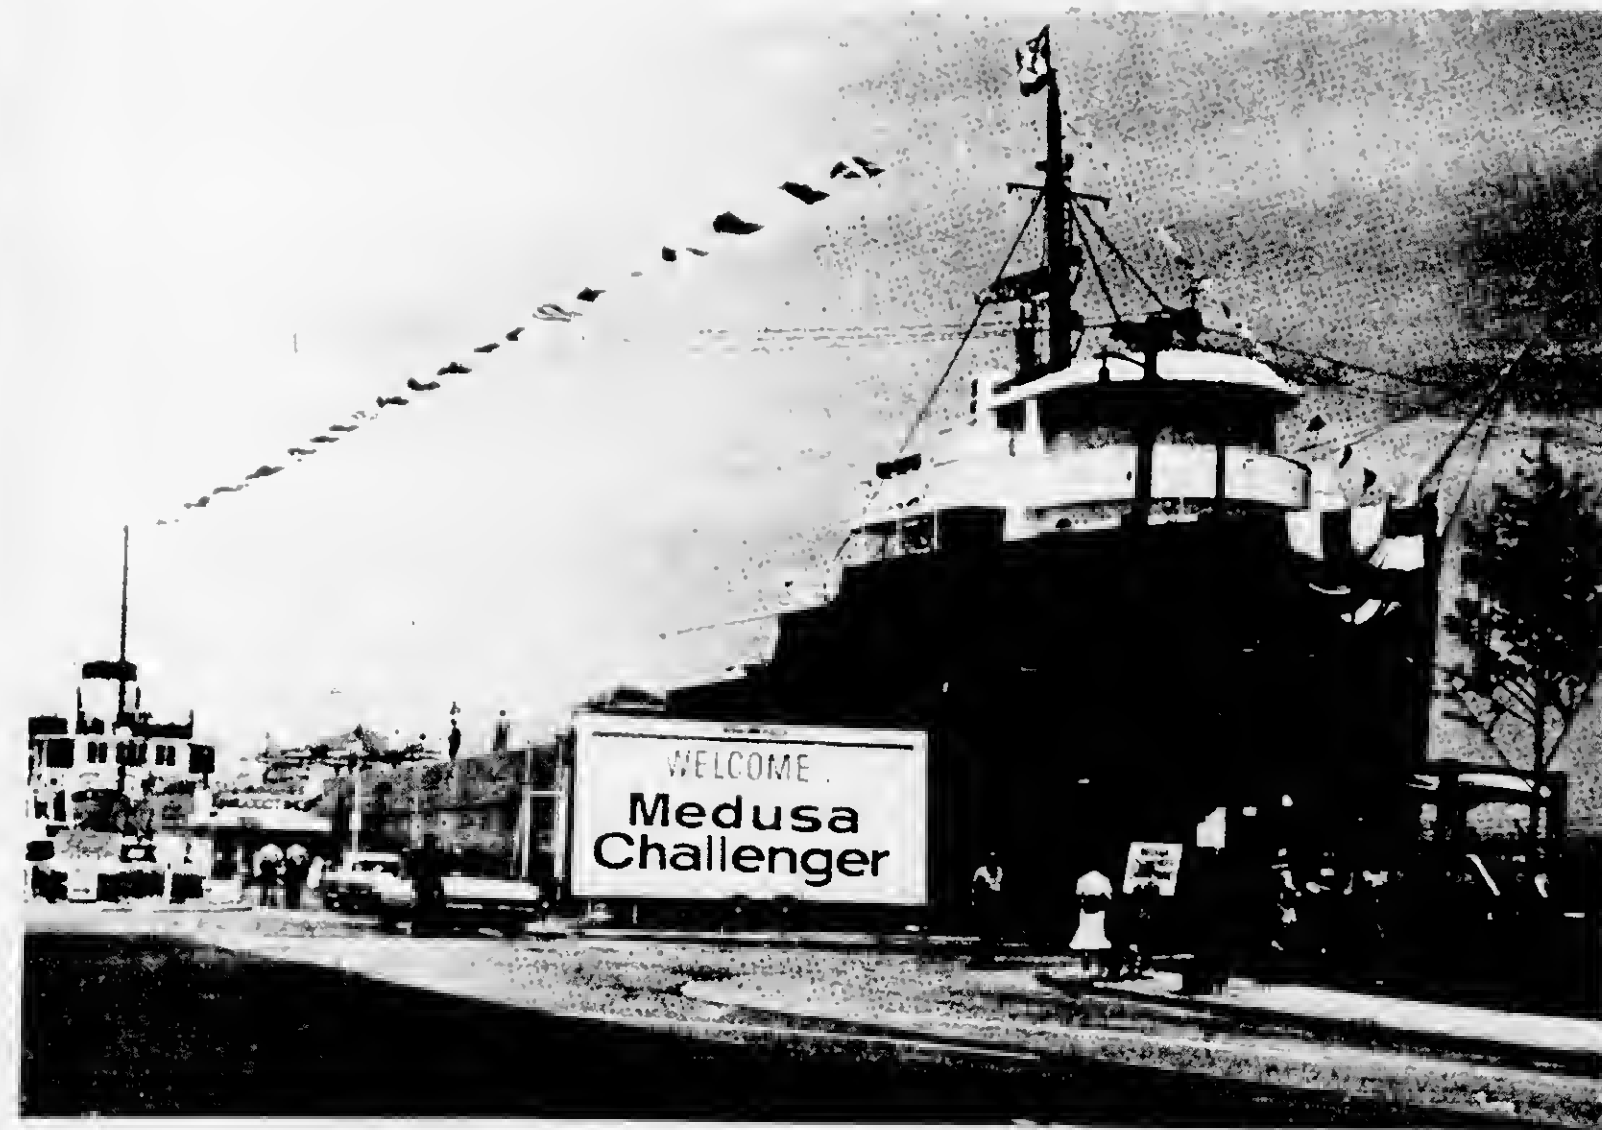

Cement Transit Company, a Medusa subsidiary, owns and operates the Challenger. Her chief engineer is George Reiter.

Beaver Island Escape from Desperation

ROMANCE, the legends and lore of the big lakes and some of Michigan's most colorful history are combined on Beaver Island with the exotic lure of an island hideaway and retreat from the tension and pressures of the mainland. These ingredients, plus the Midwest's finest hunting and fishing, are attracting thousands of vacationers to Beaver Island. Built in 1853--during Mormon King Strang's reign--the Beaver Head Light, above, charms many visitors who make the scenic trip to the south end of the island.

Charlevoix County Has Something for Everyone

CHARLEVOIX -- There's something for everyone in Charlevoix County.

Located 270 miles northwest of Detroit, 350 miles northeast of Chicago, 54 miles southwest of Mackinaw City, 181 miles north of Grand Rapids, Charlevoix County lies on the east shore of Lake Michigan in the highlands of Michigan's lower peninsula. It may be reached by U.S. highway 31, which runs through the heart of the city of Charlevoix, by U.S. highway 131, which cuts through the western part of the county, or by State routes 32 and 66 which enter the county from the southeast, merging in the city of East Jordan and continuing along the south shore of Lake Charlevoix into the county seat at Charlevoix.

Historically, Charlevoix County was organized in 1869. It was named for the Jesuit missionary Pierre de Charlevoix, one of the first French explorers to visit and write about northern Lake Michigan.

IN THE SCENERY department alone, Charlevoix County rates second to none in the state. The land rises rapidly from the Lake Michigan shore, with the second highest elevation in Michigan--Mt. Pisgah--lying just south of Thumb Lake in the western part of the county. This is the rugged wilderness area where elk have been reintroduced to Michigan and are thriving.

THE EASTERN half of the county is dominated by Lake Charlevoix, a 13-mile long body of water with the city of Charlevoix at its eastern extremity and Boyne City at its western end. The city of East Jordan lies at the end of the lake's South Arm, a narrow, picturesque body of water with many beautiful summer homes along its shores.

Other Lake Charlevoix communities include Ironton, where auto ferry service is offered across the South Arm. Horton Bay, famed for its Ernest Hemingway lore, and Advance, home of Top O' Michigan Rural Electric plant.

SEPARATED from Lake Michigan by Round Lake (within the city of Charlevoix) and the upper and lower Pine River Channels, Lake Charlevoix is a mecca for boating enthusiasts. There is usually a fair breeze for sailing, without the high seas which sometimes make Lake Michigan precarious for small craft.

Fisherman also find Lake Charlevoix much to their liking. Sculpin, rainbow trout are to be found in increasing numbers in her crystal waters, and excellent small mouth bass catches are reported regularly. (Two years ago, an eight-pounder was taken near the C&O railroad bridge just off Charlevoix.)

The village of Ironton is noted for its perch runs, and although the number of perch in the lake is down substantially from what it was a few years ago, there are still some good size yellow-bellies taken summer and winter near Ironton.

During July and August, swimming is perhaps the most popular outdoor sport in the county. Dozens of fine swimming areas are located throughout the county, with three supervised beaches in the city of Charlevoix alone. An increasing number of surfers have found that the windswept Lake Michigan shore is an excellent place to practice their sport.

In addition, there are many fine public and private camping areas in the county, including Young State Park on the Boyne City Road between Charlevoix and Boyne City, Whiting Park on the south shore of the lake and Bells Bay state campground on the Lake Michigan shore four miles south of Charlevoix.

My Neighbors

"Instead of a spare--"

The federal government recently has earmarked $109,850 for the development of 170 new campsites at Young State Park, the money to be matched by the state.

Young State Park offers modern sanitary and shower facilities, and electricity is available. Visitors to Whiting Park and Bells Bay "rough it."

THE CITY of Charlevoix has a year-round population of 2,751, but the figure swells

Something for Everyone

to several times that during the summer. Since before the turn of the century Charlevoix has been a mecca for vacationers from throughout the Midwest. Two private clubs--the Belvedere Club and the Chicago Club--are located on the shores of Round Lake and Lake Charlevoix within city limits. Each boasts dozens of elegant summer homes many of which have been in the same families for generations.

More recently, many excellent motels have erected in the city, offering excellent accommodations for the short-term vacationer and travelers. The city also has a number of fine restaurants which have become famous throughout the state.

CHARLEVOIX County also has become famous in recent years as center of Michigan's ski industry. Four superb ski areas are located in the central part of the county--Boyne Mountain, Thunder Mountain, Walloon Hills and Barn Mountain (formerly Avalanche), all of which afford excellent skiing usually from late November through March. Many skiers also make Charlevoix County their headquarters even when skiing at Boyne Highlands or Nubs Nob, just north of Petoskey.

Ski hills range from bunny slopes where the novice can try his wings to rugged grades which even the expert finds challenging.

IN THE 1960's, two major industrial developments have taken place in Charlevoix County. Consumers Power Co. has erected its first nuclear power plant at Big Rock Point on the Lake Michigan shore five miles northeast of Charlevoix. Medusa Portland Cement Co. of Cleveland expects to complete construction of its $25 million Charlevoix plant this summer. It is located on South Point, across the bay from the city of Charlevoix.

In addition, many light manufacturing industries have found it profitable to locate in Charlevoix County, providing year-round job opportunities for thousands of people.

So welcome to Charlevoix County. Whether you have come north for a day, a week, a summer or a lifetime, you'll find plenty to keep you busy.

VISITORS and natives alike are fascinated by the Pine River Channel bridge which raises several times a day to let ships pass in and out of Charlevoix Harbor. This view was taken west of the channel from the rear deck of the Beaver Islander.

Our Fascinating Bridge

CHARLEVOIX --- No visit to Charlevoix is complete without seeing the bascule bridge over Pine River Channel raise her steel and concrete arms to let a vessel pass in or out of Charlevoix Harbor.

Maintained by the State Highway Department, the bridge is manned 24 hours a day, 12 months a year by a team of three bridge tenders and a relief man.

When in place, the bridge carries U.S. 31 traffic north and south through the city of Charlevoix.

IT IS RAISED whenever a vessel to high for clearance must pass between Round Lake and Lake Michigan. Three blasts of a boat's whistle is the signal that a boat operator wants the bridge opened. The bridge tender responds in kind and sets in motion the gigantic mechanism which lifts the twin portals to let her pass.

THE FIRST STEP in the procedure is the turning on of warning lights and bells at the bridge approaches. Gates are dropped across the highway and the sidewalks and a road barrier raises as if by magic from the pavement.

When this is done, the tender manipulates levers which activate machinery under the street surface which move weights to raise the bridge.

On an average, it takes about three minutes to raise and lower the bridge to let a boat pass. However the time can vary, depending on the speed of the vessel or how many boats wish to pass through at one time. The bridge has been opened as long as 20 minutes to let a big lake freighter through.

TRAFFIC pileups sometimes occur on each side of the bridge, particularly during the busy summer season.

This is why the State Highway Department recently reiterated its instructions to the tender not to open the bridge if the only object on a boat too high for passage is a collapsible radio antenna.

Sometimes in the past, operators of "buddle jumpers" have whistled for the bridge to open, just to let their passengers see the bridge in motion. Fortunately for motorists, the Highway Department has turned thumbs down on such shenanigans.

In summer there is sufficient channel traffic to let everyone see the bridge in motion, even if he is in Charlevoix only for an hour or two.

Indian Past Lives Again at Greensky Hill Church

BUILT OF native cedar logs, the Greensky Hill Indian Methodist Church appears today much as it did in 1860 when it was completed.

JAY OLIVER, a member of Greensky Hill Church, stands near ancient twisted maple trees which once marked the site of Indian ceremonials.

CHARLEVOIX - Lovers of Indian lore will be fascinated by a visit to Greensky Hill Methodist Church, located high on a bluff near Susan Lake, northeast of Charlevoix on the old Petoskey Road.

Built of hand-hewn logs, the church was completed in 1860 on the site of an ancient tribal meeting ground.

Nearly stand nine gigantic maple trees in a circle. Their lower limbs were bent outward with thongs when they were saplings as a symbol of peace among Indian tribes in the area.

SERVICES are conducted each Sunday during the summer at 9:30 a.m. by the Rev. Leona Winegarden, pastor of the Charlevoix Methodist Church. The services are conducted in English, with several hymns sung in the Ojibwa language.

The mission church was built by Peter Greensky, an Indian brave who received his Christian training at the Methodist settlement of Bay Mills in the Upper Peninsula.

Later, Greensky became dissatisfied with the mission and decided to establish a church of his own where he and his followers could worship as they saw fit.

Steelhead Trout Back, But Anglers Seek Bass

by Glen Sheppard

Though the return of steelhead trout to Lake Charlevoix and Little Traverse Bay is still the most exciting news on the sport fishing front, scrappy smallmouth bass remain the major target for most anglers.

This spring steelhead fishermen had fabulous luck on the Jordan, Boyne and Bear rivers and in Lake Charlevoix and Little Traverse Bay. Documented catches of fish weighing up to 13 pounds were made.

SUMMERTIME fishing for the savage-fighting steelies is always less than good, however. So in July and August about the only trout caught in the lakes are taken by bass fishermen who just happen to get lucky.

The Lake Charlevoix shoreline is splattered with smallmouth hotspots. The most consistent producers are areas of the South Arm near Iron-ton.

UNDOUBTEDLY the most proven method for taking the plucky smallmouths (and an occasional steelhead) is to troll just off the shore. Troll slow with Mepps spinner, Jig A Do, Rapala, small Flatfish or Daredevil.

Sometimes you'll snag a surly pike as you work your lure around weedbeds.

If it's the kids you want to please, try dunking worms off docks or near weeds for rock bass and perch. (One of 3m is apt to nail a four-pound bass, though. So be prepared to blush.)

IF YOU hanker to try some of Walloon Lake's reknown angling you can rent a boat in the village, or launch your own at several public sites.

Walloon continues to produce some of the biggest bass in northern Lower Michigan.

STREAM fishermen will find the trout fishing slow on the lower end of the Jordan river, guide Ted Kotowich reports. But, he says, some nice catches of browns are coming from the headwaters.

The short section of the Boyne river that is still open to the public is also reported to be producing fine trout fishing.

IF YOUR fancy runs more to worm dunking, there are plenty of small creeks around that harbor trout. You can try Stover, Deer, Monroe, the Bear out of Walloon Lake, and several that feed into the Jordan.

Worm dunkers also have a good time off the Pine River breakwaters and the railroad bridge, where they can sit and soak up the charm of the Charlevoix harbor and luxury yachts.

If you feel more confident fishing small lakes there's no shortage of them in the Charlevoix-Ellsworth area.

THERE is still a handful of virtually unexploited small lakes known by only a few fishermen. Pike weighing in the 20 pound class and bass that top five pounds come from them.

But to reveal their whereabouts in print would be a violation of an angler's most sacred oath. So dig out a map or buy a native fisherman a drink and find them yourself.

Here's a list, though, of a few of the smaller lakes that are better known and guaranteed to have fish in them: --Lake 26 (Lake Marion), for pike, bass, panfish.

--Nowland Lake, for pike, IF YOU'RE looking for real fishing adventure journey to Beaver Island. Once in St. James you can rent a small boat to take you into the bays of Garden and Hog Islands. These bays are among the nation's top-ranked smallmouth hotspots.

Camp, Picnic Grounds

Plenty of campgrounds are located in the Charlevoix area. The largest is Young's State Park located on Lake Charlevoix off the Boyne City Road. Across the lake is Whiting Park, located on the Iron-ton Ferry Road near Advance.

SOUTH of Charlevoix is Bell's Bay park where about 20 rustic campsites are located along the Lake Michigan shore. The campground offers "box toilets," but no electricity is available.

The East Jordan Harbor Trailer and Tourist Park is located on the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix at East Jordan.

Other private campgrounds also are open during the summer.

FOR PICNICING, there's Kennedy Park on U.S. 31 N. about five miles from Charlevoix on the Lake Michigan shore. Sportsman's Park on M-32 near the bridge in East Jordan, East Park, Ferry Avenue Beach, and the Michigan Avenue Beach in Depot Avenue Beach, Depot Beach and the Michigan Avenue Beach in Charlevoix, Norwood

Mormons Put Up 1st Cabins at Boyne

Boyer City's history goes back to 1856 when John Miller, his wife and two sons along with John Dixon sailed across Pine Lake (now Lake Charlevoix) from Charlevoix to settle at North Boyne.

Miller, originally from Ireland, found some vacant cabins formerly occupied by the Mormons who were forced to leave and moved in with his family and Dixon.

MILLER CALLED the area "River Boyne" after a river in Ireland where a decisive battle was fought.

After that it was called Boyne Village until 1904 when it became Boyne City.

BOYNE CITY now has a population of about 3,000 persons with a summer increase of about 2,000. The city's major industries include Boyne Products, Inc., Robie Industrial Courier Products, Howe's Leather Company and Mill's Cabin Mills.

In 1981 a new high school and elementary school was built and the city has 12 churches.

Boyer City has seven city parks including Whiting Park where children's swimming classes are held mornings and afternoons. Young State Park, two miles northwest of the city, features a bathing beach with a life guard on duty, picnic facilities, camp sites, and a park store on its 536 acres.

THE CITY also has four marinas, a new steel bulkhead dock with accommodations for crafts up to 60 feet long, tennis courts, shuffleboard and playground equipment, a nine hole golf course and riding stables.

Wednesday evenings at 8 p.m., band concerts are held at Memorial Park with a dance following the concerts.

Boyer City's Annual Mushroom Festival, held the second Saturday in May, draws

Petoskey Stones

CHARLEVOIX -- Charlevoix's Lake Michigan beaches are a prime hunting ground for the elusive Petoskey stone--the state stone of Michigan. Formed millions of years ago, the stones actually are petrified "colony corals" which lived when northern PETOSKEY stones may look like this when you find them on the Lake Michigan shore. Michigan was at the bottom of a tropical sea. Although it is named for the city of Petoskey, the stones are plentiful--if you have a sharp eye--many places along the northern Lake Michigan shore. Some excellent stones have been found at Bells Bay, about five miles south of Charlevoix.

POLED, the stones make attractive pieces for jewelry and other decorations. Kits are available to hand-polish the stones. When polished, the stones make beautiful earrings, cufflinks and brooches. Larger stones may be used as paperweights or door stops. PETOSKEY stones are easiest to spot when they are wet, since moisture brings out the hexagonal (six-sided) pattern of the original coral. An uncut Petoskey stone may sometimes appear as an ordinary rock covered with tiny bumps.

Charlevoix's winter population of about 2,700 increases to approximately 12,000 during the summer months.

Charlevoix was named after the French missionary-explorer, Pierre Francois Xavier de Charlevoix, who visited the area in 1721.

The city of Charlevoix was platted in 1866 and a government mail route and post office were established the following year.

Beautiful Beaver Awaits You
Island Steeped in Lore

ST. JAMES--If you're looking for something different in the way of a vacation rereat, why not try Beaver Island -- America's Emerald Isle?

Located northwest of Charlevoix in the middle of northern Lake Michigan, Beaver Island offers everything an island should--and then some.

PHYSICALLY, Beaver Island is as attractive a chunk of island real estate as you're likely to find in North America. Fourteen miles long and from three to six miles wide, the island is still heavily forested. Visitors are amazed at the growth of the giant hemlocks and birches which line the island's 75 miles of narrow, gravel roads.

The island may be reached either by water or air. The motorship Beaver Island carries mail, freight, passengers and cars from Charlevoix to St. James, 32 miles distant, on a regular schedule from the middle of April until the end of December. Fifteen-minute air service is available either from the Charlevoix or Harbor Springs airports. The island airport has two runways, one of them 3,500 feet long.

OTHERS choose to visit the island in their private yachts, weather permitting. The island has ample dock facilities in a natural, sheltered harbor at St. James.

Transportation on the island is no problem if you bring your car. Otherwise, cars and motorcycles may be rented at St. James. Some vacationers prefer to enjoy the island scenery from a bicycle seat.

THE ONLY community of the island, St. James stretches along the shores of Paradise Bay for more than a mile. The village proper has two general stores, two bars, three restaurants and numerous motels, hotels, rental cottages, lodges and rooming houses. An excellent restaurant-bar is located one mile south of the village in what was formerly the Holy Cross parsonage.

LIKE MOST islands, Beaver Island has a mystery. Archeologists are still puzzled as to the origin and the fate of the first "mound builders" who made their home on Beaver Island. Their worship and burial mounds are still to be seen.

Later, the island was inhabited by Chippewa and Ottawa Indians, many of whom still make their home there.

band of Mormons led by James Jesse Strang moved to the island from Voree, Wisc., in order to practice their religion without interference. Strang, a rural New York lawyer, had himself crowned "King of the Earth", built a Mormon tabernacle and laid out the village of St. James, named after himself.

However King Strang proved to be a dictatorial ruler. He outlawed the use of tea, tobacco and liquor on the island, instructed the women to wear bloomers instead of long skirts and legalized polygamy.

The Irish mainlanders were agast at his high-handed dictums and eventually Strang's own people turned against him. Following his assassination June 16, 1856, by one of his followers, the Irish moved in, bodily evicting some 2,000 of his followers.

Before long the island was populated entirely by Irish fishermen, whose descendants make up the bulk of the island population today. If you listen to a native Beaver Islander talk, you'll catch a trace of the brogue his ancestors brought over from the Auld Sod.

At one time, the wooded island was visited daily by Great Lakes steamers, since it was a convenient place to stop and pick up firewood for their boilers en route from Chicago to Detroit.

Although the fishing industry is not what it once was, at least one commercial fisherman still operates out of St. James bringing in excellent catches of whitefish.

HOWEVER, the main industry today is tourism. Americans by the thousands have found on Beaver Island the peace and solitude which have

Russian Nobleman Escaped to Beavers

ST. JAMES--Many Beaver Islanders have stories to tell about the late Dr. Fedore Protar, a Russian nobleman who found his Shangri-la on America's Emerald Isle.

The scion of a wealthy family, Dr. Protar was sent to Siberia by the Czarist government for his liberal ideas. He managed to escape from Russia in the guise of a priest, making his way to Germany where he spent several years.

IN THE LATTER half of the last century he emigrated to the United States, where he published a German language newspaper in Illinois.

He had no formal medical training, but was fascinated by the healing arts and studied medicine on his own.

ONCE he took a trip aboard a Lake Michigan steamer which visited Beaver Island. It was love at first sight.

He later wrote to friends that the island was "the breeding place of whitefish and Galaghers."

Before long, Dr. Protar disposed of his newspaper interests, bought some farm equipment and moved to the island, never to leave again.

However he never farmed. Shortly after he arrived he found a farm family which could make better use of the equipment than he would and gave it to them. Instead, he became the island's only "doctor", treating his patient's aches and pains, stitching their wounds and setting all but vanished from other vacation retreats. Attractive summer cottages have sprung up along the Lake Michigan shore as well as on some of the islands seven inland lakes.

This summer, American Central Land Co. of Lansing has given the tourist industry a big push by subdividing several thousands of acres on the island for resort development.

THE 54-SQUARE mile island still teems with wildlife, including grouse, rabbits, squirrels, ducks, geese, deer, and wild turkeys and the hunting is superb.

Fishing in the Beavers is generally excellent. Three of the islands inland lakes yield game and panfish. The perch run in Paradise Bay each spring and fall is one of the finest on the Great Lakes. Bass and pike fishing in the waters off nearby Garden Island attract many fishermen by motor launch from St. James. Lake Genesareth on Beaver Island has a public fishing site, with a boat launching ramp.

their broken bones.

Although his pay was necessarily meager, Dr. Protar never seemed to want for money. Stories are still current on the island that he continued to receive an income from his family estate in Russia during his residency on Beaver Island.

DR. PROTAR's log home still stands, pretty much as it was at the time of his death in 1926. It is now owned by the Beaver Island Historical Society. Pat Bonner, a close friend of Protar's, lives across the road, and will open the door if anyone wants to look around inside.

Nearby is Dr. Protar's tomb, erected by the grateful inhabitants of the island. It consists of a fieldstone enclosure around his grave and a bronze plaque bearing his likeness.

Behind the tomb is a huge boulder upon which Dr. Protar used to sit in a chair and read. It was close to the tracks of a lumber railroad which once ran the length of the island.

Dr. Protar also had another favorite "study" on the island, a clearing in the woods at the foot of Bonner's Bluff, a steep escarpment which drops off to the western shore of the island. The clearing actually was a tiny island in the middle of a flowing spring, reached by rustic bridges.

After his death, a well-meaning islander fenced it off as a memorial to the doctor, but the fence kept out browsing deer as well as intruders.

A-Plant Tours Popular

CHARLEVOIX--One of the prime tourist attractions in the Charlevoix area is Consumer's Power Co.'s Big Rock Point nuclear power plant. Situated five miles north-east of Charlevoix via U.S. 31 on the Lake Michigan, the plant is one of the first in the world to generate electricity by means of nuclear fission.

SINCE the information center at the plant opened in 1961, Consumers has played host to more than 442,000 persons, 62,900 of whom visited the site in 1966 alone.

Chuck England, director of the Information Center at the plant, says visitors are welcome from 8 a.m. through 5 p.m. seven days a week during the summer.

ALTHOUGH tours of the atomic reactor itself are not practicable, visitors are welcome to visit many cutaway displays of plant operations and sit in on a lecture-movie presentation of how the plant converts atomic energy into electricity for home and industrial use.

The plant uses heat from uranium fuel packs to make steam, which in turn operates a giant turbine to create electricity. The power generated is fed into Consumers network of power lines across Michigan, and is utilized far beyond the immediate Charlevoix area.

THE CITY of Charlevoix is unique, since it draws on power supplied not only by the ultra-modern Big Rock plant, but also from an old hydro-electric plant at Bellaire.

England emphasizes that there is absolutely no difference in the electricity generated at the Big Rock Point plant and that of other generating facilities. The only difference is the source of heat.

CHARLEVOIX -- Installation of new street lighting on Bridge St. should start "any day now," Mayor Bill Fochtmann said.

Twenty-six new poles will be erected along the sidewalk from the top of the South Hill to the top of the North Hill.

FOCHTMANN SAID contractors will use a saw to cut through the sidewalk.

The old light poles, he said, will be removed. The holes they leave will be filled with concrete.

Fochtmann said he expects there will be only a minimum amount of disruption of pedestrian and vehicle movement in the downtown area during the changeover to new lights.

Goodwill Center Fitted Out To Serve as E-J Classroom

EAST JORDAN -- Elementary Principal Donald Peters said the third-grade classes will meet in the main school building until the center is finished.

THE REMODELING, being done by Contractor Jim Petrie, includes partitioning the center into three rooms, the addition of three exit doors and two bathrooms. Crosswalks were painted in and sidewalks around the building were added.

While the children will use the third ward playground which is next to the center, new play equipment was added. Peters said the State Fire Marshall inspected the building and gave his ok.

"All safety factors have been taken care of," Peters said.

Although the center has a small kitchen, Peters said the students will walk to the main school building for their lunches.

East Jordan Expands Program To Enrich School Curriculum

EAST JORDAN -- Junior primary, a new grade, was added to the elementary school here this fall.

Donald Peters, elementary principal, said the new grade is a combination of kindergarten and first grade.

HE SAID, "Junior primary will take care of those children who are not advanced for the first grade."

"The program seems to have worked out well for many schools in the southern part of the state and we think it will be a success here too," he added.

About 20 students will be assigned to the new class being taught by Mrs. Patricia Fleet.

OTHER ADDITIONS in the curriculum include music and art classes along with physical education for grades one through three. Previously physical education was offered only to students in grades four through six.

ART TEACHER Paul Fell and music teacher Mrs. Duane Thompson are scheduled to visit each classroom during the week since there are no special art or music rooms. Peters added that five part-time teacher's aides were hired to help with lunchroom duties and routine tasks.

Dust From Space
Scientists estimate that about a million tons of dust from distant space fall on the earth every year. These cosmic particles are so minute that a microscope and special equipment are needed to identify them.

DON RUSSELL of Jordan Heating and Refrigeration is one of the many workers racing against time at the Goodwill Center in East Jordan to have it ready for third graders when school opens this week. The center has been renovated and remodeled to serve as classrooms, due to lack of space in the school.

Know Your Newspaper Better

Dear Editor:
Now This Is What I Think!

Did you ever write a letter to the editor?

It's fun to see yourself in print. But actually, you're not writing to only the editor. If he prints your letter--and he probably will--you are really writing to all the thousands of readers of this newspaper. That's a substantial body of readers, but don't let that scare you... write as if you were talking to just one of them.

What Do You Write About?

Perhaps you are really mad at the editor and want to tell him off on some opinion he has voiced. Perhaps you can't contain yourself any longer on some important local issue. Perhaps you just like to sound off now and then on topics of current interest. Whatever you choose, the "Letters to the Editor" column is your opportunity to speak your opinions.

We Welcome Good Letters

In writing them, please follow the rules printed at the top of the letters column. These rules ask that you keep your letters reasonable in length, reasonable in tone... free of defamatory matter. Remember, the editor must "bad" down your letter if too long, and will take out statements that are libelous... even though the letter has your name printed underneath.

Plenty of Topics

It's really fun to write to the editor. We don't recommend that you become a "chronic" letter writer, but every now and then we'll be glad to hear from you... taxes, highways, elections, the legislature, streets, parks, schools, city government, accidents, safety, business... scores of things to write about!

WE MUST SEEK THE TRUTH

Constantly in search of the TRUTH the scientist takes nothing for granted. Each "hypothesis", each theory, is tested and tried and accepted or discarded on the condition that it proves true or false. The true scientist never jumps to conclusions, consequently you will never hear him proclaiming the self-sufficiency of man—that man needs no spiritual power.

The Church is also a center for the search and dispensation of truth in things other than the material, the things one cannot discern by the physical senses. If each of us would be free we must know the truth and if each of us is active in the work of the church that fits our needs "We Shall Know the Truth and the Truth Shall Make Us Free."

Ellsworth School Audit Shows $34,000 Balance

ELLSWORTH--The school district spent more than it took in, but came out ahead at the end of the fiscal year (June 30) by using part of last year's surplus.

Hot Lunch Cost School $8,000 During 1966-67

ELLSWORTH--The school hot lunch fund took in $3,103 last year and ended up with a $340 balance, the school's auditors report.

The lunch fund started the year with a $441 balance from last year and spent $8,206 during the 1966-67 school year.

IN REPORTS on other school special funds, the auditors found that the class of 19-67 spent $5,880--everything it had.

The athletic fund took in $3,342 during the year and spent $3,255, leaving a balance of $798 to start this year.

ELLSWORTH--The school district last year paid $6,000 on its $192,000 bond issue for expansion and renovation of the school in 1957, auditors report.

This leaves $141,000 still to be paid on the bonds. The last payment is due July 1, 1965.

Creating -- Cabbages and Things

By Carol Walsky

I left the 4-11 County show at Whiting Park Monday with a marvelous feeling--I felt human.

Being surrounded by turbo-hydraulic-power-dynamic-automatic-super-tension products available in every store and found in every home, it's very easy for me to forget I am human at times, I expect to wake up some morning and find a "human made" table stuck to my forehead.

It was sheer pleasure to attend the show and find out I was still human--It's a feeling you get by rubbing shoulders with some real people who still find value in creating, doing and sharing.

I PULLED into the park just as the show was beginning to break up at 3 p.m. Kids were racing around with their ribbons pinned on like they were Congressional Medals and women sat around talking and holding their canned goods. However, I'm glad I was late because I saw a lot of things people who are always on time never see. Take the baked goods section for example. I bet at 11 a.m. all the cakes and cookies sat there on the table pretty as a page from Betty Crocker's Cookbook wrapped in cellophane waiting to be judged. By the time I arrived and got around to examining them, I found the remains. Obviously some hungry children couldn't resist the temptation of the treats--like the three-year-old I spotted under the table munching on a cookie.

One pink cupcake was adorned with two teeth marks made by someone with baby teeth. Another cupcake--they sure must have been good--had the frosting licked off.

Moving down the table I found a hole in the middle of a coffee cake where I imagine some little boy made off with a sample.

I can't blame the samplers though. One cake made by Claudia Grutsch--so the card said anyway--looked so good I kept hoping people would go away so I could test it myself. It really was quite a creation with every sort of imaginable fruit--bananas, blueberries, strawberries, etc.--decorating the top.

ALL OF THE displays were marvelous from the needlepoint to the posters telling how to make bread. While the quality of them was superb, I'm sure man with his mechanical genius and sophisticated technology could produce a-

Grid Squads Shaping Up

Rayders Have 5 Regulars Back

Northern Michigan Class C high school athletes take to the gridiron next week-end.

Again this year it looks like the power-houses will be Gaylord and Boyne City, with Don Carey's Charlevoix Rayders the team to watch.

EAST JORDAN, too, remains a potential bombshell. With a new coach, the Jordan squad could surprise the league and make up for the narrow losses of last year.

In Charlevoix, Carey has five regulars back from last year in his string of 12 returning lettermen.

Back calling the plays on the Charlevoix gridiron is quarterback Tom Webb. Other regulars returning to the huddle with Webb are ends Ralph Doan and Fred Wabanlmke, halfback Terry Bissett and fullback Allen Veenstra.

Carey is going to have a build an entire line from his squad of 65 who turned out for football.

THOUGH HE'S 30 boys short of the 95 who came out last year, Carey reports the boys have been showing the spirit and hardwork from which football teams are made.

Last year the Rayders lost only one contest, to Boyne City and finished with a 4-1-1 record.

(Fans can get a preview of the Charlevoix squad at practice sessions--held every weekday afternoon about 4 p.m. behind the school bus garage.)

Assisting Carey with the varsity squad is Leonard Staley. Coaching the junior varsity are Bruce Morgan and Duane Taylor.

It looks as though as couple of traditional foes will be dropped from the Rayder schedule this year.

ROGERS CITY, Charlevoix's traditional opening-game rival, has dropped athletos because voters refused to authorize a tax increase. Instead of Rogers City, the Rayders will face Bay City St. Joseph in Bay City at 8 p.m. Sept. 16 (Saturday).

Carey says the St. Joe's team has a reputation as the toughest Class C grid squad in its Saginaw Valley Area. So the Rayders are in for a big league test in the opener.

Also expected to be off the Charlevoix and East Jordan schedule this year is Pellston, where only nine boys turned out for practice. Pellston is scheduled to meet Charlevoix Nov. 3.

Deano Has CHS Grad

CHARLEVOIX--One Charlevoix athlete will play under Charlevoixian Dean Davenport at Iowa Wesleyan College this fall.

The college lists Lusk on its grid roster as a 175 pound halfback.

Davenport was named Iowa Wesleyan's athletic director in June. He returned to Iowa after directing Charlevoix's summer recreation program again this year.

Prior to going to Iowa Wesleyan in the fall of 1966, Davenport was a coach for three years at San Fernando Valley State College in California.

Health Merger Plan Stalled Until October

A plan to double the size of District Health Dept. No. 3 has run into opposition from Charlotte County supervisors. The health committee of the county board has refused to endorse the proposal, insisting that any such decision be left up to the board as a whole at its regular October session.

THE PLAN CALLS for adding Grand Traverse, Benzie and Leelanau counties to District 3, which is made up of Charlevoix, Antrim, Emmet and Otsego counties.

DR. B.S. Lipke of Gaylord, district chairman, and his top assistants have urged the plan.

Several health committee members, however, expressed doubt that Dr. Lipke could handle the added population.

"If he's overworked in this district, how is he going to do this?" Bay Township Supervisor Charles Leisk asked.

THE THREE additional counties would more than double the number of people served by Dr. Lipke. The present district has a population of 47,243 (1960 census). The three counties to the south have a population of 50,645; bringing the total under the proposal to 97,888.

(Most of the counties in the area have grown since 1960, putting the actual population at more like 100,000-plus.)

Dr. Lipke sees the major benefits of the merger being the additional revenue for a administrative specialist.

This, the doctor said, would "take it (administration) off my back so I can concentrate more on medical duties."

THE HEALTH District, he said, is missing out on large amounts of federal and state money because it does not have an administrator who knows how to develop programs and handle the complicated paperwork to get this money.

Applying for these grants, he said, is Under the plan District 3 would not actually merge.

The "sharing" plan was proposed by Grand Traverse, Benzie and Leelanau. An immediate savings of $10,000 will be made by District 3, district officials report, because the new counties will pick up the biggest share of Dr. Lipke's salary.

It wasn't planned that way, but Charlevox marked the end of the Summer Season with sirens wailing.

The sirens weren't set off to herald the return of a more casual life in the north country. They were fire sirens, made necessary by two fires on Labor Day. A two-fire day is a busy one for Charlevox's volunteer fire fighters.

Both fires, though, were minor.

THE FIRST, at 9:30 a.m., was at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Lysle Ance, 304 Clinton, where an outside rubbish fire got temporarily out of control and threatened a storage building. The fire was under control within minutes after the volunteers arrived.

Again at 4:30 p.m., firemen were called out. This time to a car fire on Ferry Ave. near the Belvedere Clubhouse. The fire was out when they arrived. The car is owned by Mel Johnson.

Area police reported only one serious mishap over the holidays.

Sheriff Philo Sumner reports a woman, Martina C. Lewis, 40, R-2, Charlevoix.

was injured slightly when her car went off the East Jordan-Ellsworth Rd. about 3 a.m., Labor Day and struck a tree. The 1966 Pontiac, Sumner said, was totally ruined. Miss Lewis was alone in the car. She was taken to Charlevoix Hospital.

New Neighbors Enrich Our Town

CHARLEVOIX this fall and winter is going to be pre-occupied with integration. Integrating it three dozen, or so, new families into the community.

For the past two years, construction of Medusa's plant has sort of fascinated us. Now the time has come to settle down with the plant and, most important, the new Charlevoixians it has brought to our town. GETTING SETTLED in a new community is always difficult. Those of us who have lived in metropolitan areas and little villages, know that the smaller the town the harder it is to become a part of.

Our new neighbors will find Charlevoix's experiences of the few years to their advantage. Due to Consumers Power Co., the Air Force and the Coast Guard we have become used to welcoming new people and their new habits and ideas.

For a few months our new neighbors will be inclined to compare our town and our ways with those where they came from. Hopefully, their past experiences will enrich Charlevoix.

On most counts, they will find Charlevoix well prepared to greet them. If any of them are from communities our size they will readily see that Charlevoix is well ahead of most.

THOUGH WE'VE had some recent debate over our school system, it is still one of the best possible—thanks to alert, concerned parents who are willing to foot the check, but insist on seeing the ledger and deciding how it will be kept. Our new neighbors will find our recreational facilities, streets, public utilities, city government and other things outshine most others in the north.

And on the scores that really count, they will find Charlevoixians some of the most relaxed, informal and fun-loving people anywhere in our tense society.

Within seconds after arriving, our new neighbors realized Charlevoix is the hands-down winner in any and all natural beauty contests.

BUT A CHARLEVOIX winter isn't easy on newcomers who are used to a faster-paced tempo. So it is up to us to see to it that they get a sample of our dramatic winter scenery, skiing, informal kitchen table debates and evening fun.

Maybe we should start thinking about some sort of harvest festival in honor of all new residents. As Charlevoix keeps growing this might be something we would want to continue every October or early November.

It may seem a bit selfish, but don't overlook the fact that when our new neighbors get to know and love our town as we do, they will become as passionately determined as we are to save Charlevoix from the disgrace Penn-Dixie has brought to Little Traverse Bay and the Petoskey area.

Young Recruits Welcomed

IT IS ALL TOO seldom those of us in the community news-paper business have a chance to welcome newcomers to our trade. When the chance does come we get a little giddy about it.

So to Gregg Smith, junior and senior, we extend our most enthusiastic wishes for good fortune in their new venture in purchasing the East Jordan newspaper, thus strengthening their Boyne City publishing interests.

GREGG SENIOR is one of the north's best known smalltown journalists. His Boyne Citizen has long been one of the most outspoken journals in the area.

When the senior member of the Smith publishing team came to the trade smalltown journalism still held some aura of glamor. In that era even big city newspapering demanded men of varied knowledge and timeless devotion and energy. Nobody who had to make it on their own had it easy.

Today the kids out of school find the big cities easy pickings. They have things like "beats"—where you write about only one subject. And the union's contract says the work-week is a mere 37 hours long.

So when one of today's generation passes up the easy life in the big city those of us who have been in the trade awhile, just naturally take a liking to him.

Gregg Junior didn't have to try his hand in the smalltown. He could have gone to the big city. We admire him for having the spunk to try his Dad's trade.

Where are Our Flying Saucers?

WE JUST CAN'T understand why people who are less reliable than we are keep getting all the brooks by seeing flying saucers. It's about time we got a peek at one.

Sure, if we saw one of those thingamajigs flitting around over Fisherman's Island and you'd believe us wouldn't you?

AS IT IS, we pretty much believe the people who have been seeing them. Trouble is the recent spat of UFO sightings haven't been in our area. They've been darting all over the northern Great Lakes area, according to the newspapers, but shunning East Jordan and Charlevoix.

We do, though, know a fellow in the other end of the county who took a ride on one. (We won't tell you his name because, even though we believe him, you might not.)

It happened this way. Our friend was walking down the street one evening and when he got under this street light there sat a space ship with some guys milling around it.

One of the guys walked up to our friend and said something like, "How would you like to go for a ride in our space ship?" Our friend, of course, said, "Sure, I'd love to." So he went for a ride. He goes into some detail about where they went and how fast, but we'll forget it since you might be a skeptic and that information would only confuse you.

ANYWAY, the space guys brought him down and let him off at this bar, that isn't far from his home.

We believe the yarn strictly due to the answers our very serious and sincere friend gave us to two questions.

We asked him what the space ship looked like. He told us, "Oh, just like an ordinary space ship."

And we asked what the space guys looked like he told us, "Just like most spacemen."

If you meet some spacemen who look like most spacemen and who are flying an ordinary looking space ship ask 'em if they'll take us for a spin. OK?

This is Conservation?

If you've lost a sympathetic eye on the Conservation Dept.'s tear-soaked propaganda in daily newspapers forget it.

It's a tear-jerker, for sure. But not for the bureaucrats who put out the propaganda. Not a single one of the desk-riding office commandos are going to have their tail pinched by what department mouthpieces call a "severe budget slash."

THE DEPARTMENT recently received an interoffice communication that details conservation director Ralph McMillan's plans for keeping his department running in spite of what he calls "an appropriated budget substantially below what we consider to be a minimum austerity level."

According to the memo, the department has been appropriated $28,194,476 this year, compared to $28,071,002 last year.

The appropriation is more than $1.3 million short of being adequate to maintain department operations at the level of the previous year," McMillan states.

Though the actual appropriation this year is slightly higher than last year, McMillan figures it will buy $1.3 less, due to salary increases and generally higher costs.

McMillan's L.A. 158 S. 10 pages to explain how he is going to keep everything who is now on the Civil Service payroll getting a paycheck.

For instance, instead of having off some of his own, he proposes to "limit printing of event maps, small-ing printed materials ordered by the public."

... defer scheduled development of 25 new public (fishing) access sites, curtail lake and stream improvement work by 50 percent, defer start of work on Platte River andadomus fish hatchery, construct no new pile marshes or new fishing lakes."

And the list of activities of direct and meaningful value to the public, that he wants to alter so he can spend our money on unessential jobs goes on for about five pages.

Comment

NOT THAT WE want to see anyone lose their job, but we've never known anyone who had a talent and would work at it who couldn't find work.

Turning a few more pages you find out just what the department's problem is: It's spending too darn much on administration and other office jobs.

For instance, next year McMillan's "austerity" plan calls for spending $2,183,274 for administration. He says this is $68,732 less than he needs to meet built-in cost increases.

This doesn't mean much until you compare it to what he proposes spending for fishing: $2,597,596—only slightly more than for administration. Together, $4,780,870 for fishing, he contends, is $407,733 less than is needed to maintain last year's payroll and/or services.

AND FOR HUNTING he only wants to spend $1.5 million next year. That's $600,000 less than for administration. The picture gets even worse.

McMillan's austerity plan calls for spending another $2 million for engineering, research and development. Add that to the $2.18 million for administration and you've got more than $4 million that he is setting aside to save the bureaucratically entrenched programs and jobs that are of little or no current moment to most of Michigan's hunters, fishermen and outdoor lovers.

Most of us in the north county think of "conservation" as being primarily programs to save and improve fish, game and forests.

YET IF YOU LUMP McMillan's planned expenditures for fish, game and forestry ($1.35 million) together you barely have more than he wants to spend on Lansing office jobs.

For years now we've been listening to the department's veteran field employees grumble because they feel programs of real value are being neutralized in a quagmire of bureaucratic red tape.

McMillan's plan doesn't listen to these people. But, of course, the office commandos in the next room are bound to have more influence on the boss than men who have been tramping the north's woods and patrolling its lakes for years.

Hopefully, though, the public will soon start telling our legislators we would like to see the Conservation Dept. spend our money conserving and improving our outdoors. Instead of conserving non-productive jobs and programs that have lost their meaning.

Visitor Slaps Eyesore

Dear Editor:

This past weekend we were horrified and saddened by the disgraceful sight which exists on the north shore of Charlevoix's Lake Michigan coastline.

In case you are unfamiliar with the object of this expose, it is commonly known as the old Beach Hotel and it is situated at the end of West Dixon Avenue.

Generally this building may be described as a dilapidated, gutted, and windowless eyesore. Upon closer examination such notions as shattered glass on the steps and obstructions across the sidewalk—a fallen porch column as an example—may be witnessed.

TO EVEN THE most casual observer it is apparent that its drafty wooden superstructure looms as an inviting target to a novice pyromaniac. It is conceivable that a single match tossed into an open street-side window would threaten the existence of the immediate neighborhood. Should such an event be accompanied by a not uncommon 40 mile per hour west wind the entire north side of town would be endangered.

It may be remembered by some readers that when Buttar's Sun-gate Lodge burned a few years ago, flying ignited debris was carried as far east as Lake Charlevoix.

Can't something be done?

Ship Rescue

Dear Editor:

Referring to the August 23 Courier story on my lifelong friend George Cook and his memory of the grounding of the S.S. Illinois, near the Pine River channel mouth about 1905.

First the tug J.W. Taylor and the J.W. Parmelee tried with light haulers. Then the captain—after talking to the owners, Northern Michigan Transportation Co., of Chicago—called for the tug from Ludington, the Favorite. She came (at about $100 an hour) and put some lines on the Illinois and proceeded to part them one at a time with no results.

Jack Pine Savages Let us Down

THOSE OF YOU who think the falsehoods and subtleties of polite society didn't exist in the old rough and tumble days of the "Jack Pine Savage" just don't know much.

Not only that, you haven't read Herter's "Professional Guide's Manual," a volume of which we, of course, have in our sophisticated editorial writer's reference library.

HERTER'S, you know, is a Minnesota outfit that sells custom stuff to hunters, fishermen, guides, etc. Its owners also write books . . . like the guide's manual.

Anyway, we ran across this recipe for "Jack Pine Savage Venison Steak." Figuring that some of our more honorable ancestors probably qualified as Jack Pine Savages, we figured the recipe was important.

But the following two sentences really shattered our romantic concept of the good old Jack Pine Savage society:

"Venison round steaks," the Herter authors wrote, "tend to be tough and dry even in young deer. If an old Jack Pine Savage served you round steak you knew for sure he did not like your."

IMAGINE OUR disappointment. We always figured Jack Pine Savages were stout-hearted fellows who would just up and throw you out of camp if they didn't cotton to you. Now we learn they were as back-biting as today's neighbors who pass off their tough venison steaks on non-hunters.

This got us to looking for a Herter's definition of what a Jack Pine Savage was. "The old term for men who lived in the bush was Jack Pine Savage," we read. "It later changed to the more normal name of bushman." (It surprised us a little to learn that "bushman" is a "more normal name.")

Anyway, by this time we got to wondering if maybe those good ole Jack Pine Savages weren't just bums who were too lazy to work for a living.

And now all we've got left to believe in is Santa Claus and Dr. Walter Hoffmann.

THE ROCK BASS are biting in Lake Charlevoix. The anglers who caught this string are (from left) Ron Winchester, Randy Winchester and Jerry Keie, all of Charlevoix.

Adult Education Registration Underway at All Area Schools

Registration for adult education courses starts today in Charlevoix, East Jordan and Boyne City high schools.

All area adults—including those from Ellsworth—are eligible to enroll. Most of the courses lead to a high school diploma for persons who failed to finish their education.

Registration will continue through Sept. 15 at all high school principals' offices. Persons who cannot get to school during office hours should call and make arrangements to register in the evening.

Classes start Sept. 25 continue for 15 weeks at all three high schools.

Registration fees range from $5 to $15, depending on the course. A $2 registration fee must be paid before class starts.

No registrations will be accepted after Sept. 15. This will give schools time to set up classes in subjects in which there is enough interest.

THE CLASSES will be taught by qualified area teachers. Persons seeking help in selecting courses that will lead to enough credits for a high school diploma will be aided by professional counselors.

Adults taking occupational courses will be given credit for their work experience in these fields.

Subjects in which courses are tentatively planned are: accounting, algebra, art, basic electricity, basic math, blue print reading, bookkeeping, business machines, conservation, drafting, engine repair, English, flower arranging, foreign languages, government, landscaping, reading, salesmanship, sewing, shorthand, speedwriting, typing, U.S. history, welding and woodworking.

Other courses will be added if enough students enroll for them.

meaning to what they are learning.

WHILE A "normal" student may learn that x plus x equals x , the Type A child will reach in his pocket and find out that ten dimes make a dollar. Abstract theory may mean nothing to him, but concrete, practical knowledge means learning to live in society.

Although class leaders are limited to about 15 students to allow for individual attention, they are not coddled. On the contrary, Type A students are made aware of their limitations, not through the cruel remarks made by "normal" children, but through the careful guidance of a teacher trained to show them their limitations.

They are taught to do the best they can with what they have. They are taught that not everyone has the same ability, but everyone is important. They are also taught that they are entitled to happiness.

Happiness may be something less than reality for children who realize they are different.

UNLIKE CHILDREN with lower mental capacities, these children know they are different. Too often in a regular classroom the difference becomes a painful experience. They feel the pressure of not being able to keep up with "normal" students. They feel the embarrassment of not knowing the answers--week after week and year after year. They feel the emptiness and frustration of not grasping what is being taught.

In a Type A classroom, they still know they are different, but at least some of the pressure, embarrassment and frustration is reduced. Happiness and an understanding of life becomes more of a reality. There is a tangible feeling of fulfillment.

ONE SENTENCE --- Superintendent Max Damoth reserved a room in the school for 15 Type A children, but searched in vain for a teacher. "It may mean nothing to the children on the bus, but the ones left behind will understand."

Cable TV Sets Massive Celebration For All at Weathervane

PETOSKEY'S RENOWN Firehouse Five will dazzle the crowd at Cable TV open house public celebration in the Weathervane Inn Friday, Sept. 8.

George Baldwin A Cable Leader

George Baldwin, president and general manager of Lake Charlevoix Cable TV, Inc., entered the Cable TV industry in 1959 when he and a group of Upper Peninsula men formed a cable company to serve the Escanaba area. Under his leadership, the system grew to serve over 4,000 subscribers within six years.

During this time, Baldwin served on several national CATV committees, traveling to Washington to represent the industry. He was also secretary of the Michigan Association of Cable Television and spent a great deal of time addressing local organizations. In addition, he was a member of the Engineer's Club, Lions, Elks, Chamber of Commerce and Escanaba and Gladstone Yacht Clubs.

He attended Michigan Technology School at Houghton, Michigan and the Texas College of Mines, El Paso, Texas. He served four years in the U.S. Army during World War II. He was recalled during the Korean conflict.

A native of lower Michigan, Baldwin lived previously in Birmingham and Tawas City, Michigan and the Texas College of Mines, El Paso, Texas. He resided at 404 Michigan Avenue, Charlevoix, with his wife, Lue, and four children, Beth, 16, Cathy, 14, George, Jr., 9, and Laura, 4.

Baldwin said that with the introduction of Cable TV into the area that "Charlevoix the Beautiful" has everything to offer local and summer residents.

George Baldwin

Exclusive Sports Programs Due For Cable Customers

The Federal Communications Commission (FCC) has approved the application of the Upper Peninsula Microwave Company to bring WKBD-TV, Channel 50, an independent network's programming from Detroit to Charlevoix.

George Baldwin, manager of Lake Charlevoix Cable TV, Inc., said he is happy that FCC approval has been granted so that Charlevoix subscribers will be able to enjoy Channel 50's excellent programming.

Channel 50 offers top sporting events -- baseball, football, hockey, and boxing in addition to other special sporting events. These and first-run movies are the main attractions offered by Channel 50, although all its programming will be of interest to cable subscribers.

Now that FCC approval has been obtained, U.P. Microwave, Inc. will begin construction of six towers between Detroit and Charlevoix. Buildings will be constructed at each site and electronic equipment will be installed that will receive and transmit Channel 50 signals to Charlevoix.

Baldwin said, "We hope to have Channel 50 on the system by the end of 1967 barring any unforeseen difficulties. Channel 50 will not be available to anyone except Cable subscribers and it will be carried on Channel 4 on Cable subscribers' sets."

Everything possible will be done to bring this added service to cable viewers soon, he said.

CATV Serves 1,700 Small Towns

Charlevoix is classed as an average-Community Antenna Television (CATV) system. It has a population of approximately 3,000 people and a potential of 1,100 CATV subscribers.

Reception now in Charlevoix will be better than that found in large cities. Most large cities do not have CATV systems and have interference from industry. Only CATV can eliminate this interference.

The CATV industry is serving 1,700 communities.

Charlevoix CATV Open House at Weathervane Inn September 8th.

All area residents are invited to an Open House this Friday, September 8 at Charlevoix's Weathervane Inn. The invitation is extended by Lake Charlevoix Cable TV, also known as Abel Cable.

Hours for the Open House will be from noon to 10 p.m. and will be held in the lower level lounge of the Weathervane.

Interesting TV exhibits are planned by local TV dealers and technicians at the open house. This is a fine opportunity for everyone to see Channel 12, a new addition to the cable, in beautiful color for the first time in Charlevoix.

Many activities are planned for your enjoyment. Many fine gifts will be presented to lucky winners! There will be plenty of free coffee, rolls, rainhats, pins for all and balloons for the kids. Kids under 14 must be accompanied by an adult.

Prizes will be given away every hour throughout the day and a grand prize of a portable TV set will be given away at a drawing at 9 p.m.

In addition, the Firehouse Five from Petoskey will be on deck to furnish entertainment from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. Everyone in the Charlevoix area is familiar with the hilarious entertainment this group offers with their especially rigged fire truck and firefighting equipment. These Petoskey businessmen will offer merry music and rollicking fun for all ages.

For those who haven't signed up for Cable TV, Lake Charlevoix Cable TV, Inc., will offer an introductory special of $10 installation fee for the main hook-up and $5 fee for extensions during the Open House.

George Baldwin, manager of CATV, said, "I hope many take advantage of our introductory offer, as subscribers enjoy multi-channel viewing including WJMT, Channel 12 from Flint, ABC programming."

Baldwin also made it clear that no one is under obligation to sign up for Cable, but are urged to stop at the Inn and see Cable TV in action.

Lake Charlevoix Cable TV, Inc. is offering 5 channels of great television viewing in the Charlevoix area. They are, Cheboygan, Channel 4, NBC, received on Channel 2 on your television set; Traverse City, Channel 7, NBC; Cadillac, Channel 9, CBS; Flint, Channel 12, ABC; and background music with weatherboard on Channel 6.

All three major networks are carried on the system for the viewers selection with Channel 50 from Detroit, an independent network, to be offered soon. This television viewing pleasure can be had for less than 17¢ per day, less than 4¢ per channel per day.

Further information may be obtained by calling Lake Charlevoix Cable TV at 547-9426 or by dropping into the office at 109 Antrim Street.

A Supplement Devoted to Our New Cable TV System

Charlevoix's Economy Gets Boost From CATV

What happens when a community antenna TV (Cable TV) system comes to an area such as Charlevoix? One change is an economic one.

A CATV system brings a new industry to town. Lake Charlevoix Cable TV, for example, has completed a coaxial cable system of 20 miles.

The CATV system presently has five employees who are permanent residents of the area.

Annual operating expenses, exclusive of capital items, are projected to over $60,000 each year. CATV systems need real estate for administrative and technical headquarters, and warehouse space. They need vehicles and vehicles maintenance, office furniture and supplies -- all bought from local businesses.

Lake Charlevoix Cable TV has its office at 109 Antrim. Added to this is the antenna tower and headend site building located at Mount McSaba.

Substantial funds are spent in local media for advertising and promotional programs.

Once they have lived with a CATV system, community leaders recognize its value.

Mayor O. O. Allsbrook, of Wilmington, N. C., wrote to the cable company that it had been "instrumental in bringing in four outside TV stations to our area. It is my opinion," he said, "that you have rendered a great service to our city and in addition, you have created good stable employment for our city and area."

Mayor R. K. Ellings, of Wiltona, Minn., in noting added television channels brought in, and FM radio channels, said: "We've promoted CATV service in our industrial brochures."

CATV stimulates the economy of the community in other ways. Television dealers and TV servicemen enjoy an immediate boost in business.

Assured of good reception, people buy more color TV sets and second sets.

Ted Osborne, owner of Osborne's TV and Radio Service, Junction City, Kan., said: "We found that many of our customers discovered for the first time that their sets needed service, and they were no longer content with the poor quality of pictures they had been viewing."

Robert Schloesser, of Schloesser Radio Service, Pontiac, Ill., said CATV made customers realize their previous reception had not been good and that with steady signals and program variety "People become more critical of their reception."

A final economic factor: Municipalities receive income through taxes on the cable system plant. The City Electric Department receives in excess of $2,000 a year from CATV for pole rental and power usage.

CATV Policy Statement

To make the Cable TV system of maximum benefit to the community, Lake Charlevoix Cable TV has adopted certain policies. They are:

--Cable system technicians are limited to the service of the system equipment. They do not sell, lease or service television receivers or accessories. They recommend no specific dealers or service dealers. Lake Charlevoix Cable TV employees are expressly forbidden to take the back off a TV set, even on their own time. Failure to comply with this rule may result in the employee's dismissal.

--The cable system does not sell individual programs by program basis.

--Television cable service is simply "an added choice." No one is forced to subscribe, and the system does not interfere with the reception of non-subscribers. When a resident wants cable service, he simply makes out an application. He is not obligated for any specific period of time, nor does he sign a contract.

Here's How Cable TV Works

Men 'Walked' 20 Miles of Poles

How was the new community antenna TV system built? What does it take to wire up a city the size of Charlevoix? And how can it be done in a few months?

The answer: A lot of hard work. The Lake Charlevoix Cable TV company began planning the Charlevoix system more than a year ago. At that time, a comprehensive system layout was made. The engineers "walked the poles."

Walked the poles? Yes, they actually walked or rode from utility pole to utility pole, choosing those which eventually would hold cable and equipment. The next important step was to apply for the use of these poles, owned by the City of Charlevoix, Consumers Power, Michigan Bell Telephone Company, and REA.

Then it was necessary to form a two-man team—one man from Michigan Bell Telephone Co., and one from Lake Charlevoix Cable TV—to walk the system for final arrangements involving the exact cable route.

The two-man team walked the entire 20-mile system involving a total of 900 poles. Television cables must be at least one foot above telephone wires and at least 40 inches below secondary electrical lines. In some cases new poles had to be installed. The city and Abel Cable had to install 50 new poles.

Ten to 15 men working for the construction company, proceeded to attach quarter inch supporting strand—known as messenger strand—to the poles. Later, cables (as many as three or four) are connected to the strand, which supports the weight of the cables.

More than 20 miles of cable has been strung thus far, with the remainder to be completed shortly. Once the cables have been installed and spliced together, electronic equipment was placed along the line. Then, field engineers set the operating levels for each piece of equipment. Finally, customer connections were made to the cables.

homes of persons who want better television reception, and you're in business!

Unfortunately, the people in the CATV business point out, it's not quite as easy as that.

The "head-end" section of the CATV system includes antennas, preamplifiers, the tower and signals processing equipment inside a concrete antenna site building.

Most critical are the antennas. The antennas used in the Charlevoix system are the most modern available today. They are designed and manufactured by TACO, a subsidiary of the Jerrold Corp. TACO also produces America's satellite - tracking and telemetry station antennas. TACO antennas are used to help maintain contact with-orbiting astronauts.

But it's not enough to start with the finest of antennas. They must be aimed and stacked properly. The Charlevoix antennas are designed to reject undesired channels.

In most cases, as many as four antennas stacked are required for one distant TV channel. Also, when channels are weak, they must be pre-amplified by new solid-state electronic equipment. The preamplifiers used in the Charlevoix system are the Jerrold Model TPR transistor preamplifiers. From the top of the tower, the signals are sent down to the equipment site building for processing.

The channels are sent into Jerrold Channel Commander amplifiers and rigidly controls the sound and picture carriers of a single TV channel. Fluctuations of the signal that reaches the antennas are eliminated by automatic gain controls

When signals are sent through a long line of trunk line amplifiers, any minor flaw or variation becomes highly magnified. Too much signal will overload the amplifier causing what is known as "windshield wiper effect"—a dark, vertical shadow moving back and forth across the TV screen. Too little signal will cause "snow"—tiny white dots on the TV screen. The Charlevoix system will be so rigidly controlled that it will produce fine black-and-white and color TV pictures at all times and in all parts of the system.

Sincere Congratulations to

Now, at last, you're able to enjoy clear, snow-free television reception . . . bright, life-like color and crisp black-and-white pictures on every channel brought in by the community antenna system. With the cable in, you're out of the "fringe area" for good.

We think you'll be interested in the part played by Jerrold in bringing clear-vision TV to Charlevoix.

The quality of the pictures and sound you will now enjoy can never be better than that permitted by the quality of the signals placed on the cable at the head-end. The Lake Charlevoix Cable TV head-end system, completely Jerrold equipped, guarantees that these signals will be the finest obtainable. The Jerrold Channel Commanders at the head-end (one for each off-the-air channel received) provide the precise control of individual channels which enables twelve channels to be transported via cable without interchannel interference.

Your community antenna system in Charlevoix features the installation of the new Jerrold Starline Distribution System. This completely solid-state system incorporates the very latest innovations in functional design. Solid-state, as you probably know, means that there are no vacuum tubes to wear out and thus cause interruptions in your cable service. Jerrold Starline equipment, used throughout the new Charlevoix distribution system, is completely transistorized and each unit is housed in an air tight, radiation and weather-proof enclosure. The Starline is engineered to insure you maximum enjoyment of television programs on every channel, under all weather conditions.

We welcome you to the growing family of communities enjoying crystal-clear TV pictures in areas once considered "fringe areas".
Happy televiewing.

Cable TV Had Early Start

Here and there, back in those early days of TV, people reasoned: "If reception is better because I have an antenna..."

Specialists

Cable Constructors, Inc., specializes in designing and building Cable TV systems in the Midwest. During the past two years, their crews have constructed over 400 miles of cable plant in 12 different towns in Minnesota, Wisconsin, and Michigan.

In Charlevoix, over 20 miles of cable plant was built with the very latest electronic equipment. The cable is installed in the same manner as telephone trunk lines on utility poles.

Cable Constructors has its headquarters at Iron Mountain, Mich. All design work, blue - printing, and job scheduling is done from this office. Hydraulic bucket trucks were a common scene in Charlevoix during the construction.

CATV Soon in Boyne, E-J

George Baldwin, manager of Lake Charlevoix Cable TV, Inc., commented today that plant construction is progressing quite well in Boyne City and East Jordan. All CATV strand and cable has been strung and various electronic equipment is being installed at this time.

Abel Cable will furnish the same channels that are presently being offered to Charlevoix subscribers. Rates for Boyne City and East Jordan will be the same as those being charged in Charlevoix.

The "head-end" site building has been finished as have the tower bases. The tower site is located between Boyne City and East Jordan. The tower will be installed by Grasis Fabricating Company of Kansas City, Missouri and erected by September 15th.

"Head-end" equipment will be installed together with antennas after tower completion at which time the system will be aligned and placed on the air.

Mr. Baldwin said, "All potential cable subscribers should watch local newspapers for further information regarding on-the-air dates and grand opening details for both towns."

na on my roof, what would happen if I put it on top of a long, long pole?"

What happened? They got a lot better reception! So at great expense, they erected huge masts in their backyards and, lo and behold, received more stations, more clearly and sharply than anyone else in town. The reception quality and variety really impressed the neighbors--they all wanted to enjoy the same benefits. But when they were told how much the tower had cost, they decided to wait for a cheaper way. And this simple economic fact brought about the birth of a new industry.

A few people wondered if the cost problem could be solved by stringing cable from the antenna tower to other homes along the street. They tried it, and it worked! Now one antenna could bring clean, bright TV pictures and sound to several TV sets by cable. The neighbors, of course, were happy to pay a fair share of the cost--which was much less than that of an individual tower.

This was the beginning of CATV at Astoria, Oregon, in 1949 and in several towns in Pennsylvania the following year.

Those pioneer CATV systems were pretty crude, of course, by today's standards. As the industry has developed, great technological strides have been made to serve subscribers better and better. But the basic principle of service in response to public need remains the same.

Only Charlevoix Has Large Class Growth

Charlevoix is the only area school to report substantial enrollment gains.

School officials report 1,442 students were enrolled for classes at Charlevoix Monday, an increase of 136 from last September's enrollment of 1,306.

IN EAST JORDAN, 23 more students were reported in classes than were on hand for the census last September, bringing enrollment up to 1,030 this year, compared to 1,007 last year.

Ellsworth reported fewer students in classes early this week than it had last September. Only 287 students were signed up for classes, Ellsworth principal Paul Bliss said. Last September Ellsworth had 291 students and had expected that many this week.

Charlevoix Supt. Rex Milligan said elementary grades enrollment was slightly under what officials had anticipated. He said 795 students were enrolled in the grade school as of Monday, compared to 713 last year.

Charlevoix High School Principal Ray Carr reported 647 students in classes Monday, compared to 593 last year.

IN ONE GRADE, the seventh, Carr reported an increase of 31 students, with 109 enrolled Monday compared to 78 last year.

East Jordan Supt. Max Danforth reported his biggest grade is the first, with 123 students enrolled.

In contrast, East Jordan had only 50 seniors, making the first grade nearly 125% larger than the last.

Ellsworth's elementary and high school grades were almost evenly split, with 144 enrolled in elementary and 143 in the higher grades.

OK Non-Teaching Salaries

CHARLEVOIX--The school board Monday gave raises of approximately $2,000 each to its three top administrators.

The board set Supt. Rex Milligan's salary on a 12-month contract at $15,000.

HIGH SCHOOL principal Ray Carr's salary was set at $12,500 for an 11-month work year. Elementary principal Glenn Snider's salary for 10½-month contract was set at $12,000.

Administrative assistant Del Terrilli's salary was fixed at $10,500 for a 9½-month work year.

In announcing the new salaries, board trustee Darrell Dinwiddie said the board took into consideration the relative responsibilities of the individual positions.

Hatchery Has New Assignment

CHARLEVOIX--Myrl Keller has a hundred-year commitment to the Great Lakes and their fish.

FOR THE PAST two years Keller has been the Conservation Dept.'s Great Lakes survey specialist working out of Lansing.

of both sides of the gill net debate, he's fished 'em!

Myrl's family started commercial fishing on the lakes more than 100 years ago. Now Myrl, as chief of the state's new Charlevoix fisheries station, is in a position to have more influence than any man has ever had on Great Lakes fishing.

THE 32-YEAR-OLD fisheries biologist landed the much sought after Charlevoix job partially due to his background as a commercial fisherman. And it is this that may, in the long run, result in commercial fishermen labeling him the biggest Judas in their industry's history.

Myrl, his wife Joanne of Indian River and their children--four, two and seven weeks--have moved into the brick house next to the former National Fish Hatchery at the end of Grant St.

The federal government, with the city council's ok, has turned the hatchery and house over to the Conservation Dept. Though no sign is up, it is now called the Great Lakes Fisheries Station.

In late October or early November the Steelhead, a unique, all-steel, 60-foot boat will come from the T.D. Vintie shipyard in Escanaba and tie up in Round Lake. It will be the mainstay of all fisheries management efforts on the big lakes and will be under Myrl's command.

The results of surveys he conceived and had made, resulted in the current department request that gill netting be banned on the big lakes. If legislators concur, the ban will mean the end of commercial fishing. The end of a way of life for Myrl Keller's family.

Keller calmly, but inflexibly, insists the ban is in the interest of the economy and the vast majority of citizens. His studies have convinced him gill netting makes it impossible to build the desired population of salmon and steelhead trout in the big lakes.

If you want to argue the point from a biologist's notes, he's got facts to back him up. But more unnerving, he can--and readily does--know the pro and con a specialist in the Great Lakes. The Conservation Dept.'s roster of fisheries biologists boasts no others with his life-long training on the big lakes.

SO AT 32, KELLER was the only man on the state's civil service payroll with the practical experience and knowledge plus the technical training to headup the first-of-its-kind Charlevoix station.

Keller makes no bones about wanting the job. He was tired of running the department's Great Lakes survey work from a desk in Lansing.

Now that he's here, he says, "I'm going to put roots down so deep you can't get them out with a Mack truck."

These roots, though, aren't going down very fast. The big, empty, hatchery building is like a cold, big city morgue. Here and there in corners are piles of equipment. Up in the loft are stacks of gill and trawl nets--to be used by the Steelhead when she goes into business next spring.

THIS WINTER, KELLER and his assistant, fisheries biologist Lee Moffit, 43, and Steelhead skipper Bill Palmer, will spend their time trying to get the station organized.

Moffit has purchased a home in Norwood. Palmer bought a place at Island View Estates on U.S. 31. Keller and his family are comfortable in the modern

Getting Bugs Out of Plant

Medusa to Curb Odor

CHARLEVOIX--Complaints about odor from sulphur fumes from the Medusa cement plant here will end when all equipment at the plant is operating properly, manager Jim Dailey assured Charlevoixians this week.

Dailey said he is aware of the sulphur odor, but said he has heard no reports of a dust problem.

THE HEAVY PLUME of smoke from the plant's towering stack is "purely vapor," he said.

The plant has had a problem with sulphur fumes, but he said everything is being done to get equipment operating so the odorous problem can be controlled.

Mayor William Fochman, some businessmen and the Courier have heard complaints about the sulphur odor from homeowners and people stopping downtown.

Dailey also admitted a problem has developed in cooling the clinker after it comes from the kiln. This, he said, is resulting in the dust-filled smoke coming from a lower level than the smokestack. He said he was not aware the public was concerned about this.

"IT TAKES QUITE a while to settle a big plant down like this," he said.

Much of the equipment at the plant is the first of its kind ever put in use anywhere, he explained. It is going to take time and trial-and-error before the equipment is functioning properly and men know how to operate it.

When the plant is operating correctly, he said, only steam--containing no odor or dust--will escape from the stack. During some atmospheric conditions, he said, the steam will not be visible.

THE STEELHEAD HAVE started their run into Lake Charlevoix. Tom Dembinsky of 308 Clinton, a Coast Guardsman, caught this eight-pound beauty Sunday with a Mepps spinner while fishing from the Railroad bridge. It is the second he caught in less than a week.

Power Line Kills C-L Fireman

CENTRAL LAKE--Volunteer fireman James Davis, 36, was killed Monday and another, Roy Helevin, 37, is unconscious and in serious condition at Little Traverse Hospital following an electrical fire.

Fire Chief Jack Bosworth reported the department was called to a house fire at 410 p.m. which apparently started when a TV antenna touched a Consumers Power line.

Bosworth said when firemen arrived at the home, he instructed his men to stay away from the line. He said that either the two men misunderstood or didn't see the line and ran into it.

Bosworth said Consumers Power was contacted to shut the power off, but it was about 55 minutes before the power was shut off.

"Davis' life might have been saved if the power was cut sooner," Bosworth said.

Consumers Power area supervisor Bob Hilly in Traverse City confirmed it was 55 minutes before the power was cut.

"AFTER RECEIVING the call, we sent a man out immediately," he said.

He said the lines were cut as soon as possible, which was 55 minutes.

"We're very concerned about what happened, but there are other factors involved," he added.

He said firemen are trained to know that "energized lines just shouldn't be touched."

Davis, owner of the Viking Thrift Market, was taken to Inten-Heliet Funeral Home here. He was on the department for a year and a half.

City Balks at Winter Meters

CHARLEVOIX--Charlevoix last week almost took one of the big steps toward becoming a "big city."

Councilmen seriously discussed keeping parking meters up past Sept. 15. The move was scrapped, though, as being a little too radical.

MAYOR BILL Fochman and councilman Jerry Whitley and Del Terrilli pointed out downtown parking has become a problem during the "off-season."

City Supt. Jim Taylor, however, pointed out keeping the meters up would double snow removal costs on Bridge St.

Councilmen decided to see how serious a downtown parking problem the city has this winter and reconsider the idea next year.

The meters will come down on or about Sept. 15.

Air Show Program Outlined

CHARLEVOIX--The expected 2,000 spectators at Sunday's Fly-In will be treated to an airborne aerobatic act, parachutists, jet planes and airplane rides.

The Charlevoix Flying Club's Fly-In chairman, Robert Hoffman, has developed a complete schedule for the day-long event at Charlevoix's Municipal Airport.

THE AIR SHOW starts at 10:30 a.m. Sept. 17 when Larry Carmidy of Flushing will put on a half-hour aerobatics demonstration in his Cessna airplane.

Following at 11 will be parachutists, who will attempt to hit a designated spot on their airport runway.

Carmidy is expected to repeat his aerobatic stunts at 12:30 and the jumpers will be back at 1:30. In between--about 1 p.m.--at least two Air Force jets will swoop low over the field.

Airplane rides will be available from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Riders will be charged 1½ cents for every pound they weight.

OTHER HIGHLIGHTS of the Fly-In include breakfast at the Port St. James sales office across from the airport, with serving starting at dawn.

More than 100 private airplanes from throughout the state and other states are expected to fly-in, Hoffman said.

THIS PITTS homemade stunt plane is one of several unique planes expected at Sunday's Fly-In.

E-J Council Acts on Trailers

EAST JORDAN --- Councilmen approved two amendments to the zoning ordinance aimed at restricting the use of house trailers.

The council last week approved an amendment making it illegal for new trailers to permanently occupy R-4 (resort) zoned property.

THE OTHER amendment opened A-1 (agricultural) zoned property to "prefabricated (mobile) homes for use as permanent homes."

In mid-July the council passed a five-page comprehensive building code with strict regulations mobile homes must measure up to. The amendments passed Tuesday were part of the package, along with the building code, aimed at regulating mobile home construction and placement in the city.

The council also moved to furnish fire service and respond to fire calls in Echo, Jordan, Wilson, South Arm and Eveline Townships. Although the fire department has furnished the service in the past, it was never written in the city's minutes.

COUNCILMEN said the purpose of the written proposal was to lower fire insurance rates for persons living in these townships.

The Council will hold a special meeting Thursday evening, Sept. 14.

WE MUST SEEK THE TRUTH

Constantly in search of the TRUTH the scientist takes nothing for granted. Each "hearsay", each theory, is tested and tried and accepted or discarded on the condition that it proves true or false. The true scientist never jumps to conclusions, consequently you will never hear him proclaiming the self-sufficiency of man—that man needs no spiritual power.

The Church is also a center for the search and dispensation of truth in things other than the material, the things one cannot discern by the physical senses. If each of us would be free we must know the truth and if each of us is active in the work of the church that fits our needs "We Shall Know the Truth and the Truth Shall Make Us Free."

At Last! Cabbages and Things

By Carole Walasky

Finally, my parents, it took a lot of crazy moves and ingenuity, but I made it. My parents are ecstatic over the news — especially my father who is still paying the bills I charged last Christmas.

My parents were beginning to think they'd never get rid of me. Besides being an economic drain on them, I was getting embarrassing for them to tell their friends, "Oh no, she's not married yet."

THERE WAS a time when my dad would tell any boy I happened to bring home that he would furnish and hold the ladder if the boy would take me off their hands.

When that didn't work, he switched to cut and out bribery. He'd offer my boyfriends $1,000 if they'd marry me immediately. He also told the poor souls they'd lost $100 for every year they waited.

When I was a teenager, my dad would embarrass the daylights out of me with those clever sayings. However, as I got older I began to see that they were the only way.

ACTUALLY, though, my parents would have been my ears in if I married before I was through college and out working for awhile. I'm glad they took that position with me too.

Not only has my personality changed drastically since I was a teenager — from a nice, shy, quiet girl to a loud mouth.

Shapton - Smith Rites Held in East Lansing

Miss Patricia Ann Shapton became the bride of Joseph Dwight Smith Saturday afternoon at the University Methodist Church in East Lansing.

Rev. John Paul solemnized the double ring ceremony.

THE BRIDE is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Shapton of Lansing and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Smith of Charlevoix.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a wedding gown worn by her mother 25 years ago. The gown was of white silk organza featuring insets of tulle lace and a chapel train. She carried a cascade arrangement of white roses, chrysanthemums and lily.

Matron of honor was Mrs. James Kot of Flint, sister of the bride.

On second thought — when was that wedding date?

Following a reception given by the bride's parents at the Lake Country Club, the couple left for a wedding trip in Northern Michigan.

They will live at Michigan State University this fall while the bride is a junior and the groom is a senior.

Special guests at the wedding included Mrs. Bonnie Nicholson of Charlevoix, grandmother of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Shapton of Charlevoix, grandparents of the bride.

Other guests came from Traverse City, Detroit, Grand Rapids, Roseville and Okemos.

Council Cannot Help Cut Freedman's Costs

COURIER — City Commission last week decided there is nothing they can do to help Freedman's costs.

The council approved the increase of property damage coverage from last year's $50,000 to $25,000 policy to a $25,000 to $50,000 policy.

The increased coverage will cost approximately $50.

Council accepted Max Novak's lone bid on the city's complete insurance coverage. The total premium will be $7,222.

Major Bill Fochtman explained the city does not have the construction grant or loan programs because it does not have a master plan. He said the Planning Commission will probably include increased water service to the southern edge of the city (Freedman's) is located at the airport when it completes its master plan.

But, Fochtman made it clear he sees "no immediate hope" for water system improvements in the area.

"In my opinion the problem is Freedman's costs," Fochtman added.

TUNING to other issues, the council put off a decision until Sept. 18 on whether it wants to purchase the Baptist Church next to City Hall and how much it will pay if it does.

Freedman, in a letter to the council, outlined several programs under which federal grants and loans for water system improvements are available to cities.

Up Insurance

CHARLEVOIX — Due to a reported trend by courts to award higher damages in property damage cases, the City Council has more than doubled its insurance coverage.

Island Airport Signal Set Up

BEAVER ISLAND — The long-awaited aviation radio direction beacon (beacon device) was installed at the airport here last week.

Chamber Chat

BY WALLY LOGER
CHAMBER MANAGER

CHARLEVOIX--At the regular meeting of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors many items and topics were discussed. Ideas and further study called for before decisions are made at the next meeting Oct. 3.

A nominating committee was appointed, consisting of Ron Peterson, John Michael and Ken Empey, to nominate six candidates for the three seats to be filled on the board. Leaving the board at the end of their terms are Michael, Empey and Peterson.

I HAVE STARTED making personal contact with Chamber members and potential members in an effort to narrow the gap that was allowed to develop. We also plan to improve our communications with members and the public.

All the Chamber needs to succeed is a fair chance and reasonable cooperation.

Exploring Quaint E-J Store

It's Real Exciting Adventure

EAST JORDAN — Malpass Hardware looks normal enough from the outside.

It's a red brick and frame building decorated with white trim. It looks old like any other store in East Jordan.

But just open the door.

IT'S A VIRTUAL haven for people interested in buying a butcher's scale, an iron tube, a sewing machine, an April 15, 1965 copy of "Presbyterian Life" or a tweed suit. While he's there, a customer might also pick up a hulaup or two.

If a shopper doesn't find what he wants in this store, it just doesn't exist.

Owner, Charlie Malpass, a delightfully witty and sharp man, greets his queering customers at the store with, "Oh, I know just what you're looking for." And somehow in the three roomed store piled to the ceiling with everything from dolls or pews, he manages to pull out what they're looking for.

Although the store now deals in used items, 85-year-old Charlie first began his trade 67 years ago selling new goods. He's always stuck to the "general store" type business. Even in 1900 people would see him for anything from clothes to a carriage.

"DURING the depression," he explained, "I just couldn't make a go of it with new goods and switched over to used goods. People started bringing me in their things to sell and pretty soon I found myself with a second hand store."

CHARLIE MALPASS

Although a first-time customer to the store is overwhelmed by the reduction of goods and loss of items piled high and white, Charlie does keep some semblance of order in the store.

One room with chairs nailed to the ceiling and the old brass beds and old photographs is called "the furniture room." The next room with tools on top of toolsheds is a board and tool piled to the ceiling at one end is called appropriately "the tool room."

Moving through the narrow door to the north, a customer finds "the general room," where everything that doesn't fit into the furniture and tool category.

IN THE general room, Charlie naturally has a supply of books ranging from "Treasure Island" to "Treasure Island."

Charlie, who knows his own mind, has his opinion about one of his favorite books. "It was a good old-fashioned medical book. When you were a something wrong with me I'd look it up in the book and see what it was and what I should do. It always worked too — after all I am 85," he said.

He went on, "Then one day it was gone. I don't know who happened to it; it just disappeared."

"I SENT AWAY for another book through a catalog store, but it wasn't any good. All it did was tell me to go to the doctor. I could have saved myself $2 and done that myself," he quipped.

Charlie enjoys running his store and meeting the people who wander in. But he hopes to sell it soon and retire. "I've been working since I was 12 and I'm kind of tired of it. I have a few things that I want to do and I'd like to spend my time looking after my own yard."

And if he or Malpass's store will always be remembered as an East Jordan landmark.

Hospital Staff Hard Pressed

City Needs More Doctors

CHARLEVOIX — Charlevoix Hospital and city officials are urgently trying to bring two more doctors to town.

Charlevoix's need for more doctors is reported near the critical point by Hospital Board Director Fred Willis and Mayor Bill Fochtman.

Complicating the situation is the temporary absence of Dr. Larry Grate, who is on vacation in Hawaii for several months.

This leaves only Drs. John Lignell, Robert Martin and Gilbert Sathornal at Charlevoix Hospital. According to Willis, the three doctors have been working exhaustive hours trying to keep up with the patient load.

A general increase of population due to Medusa and overall economic conditions has added to the pressure on the doctors.

Dr. Howard Messmore operates a limited practice and does not work at Charlevoix Hospital.

The city's three doctors, Mayor Fochtman said, simply cannot continue the pace they are now setting and cannot serve all of the community's medical needs.

Fochtman said he does not know what has to be done to recruit a couple more doctors. The city, he added, is prepared to do anything it can to help the Hospital Board of Directors in the effort.

Willis said the board has advertised in medical journals for an internist and a surgeon. There have been several responses to the ads, he said, but no takers.

MOST DOCTORS responding to the advertisements, he said, are young, recent graduates. Several, he added, felt Charlevoix is too small a community.

None of the doctors interviewed, he said, have had any qualms about the quality of the hospital, the completeness of its equipment or financing to purchase their own office equipment.

The Hospital has two vacant offices in its recently constructed clinic building. These, Willis said, would be rented to new doctors for about $200 a month.

If a qualified young physician should desire to settle here, but needed financial help, Willis said he is confident it could be arranged.

WILLIS SAID one of the board's concerns is that the hospital is being used for less than capacity. Hospital usage, he said, ranges from 5% to 60% of capacity.

Eighty-percent usage is desired to keep the hospital on sound financial footing, he added.

Due to the shortage of doctors, Willis said, many Charlevoix people are going to Petoskey. Once this habit is firmly established, he fears these people will be reluctant to return to Charlevoix doctors, even if more move to town.

Dr. Robert S. Libke, district public health director, said all area communities except Petoskey are in need of doctors. Boyne City, with a population equal to Charlevoix's, has no doctors.

Dr. Libke said doctors are hard to attract to small communities.

Council Vacancy Unfilled

CHARLEVOIX — A replacement for Councilman Delbert R. Terrill, 49, will be appointed at the Council's Monday, Oct. 2 meeting, Mayor Bill Fochtman said.

Fochtman said no decision as to Terrill's replacement had been made in time for action at this week's council meeting. The council can appoint any qualified Third Ward voter to replace Terrill.

Terrill resigned from his Third Ward council seat for business reasons. As administrator at Charlevoix High School, he was serving his second term on the council.

TERRILL, his wife Eleanor and their three children live on East St. They have lived here 14 years.

In resigning Terrill told councilmen he feels they are moving in the right direction.

He called for more stringent enforcement of the city's junk and ordinance, urged that city tennis courts be constructed and a fall and spring recreation program be started to fill the gaps between the summer and winter programs.

Terrill also recommended that the city extend its water lines to Boulder Park subdivision (on Lake Michigan past the Hospital in Charlevoix Township).

If a year-round water supply were available in Boulder Park, Terrill said, it would open up some much needed housing.

At Monday's council meeting Mrs. Edward Vogler "volunteered" to accept the appointment to the vacancy left by Terrill's resignation.

Fochtman said he has had several other "volunteers."

Emmet County, however, has shown a marked increase of syphilis, with eight cases reported, compared to four all last year.

District Health Dept. Director Dr. Robert S. Libke, who released the figures, said he had not been aware of how out of proportion the 21 Charlevoix County gonorrhea cases are when compared to other years and neighboring counties.

Venereal Disease Reaches New High for Charlevoix

Venereal disease increased nearly 300% in Charlevoix County in the first nine months of this year, according to statistics from the State Health Dept.

Department reports show there were 21 cases of gonorrhea in the county from Jan. 1 to Sept. 1, 1967. During all of last year eight cases were reported.

STATISTICS for Emmet County show an increased number of cases of the disease, but considerably less than in Charlevoix County. Through Sept. 1 Emmet County doctors reported seven gonorrhea cases, compared to four all last year. No increase is indicated in Antrim and Ogemaw Counties.

Charlevoix County has reported only one syphilis case so far this year. Seven were reported last year.

Emmet County, however, has shown a marked increase of syphilis, with eight cases reported, compared to four all last year.

District Health Dept. Director Dr. Robert S. Libke, who released the figures, said he had not been aware of how out of proportion the 21 Charlevoix County gonorrhea cases are when compared to other years and neighboring counties.

He credits the decrease to the public measles immunization clinics.

Tuberculosis has shown an apparent increase, with three cases reported so far in the county, compared to one case all last year.

He realizes Charlevoix has a humiliating slum ghetto in the southwest corner of town. He doesn't know how to clear it up. But it concerns him.

THERE MAY BE other such pockets of misery in the four-county health district (Charlevoix, Antrim, Ogemaw and Emmet counties), but if there are his nurses aren't as familiar with them.

Old methods of dealing with these problems haven't worked, he frankly points out. If they had, he explains, the same families would not be involved generation after generation.

Though his department's proposed budget for next year is $155,968, it is spread over four counties.

In an ironical health (pollution, land use, food handling and related matters), Dr. Libke has only two men working. To adequately do the job it has been argued one or more is needed in each county.

THROUGHOUT THE four counties there are only 16 persons on the department staff, and this includes three part-time clerks in offices at Petoskey, Bellaire and

Banker Selling Stock

CHARLEVOIX — A major ownership shift and addition of five new directors at the Charlevoix State Savings Bank was announced Tuesday by bank president Archie L. Livingston.

Livingston, who has been with the banking firm since 1913, said he will remain as president and no management changes are anticipated.

THOMAS A. DUKE of Farmington is purchasing Livingston's majority interest in the bank over a four year period, Livingston said. Duke, he said, has been elected chairman of the bank's board of directors. He is also chairman of the Board of Metropolitan National Bank of Farmington.

Also added to the bank's board of directors—with the authorization of stockholders at a special meeting—were four of Duke's associates, Joseph T. Brennan, William M. Skilman, Eldon Henderson and Jerald Redeker.

Livingston, 77, said the change will allow him to gradually move into retirement, after more than 57 years of Michigan banking, 54 of those years in Charlevoix.

CITIZENS who wish may submit their opinions and information as written, instead of oral, statements.

Charlevoix commercial fishermen and their families report they have been compiling information to submit at the hearing. They have asked for support at the hearing from other area residents.

The Conservation Dept. claims gill netting makes it impossible to build a desirable trout and salmon sport fishery in the Great Lakes. The value of sport fishing to the economy, the department argues, is several times greater than commercial fishing.

COMMERCIAL FISHERMEN contend regulated commercial fishing is compatible with sport fishing. They point out the department is attempting to put them out of business and that no compromise is offered.

According to Welch, Troy Yoder, regional department chief, will conduct the hearing. What other department officials will attend is unknown.

Other hearings in northern Lower Michigan are being held Sept. 25 in Bay City, Sept. 26 in Alpena and Sept. 28 in Marquette.

Mrs. Ralph Dean learned this the easy way—with one 40-word ad announcing her back yard sale at 308 Meach St. on Friday and Saturday.

IT'S A LONG WAY to the top of the Charlevoix Community Chest's $14,670 goal, Jim Williams, left, professional division chairman; John Lachman, industrial division chairman and Glenn Kenney, right, commercial division, point out as they launch their division drives. Nearly 25% of the goal has already been reached, though, with the $3,500 raised by the special gifts and summer business division.

Hearing on Gill Net Ban Here Wednesday

CHARLEVOIX — The Conservation Dept. will hold a public hearing here next Wednesday, Sept. 27, on its proposal to outlaw use of gill nets by commercial fishermen.

The hearing starts at 8 p.m. in the high school gym, according to department regional information chief Charles Welch.

WELCH SAID ALL interested persons will be allowed to express their views. Limits will probably be set on the amount of time given each speaker, he said.

Athletic Fund Has $3,212 Left

CHARLEVOIX--As of June 30 the Charlevoix High School athletic fund had $3,212 in the bank.

The annual school audit shows the fund took in $9,246 during the school year and spent $6,034. At the end of the previous school year the fund had a balance of $3,001.

The band fund during 1966-67 collected $2,252 and spent $2,492, using a portion of the fund.

With this information in hand Keller and his assistants will be able to tell fishermen how and where to catch fish.

Fisheries experts will use the information to determine what kind of fish should be planted, where they should be planted, how many should be planted, etc.

Michigan has never had such information.

Hayes Township was assessed the biggest share of taxes, $103,793 (Due to Big Rock Nuclear Plant), $98,900 in taxes were levied in the City of Charlevoix; $25,646 in Charlevoix Township; $14,616 in Marion Township; $9,924 in Norwood Township; $677 in Banks Township (Antrim County); and $77 in Eveline Township.

Hot Lunches Cost $40,793

CHARLEVOIX--It cost $40,793 to feed hot lunches to students in Charlevoix schools during the last school year, according to the just-finished audit.

Food was the biggest item, costing $27,619. The kitchen help was paid $12,021.

THE SCHOOL took in $41,462 during the year, giving the hot lunch fund a year-end balance of $669. Students paid $31,903 for lunches. The federal government contributed $8,178. Another $1,365 was collected from adults.

Locals Mrs. Lucille Cunningham, Mrs. Anna Warner and Mrs. Betty Burns have returned from Rochester, Minn. where they visited Mrs. Frieda Stewart and daughter, Jill, who is a patient at the Mayo hospital.

CHARLEVOIX--The new Charlevoix Great Lakes Fisheries Station is not, as many people think, in the research business, its chief, Myrl Keller, explains.

The station's primary mission, Keller points out, is developing information and programs for Great Lakes "fisheries management."

THIS, HE EXPLAINS, means that the station's boat, the not-yet-completed 60-foot Steelhead, will use its trawl and gill netting gear and trolling rigs to take samples of various species of fish. Biologists will determine from these what the fish are eating, how they are growing, etc.

The station's primary mission, Keller points out, is developing information and programs for Great Lakes "fisheries management."

500 Take Rides

Fly-In a Success

CHARLEVOIX -- An estimated 500 persons showed up for Sunday's Fly-In sponsored by the Charlevoix Flying Club, according to chairman Bob Hoffman.

Hoffman said nearly 500 persons paid 15¢ a pound to take rides on the small air-planes used. Passengers were taken up for a brief aerial view of Charlevoix and the area.

FLYING THE planes were four commercially rated pilots--Frank Sheldon, Ray Wood, Jack Fels and Tom Rowe.

Rowe works for Phillips Flying Service of Harbor Springs and was used for the Fly-In after Mayor Bill Fochtman decided passengers could be flown only by pilots with commercial ratings.

Fochtman did not learn about the Fly-In until last week. When he did he immediately called a conference with club members and made plans for use of commercial pilots to insure safety.

Hoffman said the several antique and home-built planes expected to attend the Fly-In could not make it due to poor weather conditions in most of the state. While Charlevoix had clear skies, Polish Air-Port was reporting poor visibility.

Other prize winners were Mrs. Donald McGehee, Mrs. Robert Miller, Mr. Dave Patrie, Earl Wilson, Central Lake, Mrs. Eleanor Curtis, Mr. Bert Staley, Mrs. Little Fisher, W. J. Simons, Birmingham, Mitchell, Leonard Simon, Petoskey, Randy Gustafson, Mrs. Joe Liston, Olean, York, Ann Arbor, Maurice Wallace, Duluth, Richard Edwards, Ann Arbor, Ray Garlinghouse, Boyne City, Kirk Talbot, Detroit, Pat Blom, Darrell Dinwiddie, Jerry Left, Dorothy Koller, Jim Smith, Larry Edwards, Yonkers, Howard, Charles Bennett, Elia Peters, May Hoffman, Petoskey, Bud Kio, Betty Parsons, Mrs. Charles Struthers, Ruth Harris, Gene Farley, James Elkins, Kenneth Collier, Kenneth Collier, Buff, Hess, R. THEIR FIRST AIRPLANE ride was a thrill many of the youngsters who took to the air for 15¢ a pound at Sunday's Charlevoix Fly-In will remember for years. Some of the more than estimated 500 persons who took advantage of the plane rides got off at the end of their ride here.

In 5 years you can save over $140.00 with a new Gas dryer.

Work it out for yourself! It takes less than 2¢ to dry a load of clothes with Gas. And you can dry 5 loads in a Gas dryer for the cost of drying 1 with electricity.

Based on the number of loads an average family dries, there's a saving of $28 or more a year--$140 in 5 years. Your Gas dryer can actually pay for itself in 5 years with the money saved in operating costs.

There are no hidden expenses, either. Installation is free. Maintenance comes to less than 20¢ a year, on the average (or the amount you can save on a few loads).

No wonder 7 out of 10 families that now have dryers have Gas dryers. Money aside, Gas clothes loads up to 10 minutes faster so you can get more loads through in a day. Clothes come out fresh, soft and looking like new, including all your permanent press things.

Gas makes the big difference... costs less, too. Not just for 5 years, either, but as long as you use it. See the latest dryer models at dealer or Gas Company showrooms.

Isn't it time you bought her a new Gas dryer?

Post Office Here Marks 100th Year

Postal Services Day, September 27, will highlight the services offered to the community by the local post office, according to Postmaster Dan Genelt.

On Postal Services Day, letter carriers will begin delivering to every household a kit of eight postal cards which can be mailed back to the post office to obtain the ZIP Codes for "zipless" addresses.

Each completed card will be sent to the post office which services the address needing a ZIP Code. There the proper five-digit number will be added before the form is returned to the sender. No postage will be needed on the cards.

Last year approximately 700 addresses were ZIP coded by the Charlevoix Post Office during a similar program.

Postal Services Day activities will be designed to point out that the Post Office Department is the one federal agency that comes in direct contact with the public on a day-in-day-out basis. During the afternoon of Postal Services Day, Thursday, September 27 the Charlevoix Post Office will hold an open house for any persons interested in viewing the operations of mail handling and other activities.

Genelt said the Charlevoix Post Office this year is marking its 100th year of public service, having started in 1867. During this 100-year 14 different Postmasters have served the public. Bureau delivery was started in 1903 and city delivery was established in 1912.

Other Post Offices which were in the area at Norwood, Phelps, Burgess and Belmont were have been transferred to the Charlevoix delivery area, and more recently Ironton and

Jammed Classrooms Crowd in on Board

CHARLEVOIX — With jammed and improvised classrooms a reality, the school board is moving to place a building bond issue before voters this fall.

Board Pres. Glenn Kenney reports the board feels it must get a bond issue approved within the next few weeks so construction can begin in the spring. Even with a spring start, by a late fall, the new classrooms would not be ready until fall 1969.

SINCE 1960 when the new high school was built, the school district's enrollment has increased by 487 students (nearly 50%). In 1960 total enrollment was 954. This year it is 1,441.

This year alone, enrollment has increased by 130 students. Last year the district had 1,302 students.

To meet the pressure, the school is spilling over into other buildings for classrooms and improving classrooms in school areas designed for other uses.

A preliminary estimate of school building needs has been submitted by an architect.

THEY CALL FOR construction of a 29-classroom grade school for grades kindergarten through fourth, on the school's new 25-acre site on Division ave., conversion of the present elementary school into a "middle grades" school for fifth through eighth graders and expansion of the high school.

Total cost estimates are $1.76 million.

The board, however, intends to examine the architect's proposal to see if some areas can be eliminated until a later date, Kenney explained.

To meet the pupil explosion in the lower grades this year one sixth grade class is being held in the Community Reformed Church, one in City Hall and another in the former shop of the elementary school.

REMEDIAL READING is being taught in the former coach's office of the elementary school, the old paint room is being used for a library and materials center, a third grade class and special education class are being taught in the old shower room.

At the high school, the cafeteria is being used for three algebra classes, an advanced speech class and two health classes.

Latin is being taught in the band and home economics room. U.S. history classes are using three different rooms. The commercial room is being used for English four hours a day.

If more room were available, Supt. Rex Milligan reports the high school and junior high curriculum would be expanded.

New Curbs OK'd for Bridge St.

CHARLEVOIX — New curbing will probably be installed from the bridge to Antrim St. on the west side of Bridge St.

City Council Monday gave tentative authorization for the new curbing. City Manager Jim Taylor recommended it. Taylor said the city has been making temporary patches in the curb for years.

THE NEW CURB will be installed when sidewalks torn up for electric lines for the downtown district's new lights are replaced.

Taylor estimated the cost of replacing the sidewalk and the curb at $2.95 a foot, compared to sixty-cents for replacing only the sidewalk. He said there is about 1,000 feet of curb involved.

By taking out the curb and replacing it, Taylor said, less of the sidewalk will have to be torn out.

Mayor Bill Fochtman said he is concerned because some newer sidewalks in town are not holding up, while some poured in 1909 are still in good condition.

THE COUNCIL also said it has tentatively agreed to pay the Boyne City Ambulance Service a $25-a-month subsidy to keep an ambulance in Charlevoix. The company is also asking the county to subsidize its ambulance here another $25 monthly.

Fochtman said the company would not give the city a long-term contract unless $100 a month is paid.

The council Monday transferred $20,000 from the electric fund to certificates of deposit.

THE BEACH HOTEL, one of Charlevoix's few remaining landmarks from the era of booming summer hotels, comes down. Owned by Henry Hogan, the decaying hotel at the west end of Dixon may be replaced by a modern resort facility.

BILL YOUNG empties some of the thousands of bluegills poisoned in Fox Lake on Beaver Island into a bucket. The dead bluegills and mud minnows littered the top of the 80-acre lake, which the department put to death so it can plant rainbow trout next spring. Only a few of the tiny gills were netted. The rest are expected to be eaten by predators and disappear within two weeks.

A 700-POUND barrel of rotenone poison is rolled onto one of the small boats used to poison Fox Lake. Struggling to maneuver the big load from left, Dorance Brege, Bill Young and Jim Copeland. The poison, a truck and two boats were taken to Beaver Island on the ferry.

COPELAND POINTS to dying fish as they come gasping to the surface among the lilly pads shortly after getting a lethal dose of the deadly poison.

A MILKY STREAM of deadly rotenone poison strings out behind one of the two Conservation Dept. boats spreading it in Fox Lake. The poison affected only fish. One part of poison was mixed to every million parts of water in the lake. The boats crisscrossed the isolated, wilderness lake for several hours to get the poison well mixed in.

State Murders 'em All

Choking Death for Fish

BEAVER ISLAND — It was murder. Just plain murder!

No. Worse than that, it was total mass extermination. And it was legal.

A Conservation Dept. killer squad killed every fish in Fox Lake.

AND NOT A single person witnessing the dying gasps of the thousands of tiny bluegills and mud minnows whose bodies littered the top of the lake shed a tear.

The bluegills and minnows were condemned to a choking death because they had unwittingly contributed to making the lake unfit for the 1,500 to 2,000 brook trout the Conservation Dept. used to plant every spring.

That the brook trout had become virtually extinct in the lake was proven. The 220 gallons of deadly rotenone poison the amiable, outdoor-loving killer squad pumped into the lake only turned up two brook trout.

Squad leader Jim Copeland, the department's area fish biologist out of Indian River, figured at least as many brook trout sank to the bottom as turned up on the surface. Measuring there probably weren't more than a half-dozen squatefish left in Fox Lake.

BEFORE THE poisoning started, Copeland estimated the total brookie population: "Oh, if there's a half dozen left it'll be a lot."

His prediction was borne out.

Gill lice and competition with the bluegills had changed the lake, making it no longer desirable for the delicate brook trout.

But the two trout that did get an overdose of poison were beautiful specimens; the kind northern Michiganers seldom see anymore.

ONE WAS A 14 1/2 inchers with a deep belly and brilliant orange lower sides and sparkling spots. The other, a 16 inchers, was lean and had shimmering silver sides.

Because the rotenone poison only affects the fish by getting in their gills and suffocating them, they were still edible. Copeland had them cleaned so his five man crew could fry them in the Conservation Dept.'s field office bank shack at St. James that night. The meal was so pink it was almost red.

This spring the department will replace the lake's brook trout with a planting of 2,500 young rainbow trout.

The 'bows, Copeland said, will be legal size by the opening of trout season in late April. By next fall they will be 12-15 inches long.

WHERE BROOK trout reached a maximum of about two pounds in Fox Lake, Copeland said the rainbows will get up to five pounds.

The big item in favor of the 'bows is their relative immunity to gill lice. The quarter-inch long, grayish transparent worm-like parasites favor brooks and seldom bother 'bows, Copeland explained.

The gill lice, he pointed out, are natural residents of many lakes. As in Fox Lake, they didn't start showing up until after the lake was first poisoned in 1961 to kill-off all other fish and the brook trout planted.

Fishermen who want to make notes for next spring's rainbow fishing on Fox Lake are advised by Copeland to wait until the surface water temperature reaches about 60 degrees. That's when 'bows start feeding. (Brooks starting feeding at about 55 degrees.)

THE BEST ANGLING techniques in the spring will be nightcrawlers and spinners and trolling with power-balls. During fly hatches, Copeland figures flyrodders will do ok.

Special liberalized seasons are planned for Fox Lake District fisheries chief Bob Drummond reports. In the past the lake has been closed to fall and winter fishing. From now on it will be open.

The rainbows, like the brooks, will not spawn in the lake. So they will be restocked each spring or fall. Those which survive from year to year will provide tackle-testing sport.

Copeland anticipates the department will have to re-poison Fox Lake every few years. He doesn't know how often, to eliminate bluegills and other creatures that are not compatible in a lake being managed strictly for trout fishing.

LAST WEEK'S hopefully total kill of all fish in the lake does not mean the Conservation Dept. can keep the lake completely restricted to trout.

Someone, he points out, planted, probably a bucket or so of bluegills in the lake no more than four years ago, which multiplied into the thousands killed last week. This he determined by examining the biggest of the bluegills killed by the poison. The oldest (about six inches long) weren't more than four years old.

The lake was first poisoned six years ago. Which means the bluegills killed this time did not come from bluegills that were in the lake then, but which were not killed.

IN SOME AREAS the bluegills—varying from half-inch fry to the six-inchers, virtually blanketed the top of the lake.

Copeland said turtles (and the lake has some monstrous big turtles), raccoons, birds, mink and other predators will eliminate all evidence of the kill. Within two weeks, he said, you won't be able to find a single dead fish on or along the lake.

The poison will not harm non-fish creatures—such as frogs, turtles, birds, people, etc. It only acts on things that breathe through gills.

To get the 80-acre lake thoroughly saturated with the poison, Copeland's crew used 220 gallons of the stuff. That's about one part poison to a million parts of water, he explained.

By using a hose to pump it underwater, the poison sought out fish even in the lake's deepest spot—about 29 feet.

Copeland said the poison will wear off in two weeks.

BIOLOGIST JIM Copeland with the only remaining proof that there ever were brook trout in Fox Lake. These fish, and maybe three or four others that still lived in Fox Lake, were killed by the poison. The two beauties he's showing off to a boatload of his killer squad measured 14 1/2 and 16 inches.

WE MUST SEEK THE TRUTH

Constantly in search of the TRUTH the scientist takes nothing for granted. Each "hearsay", each theory, is tested and tried and accepted or discarded on the condition that it proves true or false. The true scientist never jumps to conclusions, consequently you will never hear him proclaiming the self-sufficiency of man—that man needs no spiritual power.

The Church is also a center for the search and dispensation of truth in things other than the material, the things one cannot discern by the physical senses. If each of us would be free we must know the truth and if each of us is active in the work of the church that fits our needs "We Shall Know the Truth and the Truth Shall Make Us Free."

Ellsworth Mine Supplies Medusa Plant

ELLSWORTH — Medusa's Charlevoix Cement plant receives between 1,200 and 1,500 tons of shale a day from its open pit mine near Ellsworth.

The 140 acre mine, being mined by Contractor Joe Smith of Alma, has been open about seven weeks, with operations scheduled to continue far into the future.

"SO FAR WE'VE only dug out about two acres of the shale and we still have to dig down about three feet beneath the floor," Smith said.

A specially equipped 70-ton bulldozer with a concave scoop digs out the shale. The bulldozer pushes the shale to the bottom where a steam shovel picks it up and dumps it into waiting trucks.

Each of the six 50 ton trucks makes the 14 mile trip from the mine to Medusa about five times daily.

On a dry day, the dust is thick and heavy. On a rainy day the shale is slippery, almost like wet clay, and hard to handle.

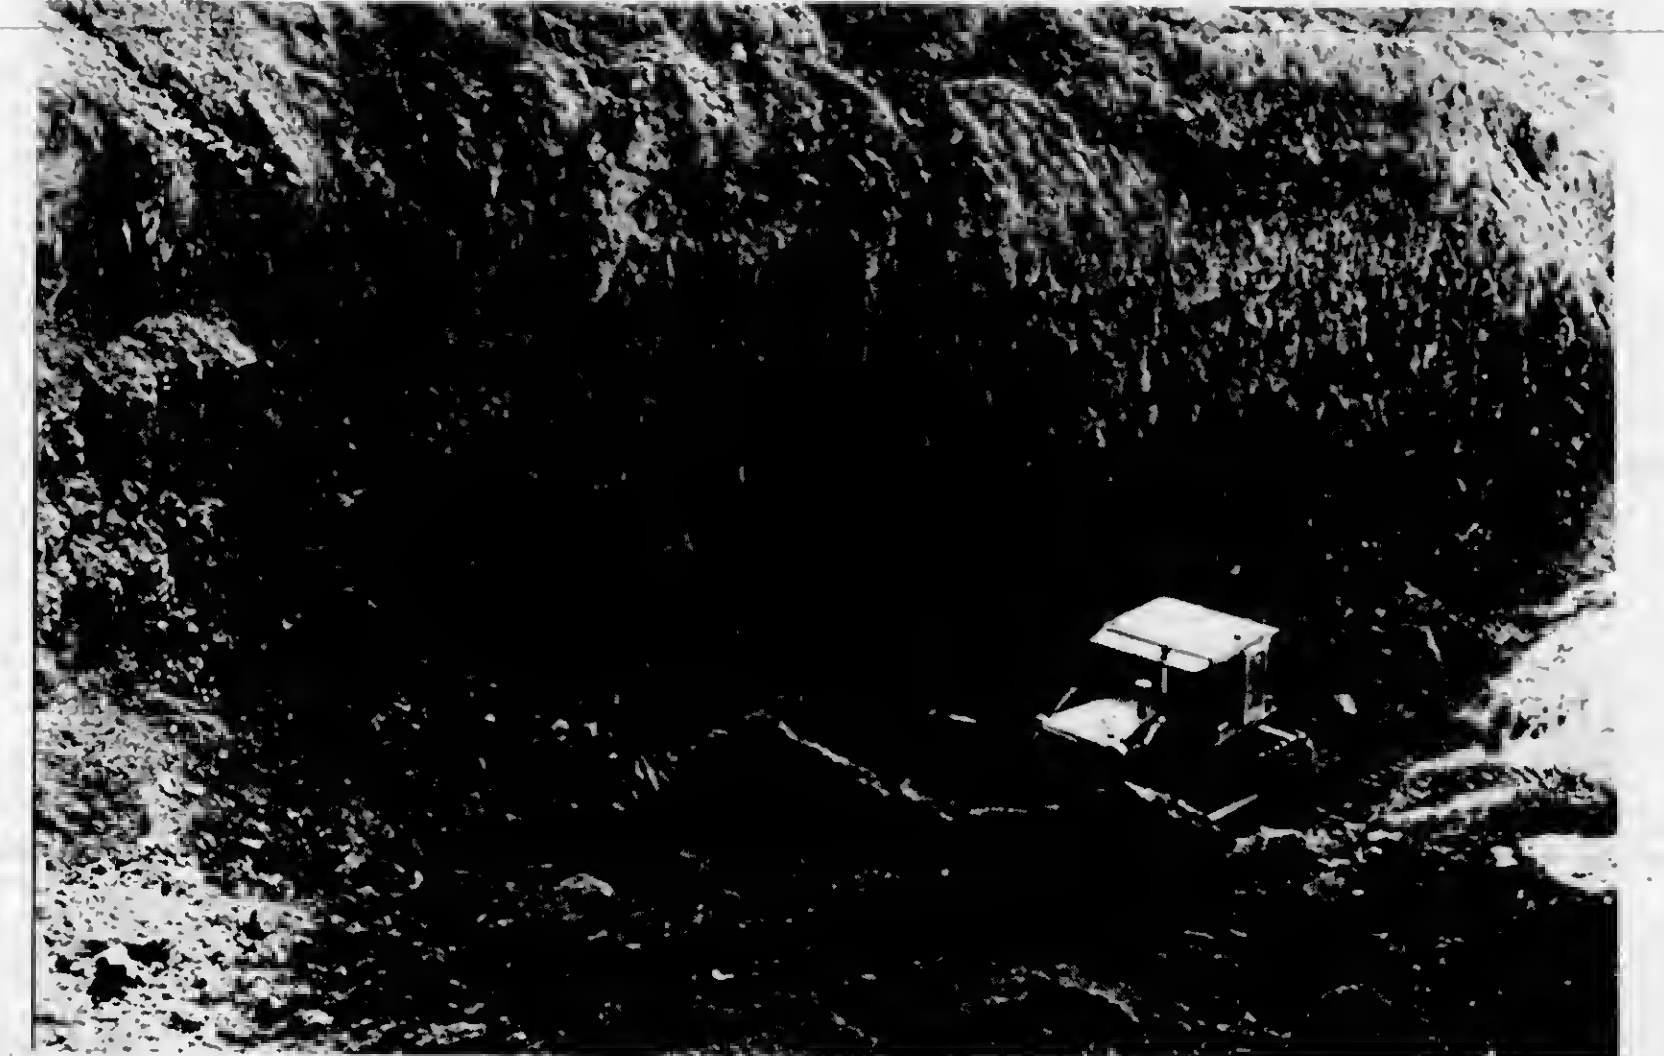

ENTRANCE TO the ground level of the mine is about one mile east of Ellsworth.

ADDITION TO THE difficulties created by eliminate problems, workmen are constantly plagued by underground streams which Workmen try to dam the streams into ponds or redirect the streams where they'll be out of the way of the work. However, no sooner do they finish damming or redirecting a stream then another one pops up.

THE SPECIALLY built 70 ton bulldozer scoops out the shale 60 feet below the top of the mine.

Board Sets Rules for Athletes

ELLSWORTH -- School board members here set up an athletic committee to formulate rules and have violations.

Committee members include Trustees Art Breth and Richard Wieland, Principal Paul Bliss and Coaches Sobek and David Patchkowski.

TENTATIVE rules for the athletes include no drinking or smoking and curfew of 9 p.m. nights before games, 10 p.m. week nights and 1 p.m. Friday and Saturday nights. Any student violating the rules would be heard before the committee and face suspension from all sports for the school year.

Sobek, who appeared before the board with Patchkowski, said last year's policy of suspension of violators for two weeks was inadequate.

Patchkowski said, "The idea behind having an athletic program is to build character and you aren't building it if a violator knows he'll be right back on the team again in two weeks."

THE SHIP ARRIVED in the Frankfort-Empire-Arcadia area about 8 p.m. and Uthol immediately took command of the rescue operation. As the "on-scene commander" he directed the operation of several Coast Guard boats (smaller lifeboats) from Manistee and Frankfort three helicopters and one plane.

Uthol said he suspects the toll of the search will be about 100. He said he expects the search will be completed by Saturday afternoon but he doesn't know for how long. Bodies, he said, will sink in the cold water and not come to the surface until later.

The worst weather the Sundew encountered, he said, was about ten foot waves. After arriving in the disaster area, the Sundew searched around-the-clock for victims in the lake. The crew dismounted in the lake. The wind, he said, was driving boats and victims into the beach, not out to deep water.

Uthol CONFIRMED other reports that fishermen were using boats far too small for Lake Michigan.

Others from Charlevoix who drove to the area Sunday, said the boats that were forced onto the rocks and beach by the storm were 16-foot and smaller.

By Sunday afternoon, witnesses said, fishermen were again venturing into the lake after cold in small boats.

The Sundew was released from the operation Sunday night and arrived back in Charlevoix at 7 p.m.

Sundew Directed Disaster Search

CHARLEVOIX -- Sundew crewmen had Monday after working around the clock most of Saturday and Sunday searching Lake Michigan off Frankfort for victims of the scho tragedy.

Sundew skipper Lt. Comm. Jon Uthol got orders to take the ship from Charlevoix to Frankfort at 3:45 p.m. Saturday when the extent of the disaster began to take shape.

Uthol said he suspects the toll of the search will be about 100. He said he expects the search will be completed by Saturday afternoon but he doesn't know for how long. Bodies, he said, will sink in the cold water and not come to the surface until later.

Jordan Home Building Starts

EAST JORDAN -- A home building start appears to be starting in East Jordan.

Approval last week of water and sewer for Jim Shepard's Hillcrest subdivision on the city's northern limits assures construction of new houses.

TWO BUILDING permits have already been issued -- to Don Peters and Ron Gruen--and they have started construction at Hillcrest, Shepard expects a third house to be started this fall.

Shepard, 35, a high school vocational teacher and East Jordan native, estimates there will be ten homes in the subdivision by next fall.

The 48-lot subdivision is located on the high bluff west of the Boyne City Rd. directly north of the cemetery. Homes will have a sweeping view of the South Arm. Shepard bought the property 5 years ago from Laura Malpas.

The city last week agreed to install water lines into the subdivision, at a cost of approximately $8,500.

Shepard will pay for sewer lines linking into the city sewage system through the line run this spring to Grandview.

To get adequate water pressure to the subdivision, Shepard said, the city will have to install a pump. Improvements to the city's concrete water reservoir at the north end of Biggill St. are also planned. (The reservoir was built in 1906.)

Shepard said in making his plans he anticipated five new homes a year. Responding, he said, has already been greater than that.

Plan School Bond Vote

CHARLEVOIX -- School district residents will be asked to approve a $1.5 million to $2 million building bond issue before Christmas.

The school board Monday agreed to put the building program up to voters for approval before the holiday.

IF VOTERS APPROVE the bond issue, contracts will probably be let in March or April, with the new elementary school expected to be ready for use in the spring or fall of 1969.

The board Monday evening heard architect Richard Wiggins of Daverock Associates of Petoskey outline the proposed building program and estimate costs.

Wiggins told the board construction of the proposed 20-classroom grade school and remodeling the old grade school into an intermediate school will cost $1,543,000 if immediate action is taken to obtain construction bids.

He said that due to continually rising construction costs, the $1.5 million is three-percent more than the work would have cost last spring. The best time to get low bids, he said, is in early spring.

THE BOARD PUT off a decision on whether to ask voters to also approve an approximately half-million dollar high school expansion program. This decision will probably be made at a special meeting Monday night.

Board member Burr Blanchard said the greatest pressure is in the elementary grades and the board is considering not asking voters for money to expand the high school.

By building the new grade school on Division St. and remodeling the old grade school to handle 6th through 8th graders, Supt. Rex Milligan said seven rooms in the high school will be freed for 9th through 12th graders.

Blanchard and Fran Hooper said they detect a continuing public feeling of opposition to the design and cost of the high school. This, several board members said, could work adversely with voters and bring about defeat of the "desperately needed" elementary school program.

MRS. HOOPER suggested the board place two issues on the ballot. One, for $1.5 million to construct the new grade school and renovate the old one and the other proposition to expand the high school.

This proposal was tentatively agreed on. A firm decision was not set until next Monday's special meeting.

Darrell Dinwiddie said he fears it would be "a little short-sighted" not to ask for the high school additions.

The children now crowding the elementary school will be crowding the high school in a few years, he said.

Wiggins' proposal for the high school includes two classrooms, an auditorium, stage, library expansion, athletic dressing room and improvements in the restrooms.

THE POSSIBILITY of cutting out the auditorium and stage from the high school expansion was suggested. This would lower the cost from approximately $400,000 to $200,000.

Mrs. Hooper pointed out that though other items involved in the $200,000 would actually be buying only two new classrooms (general science and home-making).

Blanchard said he doubts two additional classrooms in City Hall would be needed in five years, the board agreed to give the high school's five-year needs a hard look.

Island Gets More Electricity

BEAVER ISLAND -- A generator that will nearly double the electrical power available to island customers was moved here last week by the Beaver Islander.

The new 200 kilowatt per hour diesel generator will work along side the four generators now operated on the island.

Island by Northern Michigan Electric Cooperative, Art Steinhilber, manager, said.

INSTALLATION of the new generator and expansion of the island power plant will cost between $65,000 and $70,000, Steinhilber estimated. The new generator is expected to be operating in 30 to 60 days.

The four generators previously on the island and run by Jewell Gillette, put out a maximum of 200 kilowatts per hour, Steinhilber explained.

Several times this summer, he said, the existing four-generator system was taxed to capacity. During the winter, he said, the island's electrical demand peaks at about 100 kilowatts per hour.

Roger Westbrock, assistant manager of the Michigan Rural Electric Cooperative, said the number of island users has increased from 150 meters in 1958 to 275 meters.

ALL OF THE increase, he said, has been from seasonal users. By 1974 he predicts there will be at least 325 meters on the island.

He foresees no increase in year-round users. There are about 135 year-round customers (meters) on the island, he said.

During 1966, Westbrock said, 600,000 kilowatt hours of electricity was sold to island customers.
